tions Connected With Ball to Which the Blue Bloods of the City Subscribe

WELL, are you ready for the fray tonight? Would you miss it for anything? Just to show that you can go and to see who has been asked to subscribe this year of the debs and who has been invited from "Podunk" and be amazed at seeing "So and so." and look in a questioning manner at "Thing um bob" and say under your breath "For goodness sake, since when has she been "Deanor Thelma Davis, and Mr. George W. G goodness sake, since when has she been a subscriber?"

Nancy Wynne Talks of the Assembly and Many Tradi-

Somehow the ball is so up-to-date vie, don't you think? In the old days at the Academy of Music, when old Doctor Cleeman walked about with dear Miss Mary Coxe one his arm, in her quaint square necked gray or soft brown gown, the ball seemed one of the remnants of the real old Philadelphia. Now it's much more modern.

nants of the real on I Tanaderiana. Now it's much more modern.

The Cleeman twins used to have so much to do with the ball—Doctor Cleeman and his brother, Ludovic. One or the other would stand on the first land.

A danaant is being given this aftermone in the Markelm Cricket Club forces. ing of the stairway as you went up-trembling with the excitement of being a debutante at your First Assembly. And then the wonderful supper on the stage and floored-over seats, for in stage and floored-over seats, for in those days the dancing was in the foyer. Of course, there was never room to dance comfortably, but it was picturesque and old-fashioned, and the men and girls used to sit out the dances on the red-carpeted stairs leading from the main floors to the balcony floors, where the patronesses were and where the dancing held sway,

EARLIER than that there was old to go from home to home of the subscribers with the book and the subscribtions were entered. And don't you think for a moment any one who had not subscribed all his life could get his range on that list then. The story was Conight will be an extra important event, as it marks the first Assembly in three years. It has been the custom to call off the balls when the country has been at war. This happened during the Revolution, the Civil War and, of course, during the great world war. So since 1917 there has not been an Assembly. Then, too, there will be an unusual number of debutantes there tonight, because there are so many there tonight, because there are so many going out this year among the eligible

THE patronesses tonight are Mrs. A. THE patronesses tonight are Mrs. A. J. Cassatt, who, unfortunately, on account of illness will be unable to receive, Mrs. John B. Thayer, Mrs. Trenchard Emlen Newbold, Mrs. O. H. Perry Pepper, Mrs. Alexander Yavnall and Mrs. Charlie Cheston. The latter is the bride of last year. That's another custom, you know, the youngest patroness is always chosen from among those who have been married during the past who have been married during the past

A LTHOUGH some have been from time to time admitted into the Assembly whose furnilies have not patronesses and the men asked to take the patronesses in to supper are always selected from the families of subscribers whose membership in the Assemblies dates back to the first balls which were held in 1747.

think for a moment any one who had not subscribed all his life could get his name on that list then. The story was told how one lady, who was a subscriber and whose daughter was going as a debutante, had a niece whose father had never gone and who was therefore cut off from that privilege, and so when the book came she sought to put down the niece's name. Could she? Not on your life! "No, ma'am," said he. "Dat name ain't on de list," said he. "Dat name ain't on de list," said he. "Dat name ain't on de list," said, believe me, that name never got on the list, either.

TONIGHT will be an extra important event, as it marks the first Assembly in three years. It has been the custom to call off the balls when the Mrs. Daniel W.
