

ROCKEFELLER GIFT WOULD HELP HERE

Provost Smith Hopes Portion May Be Allotted to University

OTHER EDUCATORS' VIEWS

Educators in the neighborhood of Philadelphia show extreme interest in the forthcoming distribution of the John D. Rockefeller fund of $100,000,000 for educational and medical purposes.

Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith, of the University of Pennsylvania, said that he is keenly aware of the need for additional money among educational institutions, and that he hoped the General Educational Board might find some use for a portion of the Rockefeller fund at the university.

"It was a great surprise to all of us," said Dr. Walter Taggart, of the university, "when we heard of this wonderful gift. But I feel certain that some of it will come to Pennsylvania."

Dr. William Pepper, dean of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, hoped that some of the money would flow to the medical department of the university.

"I doubt that Princeton will receive any," said Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton. "We have lately been honored by the Frick legacy, and we are at present conducting a general campaign for funds. And the General Educational Board, you know,

MAN DISPLAYS TEMPER

Barred From Concert, He Breaks Windows, Police Charge

Joseph Morley's display of temper resulted today in his arraignment before Magistrate Coward, who held him under $400 bail for court.

Enraged because he had been denied admittance to the headquarters of the American Rescue Workers at 1236 South Second street, while an entertainment was going on last night, Morley broke two of the windows in the place, the police say.

He gave an address on Wharton street above Second.

Draft Blows Flame in Man's Face

A back-draft from his furnace sent a puff of flame into the face of Andrew N. White last night at his home, 1442 Sparks street, Germantown. He was taken to the Germantown Hospital with severe burns. White is a foreman at the Hog Island shipyard and is forty-five years old.

Who's Who In the Presidential Race

So many good Americans have never before aspired to the Presidency at this early stage of the campaign, we are assured by competent authorities on things political. As the Baltimore Sun (Ind.) remarks: "Democrats and Republicans have been popping up all over the country, stretching themselves to their greatest height and craning their necks with the hope that the Presidential lightning may hit them." The newspapers, generally cautious about committing themselves in favor of any candidate while politics is in such an uncertain stage, are, however, commenting more freely and dispassionately upon the various Presidential aspirants than they are likely to do later, when the lines are drawn more tightly.

This very fact enables THE LITERARY DIGEST to present to its readers, in this week's number, and well in advance of the primaries, the chief merits and demerits of the principal contestants for the Presidential nominations as seen by the men themselves, by their friends, or by the newspapers most familiar with their records.
