BILLY DANSEY SHOT IN ERROR FOR DOG, IS THEORY OFFERED

Suggested That Hammonton Boy Was Unintentionally Killed in Dahlia Field

FARMER AND WOMAN ARE ARRESTED IN CASE

Councilman's Son and Accomplice Suspect Held in Jail. Man Aided Hunt

Piecing together the bits of evidence in their possession, the detectives investigating the death of Billy Dansey, of Hammonton, N. J., have built up a theory that the child was shot in mistake for his dog while playing in the dahlia beds of the White farm.

Charles S. White, twenty-nine years old, a dahlia farmer and next door neighbor of the Danseys, is in jail at Mays Landing, charged with the murder. Mrs. Edith Jones, housekeeper murder. Mrs. Edith Jones, housekeeper for Councilman Edward H. White, father of the prisoner, is also in the sil, charged with having been accessory after the fact.

It is known that Jack, little Billy Dansey's pet dog, was shot while digging about in the fishlia fields. The dog was only slightly wounded, was cared for at the Dansey home and was first let we on October 8, the day Billy Dansey un on October 8, the day Billy Dansey

The two are held without ball to await the actions of the grand jury. This does not convene for more than a week. A special session to take up the Dansey case is being considered.

The arrest of Mrs. Jones and White was kept a secret in Hammonton. Even Mrs. Dansey, mother of the kwo-and a-half-year-old dead boy, who saw the detectives drive away with the prisoners, did not know they were arrested for the murder of her boy.

Other than saying that White and Mrs. Jones had been under suspicion and almost, constant surveillance for and almost, constant surveillance for several weeks. Prosecutor Edmund C. Gaskill refused to talk about the case.

'It bears out my conviction from the start that something was not on the level in this case,' he said. 'If am proud of the success of my men, who have worked untiriugly on the case. Sundays, holidays and weekdays since the case began.''

Promises Sensation

'Charles S. White knows what happened to Billy Dansey,'' said Detective Nussbaum. 'The boy was dead at the hour White says he saw him in the dahlia held. We are positive we have the solution of the mystery now that he and Mrs. Jones are in jail. Because it would give away our hand and prevent other developments in the case, we cannot tell more at this time. The developments will be sensational though when they come.''

The two detectives drove to Hammonton about dark last night, he explained. They went to the White home by a roundabout way and placed White and Mrs. Both were held under $800 bails of the work and after swearing out the warrants went to the White home by a roundabout way and placed White and the case held under $800 bails of the home of Magistrate Strouse, and after swearing out the warrants went to the White home by a roundabout way and placed White and the case held under $800 bails of the home of Magistrate Strouse, and after swearing out the warrants went to the White home by a roundabout way and placed White and the case held under $800 bails of the home of Magistrate Strouse, and after swearing out the warrants went to the White home by a roundabout way and placed White and the case held under $800 bails of the home of the case held the case had an an an and the case and thorse of warrant of the man of the case. The two detectives drove to Hammon-ton about dark last night, he explained. They went to the home of Magistrate Strouse, and after swearing out the warrants went to the White home by a roundahout way and placed White and Mrs. Jones under arrest. Neither showed any emotion, according to the detectives.

The Town Hall had been cleared of Found Unconscious in Home and spectators. The hearing there was a mere formality. After the two were held the detectives cautioned Strouse against talking and took the prisoners to Mays Landing.

Directed Searchers

White is supposedly the last person who saw Billy alive. It was this man who told the authorities of seeing the boy playing in the dahlia field about 10 celock on the morping of October 8, and gave them the first directions in the search. The direction he said the boy had taken as he wandered away from the field was opposite from that leading to the Folsom swamp, where three weeks later the skeleton of little Billy was recovered.

Nevada street. Physicians say both will recover. The plight of the aged couple was discovered by John Roth, a roomer. Roth was arraigned this morning before Magistrate Glenn in the Fourth and York streets station and held in $500 bail for a further hearing December 22 as a material witness.

Billy was recovered.

According to Nussbaum. Charles White is the father of little Charlie White, Billy Dansey's playmate, for whom it was said early in the case kidnappers mistook Billy. The detectives would not explain completely how they first fastened suspicion on the pair or what their theory was as to the time and place of the little victim's murder.
