

"CINDERELLA'S DAUGHTER"

By HAZEL DEYO BATCHELOR
Copyright, 1920, by The Public Ledger Company

Virginia West, after she married Jimmy Anderson and married life was all romance. Kathleen Foster, Virginia's closest friend at boarding school, has been engaged to a friend of Jimmy's, but has broken her engagement because Bill Lyons has no money. The viewpoints of the two girls regarding life are entirely different. Jimmy is practical and efficient. Virginia, a girl brought up in luxury, to be as efficient as his own mother, who never had more than a mother's small salary to support her. There is constant friction between the young couple concerning household affairs.

that night when he had come home. It had been a sore subject and one that Virginia had not dared to broach since. She had trembled when Kathleen had asked the question fearful that Jimmy would be angry, and here he was admitting that he liked the change. Kathleen looked at a small jeweled wrist watch on her wrist and exclaimed at the time. Jimmy jumped up. "I'll see you home." "It isn't a bit necessary," Kathleen said deprecatingly. "I'm used to running about alone. Really I mean it." But Jimmy was in the bedroom scrambling into his coat, and Virginia had a feeling that somehow in spite of her independence Kathleen was not averse to having him go with her.
