Plan Water Rate Reduction

The volume in money and in the number of purchases has had an extraordinary boom. Fur coats, high-priged jewelry and fine pieces of gift furniture lead, and there threatens to be a piano and canned music shortage.

Watch for that oblong box that what a little too large to go in your stocking, alits probably a pair of shoes which have suddenly been promoted into the class of gifts.

The most important measure, from a financial standpoint, that awaits action is the bill to reduce the water rate. This measure, fathered by Alfred Waldron, of the Thirty-first ward, is retroactive in that it would become effective as of January 1, 1919. Because of this clause a refund to users of water would be necessary. It would amount to about $600,000, and there is no money available for such a use.
