Five times during this trailing match did this deceptive five jam in front of the pocket, rock an instant, then stick in the jaw.

Not one of the five shots was difficult. On each occasion the cue wielder, after getting the range, began a prolonged search for position, and this proved costly.

Benny Allen, point-making marathoner, who took a night off on Thursday to set a world's high-run record of $1, took part in the toughest game of the tourney. And it was his failure to plant that five in the pocket that brought about all the trouble.

THIRD STRAIGH

After suffering three consecutive reverses, the youthful Louis D. Kreuter, of New York, has proved one of the big surprises of the national pocket billiard championship tourney, for this afternoon he came through with his third straight win when he defeated Charles Seaback, of Hartford, Coun., by 125 to 76, at the Parkway Building.

Kreuter registered his first win over Maturo on Thursday, yesterday he beat Layton and today crushed the closeplaying Seaback. There was nothing sensational in the match but the exhibition was class and the work consistent. Each was credited with fifteen snieties, Seaback had two scratches and Kreuter one.

More rest for Benny.

Easy-going Concannon replied with 20 and smiled as he glided into a yawning chair. Two innings later B. Allen responded with another 27 run, only to slip on that jinx five ball. More rest for Benny.

For ten innings the stars waged a safety battle, when Concannon broke away with a 13 run. Benny came back with 15. Again it was the ill-fated five which nearly ruined him, for at this stage Concannon was credited with 113, against his 88.

Allen followed his run of 15 with his third 27 of the game. This time it was the fifteen ball that choked the pocket and lingered nervously on the games ever staged in a championship of tournament. The Layton-Maturo match Hirchi of last Tuesday evening was one of the Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—In a foot-fall game today between Harrisburg Technical High School eleven, state scholastic champions, and Portland Concannon went to bat. His shot was a safety.

prior to his open title, won today, held the amateur title. This was the first open court tennis title ever played for in this country.

The scores of today's sets were: Gould, 6-3; Kinsella, 6-4; Gould, 6-2. On Tuesday Jay Gould made a clean sweep of all four sets played, outplaying the New York pro, who was unable to get going. Gould started of Thursday to end the title play speedily by winning the opening set, 6-0, but under this coverwhelming handicap of five sets to love. The court tennis costume consists of rubber shoes, white flannels and an undershirt, the latter, pure and simple. Perhaps this explained the absence of the fair sex in the gallery.

Gould started off in his suappy style, taking it easy and making his kills without much apparent effort, while Kinsella, a bundle of nerves, played a desperate game to draw up on the amateur.
