

WHY FEE D. BRANNAN, OF CLARES BRANNAN

Terms Replies to His Criticism of Creation of Constitution Body as "Beating About Bush"

BACKS ILLEGALITY CHARGE

"Merely beating about the bush," Robert Brannan, former assistant city solicitor, today retorted the replies made by Attorney General Schaffer and others to his article, "Irresponsible Messing With the Constitution," published in the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER yesterday.

Sproul Makes Situation Plain

Governor Sproul made it plain today that it would be the Legislature that would deal with the matter, and that the constitutional revision commission is expected to make, and that no change to the organic law could be made without all the people having something to say about it, not only once, but three times.

"The commission was created simply to study and recommend such changes as it deems necessary to the constitution, and I am very glad to see that it began work so promptly," said the Governor.

"When it reports it will be a matter for the Legislature. No one is authorized to say anything in administration now, and the next Legislature has to be elected."

"So far as I am concerned the people have nothing to say upon the matter. The question of necessity of a constitutional convention and the election of delegates are two matters which have nothing to do with the commission, and then the final report must have the approval of the voters."

William Draper Lewis, secretary of the commission, coinciding with the views already expressed by Mr. Schaffer, chairman of the commission, and Mr. Brannan on the alleged illegality of the commission's existence and functions.

Doctor Lewis today gave it his opinion that Mr. Brannan's criticism had been based upon a wrong premise and a misconception of the purpose and powers of the commission under the legislative act under which it was appointed by the Governor.

Referring to a paragraph in the Brannan statement that the Legislature "has authorized" and the Governor "has approved" the commission, Dr. Lewis said:

"That is exactly what we are not authorized to do. If Mr. Brannan had read the act creating the commission he would have seen that its purpose was to examine the present constitution and to report to the Legislature any amendments it might deem necessary, and to suggest a new constitution. It possesses no final powers and the Legislature may disregard its suggestions or take any other steps which it may see fit to take to place any suggested changes before the people for their judgment."

"There is no abridgment of any right, either of the Legislature or people in the commission's functions."

"As the commission's capacity is entirely advisory and whatever it may recommend must be passed upon both by the Legislature and the people, there is no invasion of the rights of either, and no constitutional question is raised by its existence or actions. There is no usurpation of the powers of Legislature or people."

Meeting of Premiers Significant

It is unfair to call it a revival of the Entente. It is equally unfair to call it in effect a league of nations.

Whatever one chooses to call it, the international organization is a combination of the victors. It is now informal when the United States makes its great decision.

Under the covenant, a meeting of the league of nations should have been called. But no date has been set.

The meeting of the premiers in London, which evidently it was considered unwise to hold.
