Nancy Wynne Wishes Her Readers a Happy Day Tomorrow—She Regrets the Death of Dr. Murray Cheston—Few Christmas Entertainments

NEED I say that I wish you all the joys of the season tomorrow? This Christmas with the spirit of peace in our hearts, even if it has not yet been declared by the world, is a happier one than last year, for many of us then were still waiting for news of loved ones abroad. The message of peace on earth and good will to men finds an answer in our hearts and with this "once over" we are looking forward to a new year in which many problems raised by the war will be settled, so that we can entirely resume its normal course.

THE Evans ball last night was perfectly beautiful. The Bellevue ball was wonderfully decorated. Monday was a perfect dream of flowers and greens so Christmas in effect one almost expected Santa Claus to appear. Principal decorations and the brilliant background for the dancers made a picture not soon to be forgotten. Mrs. Evans and her daughter received the guests in the ballroom. Anita looked so sweet in her girlish white frock with silver threaded flowers and tulle. Of course the evening was a success. I should say while yawning from having gotten to bed about 4:30, it was a great party.

WE TURN aside from Christmas to think with deep sorrow and great respect of the passing of dear Dr. Murray Cheston, who died on Monday night at the Chestnut Hill Hospital after an illness ensuing from a fall sustained a week ago Sunday. He had come up from West River, where he had a little while with his daughter, Mrs. William Haines, and he fell on the stairs in her house, breaking both wrists, his nose and cheek bone. At first it was believed that he recovered, but he was seventy-six years of age and the shock and other complications brought death.

Though Doctor Cheston had not practiced here for several years, there is not an old patient of his still living who did not love him and his genial, kindly manner, his delightful stories, his kind words and advice. His death has attracted attention in illness. It can be truly said he was one of the best loved doctors in this city.

Well, does Nancy remember hearing when he drove to a certain home in this city to see some one who was ill, how a small girl used to sneak down stairs and "sneak" down stairs and peek at the University of Pennsylvania scarf and insert a Princeton one instead.

And his calls for "badness" to come and give him his handkerchief. And the fun that would ensue, till he obtained the red and blue scarf, and then proceeded on to his carriage, where John, the coachman, was waiting for him, waving back to the naughty little girl and making faces at her. He was certainly the salt of the earth and a good confident that the eye will miss him in a year when the notice of his death is read.

Doctor Cheston's wife was Miss Ellen Randall, a sister of Doctor Alex. Randall, who died before the doctor gave up his practice and went to live in West River. Of their four children the eldest, Miss Katherine, married William Haines, one son, Alexander Randall Cheston, married Miss Mary Brodgen, of West River, and Dr. Murray Cheston, Jr., a captain in the regular army, now at Camp Meade, married Miss Mary Burwell, of Baltimore. An unmarried daughter, Margaret Cheston, lived with her mother and aunt, Miss Katharine, in West River. After the services in St. Paul's, Chestnut Hill, yesterday afternoon, the body of Doctor Cheston was taken to West River, where he was born and had lived for the greater part of the last fifteen years.

God bless the memory of such a man. Would there were more like him in this world.

THERE will be little or no entertaining tomorrow excepting the Kanes' buffet luncheon and the Pearsons' dance at Manheim. Otherwise Philadelphia is a quiet town, and it is to be expected that the family dinners and meet together on that one day in the year at least to share their joys and sorrows together. Holidays are never without their pains, are they? Few of us have not some one whose absence from the home circle is intensified at these times; but that fact makes us want to live every one to the hilt at Christmas time, as they can possibly be. So a Merry, Merry Christmas to you all.

THEY were talking about the immodesty in dress these days. One was an older man whom you know and I know and who has gone about to parties and balls much of his life. He should say he was one who had observed much in his time. He is a kindly man with a ready wit and he sat quietly while the two women who were talking about it. Said one: "My dear, I saw Mrs. H— at a reception recently, and I give you my word she wore a dress which was just two inches above the waist line in the back and had one strap over the shoulder and was cut about two inches lower than the ordinary armhole. Besides that she had her hair bobbed." "My dear, why she's nearly thirty and has three children, too, I think."

"Well, why doesn't somebody do something?" said the other. "But she does. Why, the men don't like it; they don't know where to put their hands when they are dancing. They'll just have to give gloves all the time or carry handkerchiefs," replied the first.

Then he who was listening spoke up and mildly remarked: "Why, they can wash the powder off their hands after the dances, can't they?"
