Nancy Wynne Attends the First Meeting of the Supper Club—She Talks of Miss Seeler's Engagement.

Other Bits of Interest

WELL it was good to go to the Supper Club on Saturday night, wasn't it? I felt almost as if we were all there after a month or so, instead of the two years which have intervened in the meetings.

It was a good idea to start with the dinner at 8 o'clock, though not so many went for dinner, but with the laws which make a party finish at 12 on Saturday night some do not get quite enough dancing from 11 on, so it's better to go to dinner or for an early supper, say, at half after 8. And, Oh! boy, that ballroom floor and that orchestra! It was great! Jazz absolutely and positively up to date. Spectacularly imported from New York, you know.

IT WAS so nice to see Mrs. Scott here again. She has been and, in fact, is now living in New York, but she comes on for the Supper Club meetings. Betty Clark and her husband were there and had quite a large party of guests, including the little Mary Naylor, who to my mind, is one of the cutest of the debutantes. She wore the dearest little frock of orchid-pink chiffon, very, very short, and Mary can wear short frocks because she is so dainty, and the skirt had a sort of puffed drapery over the hips of grosgrain ribbon, about five or six rounded loops and the ribbon came on the little bodice and formed the straps, over the shoulders. It was sweet. Gertrude Pancost was with this party, too, looking very handsome in her soft gray georgette frock, made high in the back and with elbow sleeves held in about the waist by a silver girle. Edith Carpenter wore a blue and silver frock which was vastly becoming, I thought.

ANOTHER debutante who was there was Sarah Deen. She has a very good figure and wears dark blue a good deal. Her frock was of blue georgette over a white foundation, and the skirt was trimmed with large satin ribbon rosettes. She had a lovely jeweled comb in her hair and French wigs her hair high, you know, in a French twist, and the comb was most effective in it. Lyndale Baird Caster was there in a red velvet gown which was gathered and draped in all sorts of intricate ways, which were extremely pretty. It was held at the side below the waist line with an ostrich-feather spray. Hansell Earle Patterson was in a blue georgette and tulle and looked very sweet. Edwina and Heck Wetherill had quite a large number of guests. Edwina looked very well in a green and gold brocade frock, which was rather tightly draped about the skirt and had a short square train. Katherine and Jack Cougher came in after the theatre. Katherine looked very smart in a blue cloth and tulle frock. My but those two do dance well together! I love to watch them. They are so graceful. No silly quirks and ultra-fancy steps—just good dancing. Sarah Franklin looked demure in a semi-long-necked frock of black velvet. She wore little jet ball earrings and her hair was very smooth and rather tight. Velvet gowns are certainly to the fore this year.

Altogether I am glad to say the Supper Club was great, and I am looking forward to the next meeting.

THAT Mother Goose carnival was some carnival up in the Rose Garden on Saturday evening. I should say, judging from the costumes of some of the performers I saw going home from the Supper Club. There was a vision in yellow silk and narrow black velvet sitting there chatting with a manly person, and another fairy-colored diaphanous hat on the side of her head a little larger than a fifty-cent piece. A fairy holding a small silver Christmas tree. She was beautiful to behold. I should say that Mother Goose carnival had been a success!

WELL, although I do not know the lucky man—he is not Philadelphia you know, but I would certainly like to shake his hand and congratulate him on having won Katherine Seeler, for to my mind there are few girls as sweet as she in this city of brotherly and sisterly love. She has the prettiest manners and is thoroughly charming.

And clever! I should say so. Have you ever seen her act with the Phylax and Players? She has a way of being so pretty and vivacious I always want to see the plays she takes part in. Katherine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Seeler. She came out about five years ago and has been very popular. Her engagement to George Franklin Gentes, of New York, was announced Saturday—I understand that no date has been set for the wedding as yet, but it will take place before the spring.

DID I tell you the story I heard the other day about one of the debutantes who is an only daughter? Not only that, but her parents just love her and everything she wants she gets pretty much has, though she really is not spoiled. She's a dear. The other day she went into a fancy-collective shop here in town and bought quite a lot of lovely things in the way of lacy waists and negligees. The saleswoman who waited on her smilingly began to take interest when it came to three negligees and said, "A trousseau, I suppose?" "Oh no," responded the deb wearily, "just mother's only daughter."
