

Race Track Fall : Octogenarian Twins : Peacock Gown : Armored Pet : Europe's Heavyweight

A REMARKABLE action picture of Captain Ian Straker landing on the racetrack after being unseated from his mount, Kirkale, in the Moyer hurdle handicap at Lingfield, England, while his horse is rolling over from the fall.

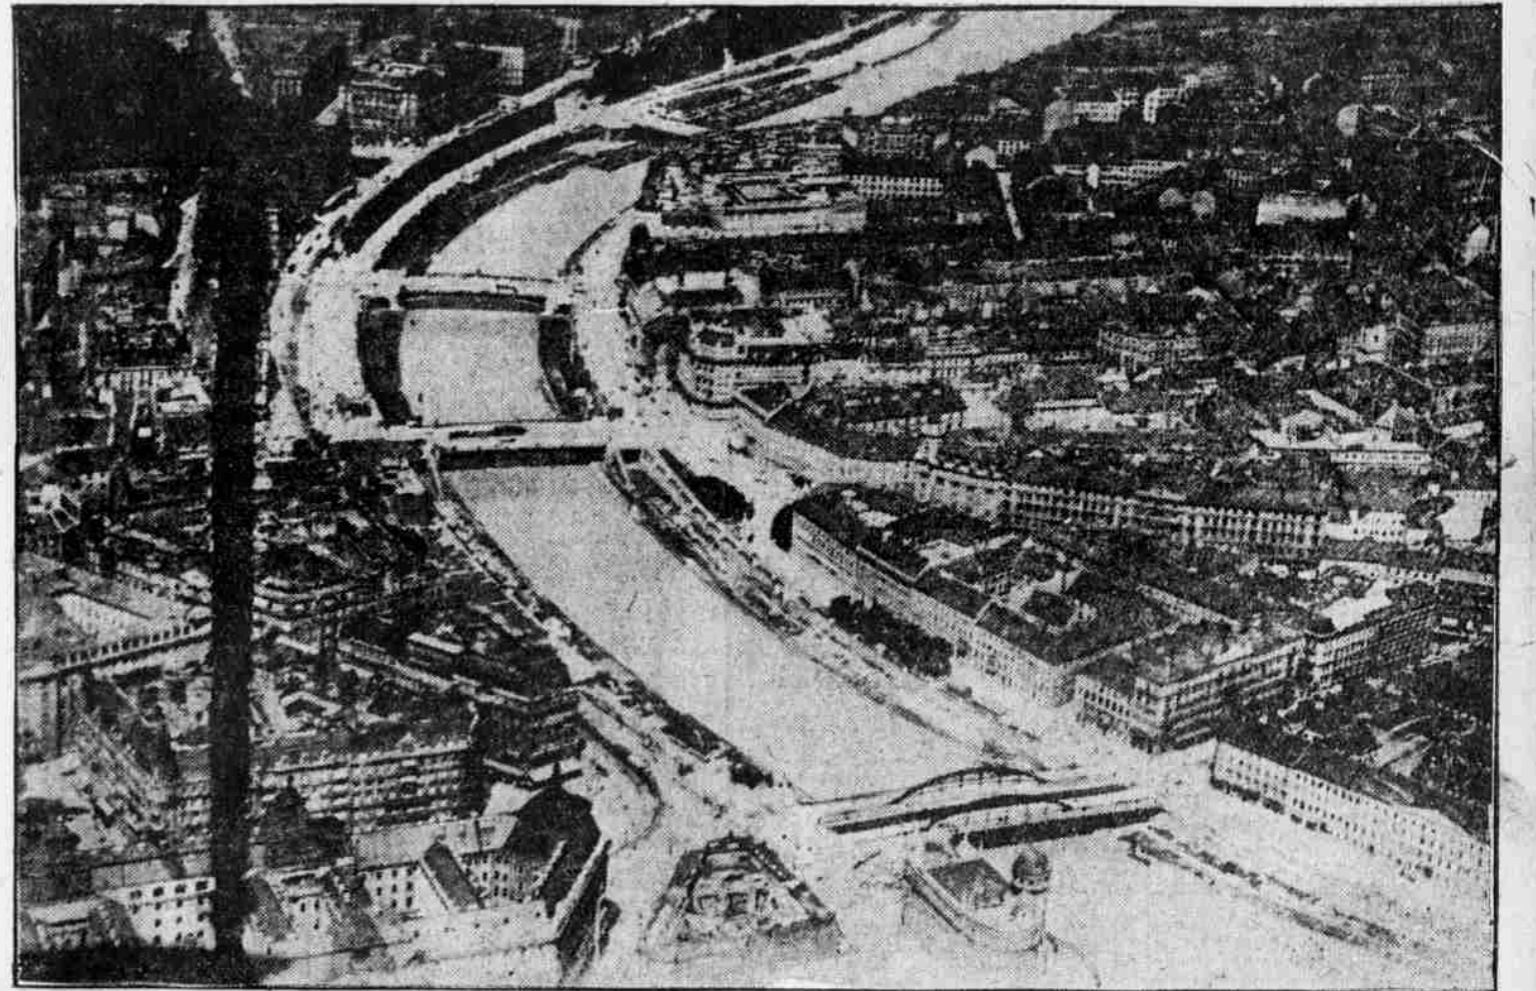

MISS B. D'ARMAND carrying her pet armadillo. According to reports from Florida, the armadillo, something of a cross between an opossum and a small armored tank, is the very latest in pet fashions.

MADAME DOLORES in her striking costume, the white peacock, at the "Blue Bird" ball in New York. Proceeds of the ball were divided among four war and relief funds of Belgium.

MRS. AMANDA YOUNG and Mrs. Amelia Marsh, eighty-six-year-old twins, reunited in the Oak Forest Infirmary, Chicago, after years of separation. They were born in Chautauqua County, N. Y., and were inseparable till marriage. Both are widows.

AN AIRPLANE view of Vienna and four of its bridges spanning the Danube river. War's blight is still firmly fixed on the Austrian capital.

ADJUSTING THE clamps and straps firmly, and then for a spin over the frozen surface of the park's little lake.

GEORGES CARPENTIER, heavyweight champion of Europe, receiving the Gant Gold Cup at the Oxford Music Hall from C. B. Cockran. The cup's inscription reads: "The Gant Gold Cup for the Heavyweight Boxing Championship of the World. Presented by David N. Gant, June 17, 1919."
