

300 WAR AVIATORS TO AID CITY POLICE

Will Offer Services in Return for Landing Field and Airdrome.

HEAR EXPERTS AT SMOKER

Services of three hundred former army and navy aviators will be offered to the Moore administration for use in helping police the city in return for a landing field and site for an airdrome. Tentative plans for the establishment of the field were made last night by the fliers, now organized as the Aviators' Club of Pennsylvania, at a meeting in the Hotel Walton.

The plans, if carried out, will make this city one of the world's centers, so far as aviation is concerned. They include drawings, now complete, for the landing field, airdrome and necessary equipment, and provide for the location of the field near the navy yard.

Lieutenant Colonel L. I. Hartner, who commanded the first pursuit group of American aviators in France, attended last night's meeting as the representative of the director of military aviation of the War Department. He predicted airplanes which will exceed a speed of 250 miles an hour, and pleaded for legislation to encourage flying. He also said the air service will eventually drive the naves under the sea.

Commander H. C. Richardson, who commanded the N.C. in its attempt to make a transatlantic flight, and City Statistician Cattell were among other speakers.

Daylight Saving in Camden. E. G. C. Bleakley, Camden councilman, has been instructed by the city council to prepare an ordinance for the retention of the daylight saving plan, beginning with the last Saturday of March. Business men and manufacturers generally urged that the hour-saving system be continued and passage of the ordinance is expected at once.

The Cop on the Corner

"HOW comes it, Mike?" says Maggie with her everlastin' quizzin'. "Ye don't belong t' this Coppertown Protective Union I hears so much about?" "F'r reasons good an' sufficient," says I. "Now, don't misunderstand me, Maggie, th' union is a splendid thing f'r cops that need guidin' an' is apt t' fall prey t' unscrupulous politicians. But as f'r me I can stand on my own bottom."

"Sure, an' hav'n't I survived through five administrations, some of 'em hostile wit'out a smudge on me good name. I've been transferred several times, but that was th' fortunes of war an' in no wise tarnish'd me cent-o-bun. When I pounded a beat in th' Eighth ward I steered clear of them Greek eatin' houses an' alluring gambin' dens an' so scored a good mark at th' Front. Th' th' proudest memory of me career that Buck Deelin, himself, mitigate ebium of Senator Pinrose, congratulated me one night on Locust street, remarkin' he was of buck-hand complimint, he didn't see how 'twas I escaped th' thral board."

"Me record in th' Thirtieth ward was so immaculate that Bill McConch, a cagey leader, mist' ye, Maggie, personally shook me by th' hand. 'Twas th' same when I cover'd a beat down in th' Thirty-ninth ward. Bill Finley, a return sheet, express'd th' opinion, confidentially, 'Sinator Varr, that I was a double-ye copper an' warrant'd trouble-proof."

"Well, Mike," observes Maggie with a twinkle, "I'm glad ye didn't tumble t' temptation like Pat Mulraney, me soon' cousin who held down a beat in West Philadelphia."

"What happened t' him?" asks I. "F'r'd f'r gratin'," says Maggie, "hadn't been on th' beat out in th' Twenty-fourth ward twenty-four hours before he was caught rid-hand'd by th' street sargent leadin' an elephant fr'm th' zoo."

LOOK FOR ORDER RESTORING TRAINS

Railroad Men Here Expect Fuel Administration to Act Before Monday

STORES GET LONGER HOURS

Further modification of the fuel conservation regulations, which, it is believed, will restore full train service in this, the Allegheny region, are expected between now and Monday, according to railroad officials, who say there is now plenty of coal in the region for railroad use.

Another modification affecting business was announced last night when orders were issued by Fuel Administrator Garfield permitting stores to open nine hours tomorrow because of the rush of Christmas shoppers. This modification, however, will not make much difference here, as merchants have been saving power by cutting down the quantity of light used and remaining open during the usual hours.

Protests continue to be made here against the order restricting stores to a six-hour day, business men contending that there is no need for enforcing the regulations as public utility companies here have a surplus stock of coal and many buildings are heated by anthracite.

The Chamber of Commerce sent a protest to Walter D. Hines, director general of railroads, asking that restrictive orders be either canceled or modified to permit industries affected to operate to capacity.

The protest called attention to the fact that stores in the outlying sections of the city do most of their business at night.

The United Business Men's Association telegraphed a protest to Fuel Administrator Garfield, asking that the restrictions be lifted, emphasizing the effect the orders have on stores in outlying sections.

Gov. Smith's Mother Near Crisis. New York, Dec. 12.—A crisis will occur today in the illness of Mrs. Catherine Smith, mother of Governor Smith. Dr. John H. Reb, the family physician, announced last night.
