

FARINA DISHES—MAKING MONOGRAMS—CYNTHIA ANSWERS MANY LETTERS—WOMAN'S EXCHANGE

MRS. WILSON SUGGESTS RECIPES FOR CEREAL

Farina Sausages Are Unusual and Make as Good a Breakfast Dish as the Pork Variety

Italian Polenta Would Be Something Different for Dinner Used in the Menu Given Below

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

My dear Mrs. Wilson—Two members of my family are very fond of farina. Will you kindly tell me of some attractive ways of serving the cereal?

FARINA is a delicious wheat cereal product, and it can be utilized for many dishes. The people who live in the central wheat fields of Russia find many delightful and attractive ways of serving this cereal.

Russian Cereal Sausage

Place in a saucepan One quart of boiling water. One teaspoon of salt. Add very slowly one cup of farina and then stir to prevent lumping. Cook slowly for thirty minutes and then serve as a breakfast cereal, or add one cup of finely chopped meat.

Polenta

Place in a saucepan One quart of boiling water. One-half teaspoon of salt. Bring to a boil and then add two-thirds cup of farina, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Now add one cup of country pork, cut into tiny dice.

Farina Fruit Pudding

Place One cup of water. One-half teaspoon of salt. In a saucepan bring to a boil. Now add in slowly one-half cup of farina, stirring to prevent lumping and cook for ten minutes. Turn into a mixing bowl and add one cup of raisins, one cup of seedless raisins, two cups of sugar, one cup of water, one-half teaspoon of extract of mace, one tablespoon of melted butter. Mix thoroughly and then turn into a baking dish and bake in a slow oven for forty-five minutes. Serve with stewed or crushed fruit.

Farina Soup, Russian

Place in a saucepan One quart of water. Three onions, chopped fine. One teaspoon of salt. One teaspoon of paprika. Bring to a boil and add five tablespoons of farina. Two beef bouillon cubes. Cook slowly for one-half hour and then add one cup of finely chopped parsley.

Swiss Farina Balls for Soup

Place in a mixing bowl One and one-half cups of cold cooked farina. One large onion, grated. One-half cup of finely chopped parsley. Three-quarters cup of flour. One teaspoon of baking powder. One teaspoon of salt. One-half teaspoon of paprika. One egg.

Italian Polenta Used for Farina

Place in a saucepan One quart of boiling water. One teaspoon of salt. One-half teaspoon of paprika. One grated onion. Bring to a boil and cook for three minutes, then add three-quarters of a cup of farina. Stir to prevent lumping and then cook slowly for one-half hour. Then add one-half cup of grated cheese. Beat hard to mix and then mix a loaf-shaped pan with cold water. Drain well and then turn in the mixture and let cool.

DINNER

Farina Polenta Onion Sauce String Beans Peas and Carrots Celery Radishes

Stewed Fruit Coffee

Place in a saucepan One and one-half cups of boiling water. One-half teaspoon of salt. One-half cup of farina. Stir to prevent lumping and cook for ten minutes. Now add one cup of sugar, two and one-half cups of milk or water. Yolk of one egg. One teaspoon of vanilla. Beat to mix thoroughly and then pour into well-greased custard cups and bake in slow oven until firm in the center. Place the white of one egg in a bowl and add one-half glass of jelly. Beat with Dover eggbeater until the mixture holds its shape. Pipe on custards and serve.

Farina Muffins

Place in a mixing bowl One cup of cold cooked farina. Four tablespoons of sirup. Two level tablespoons of baking powder. One and one-half cups of milk or water. Beat hard to mix thoroughly and then pour into well-greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes. These muffins are delicious when toasted.

Farina Waffles

Place in a mixing bowl One cup of cold cooked farina. Four tablespoons of sirup. Two level tablespoons of baking powder. One and one-half cups of milk or water. Beat hard to mix thoroughly and then pour into well-greased waffle pans and bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes. These waffles are delicious when toasted.

Ask Mrs. Wilson

If you have any cooking problems, bring them to Mrs. Wilson. She will be glad to answer you through these columns. No personal replies, however, can be given. Address questions to Mrs. M. A. Wilson, EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER, Philadelphia.

Beat to mix and then bake in hot well-greased waffle irons.

Farina Mush

Place in a saucepan One quart of boiling water. One teaspoon of salt. Add very slowly one cup of farina and then stir to prevent lumping. Cook slowly for thirty minutes and then serve as a breakfast cereal, or add one cup of finely chopped meat.

Gruel

Place in a saucepan One quart of boiling water. One-half teaspoon of salt. Bring to a boil and add five tablespoons of farina. Stir to prevent lumping and cook very slowly for one-half hour. Then add one and one-half cups of scalded milk. One pinch of nutmeg. Beat to mix. This is a splendid dish for the invalid or small child to replace the morning cereal.

The Woman's Exchange

Here Are Three Kittens

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam—I have three kittens which I would like to give away. They are very playful. I will thank you very much if you will help me to give them away. MRS. J. F. HOFFER

A Leap Year Party

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam—As this is leap year and I am contemplating giving a party and dance, I thought a leap year party would be a novelty. I thought I would write to you for suggestions. Will you kindly tell me the appropriate time in regards to invitations, decorations, dancing, and refreshments? Thanking you for your very generous attention. H. M. C.

In writing your invitation for a leap year party, word them just as you would any other invitations. This will make the leap year idea more of a surprise and avoid the possibility of being useful from any boys who are too foolish to face the affair.

Of course, during the dance the girls must always ask the boys to dance, and there should be several "out-in" or "tag" dances, if you do not have them all that kind. In this dance, they all go to the wall. At intervals upon the "tag" stage, who are not dancing, to break into a dance and take possession of any one's partner. In this case it would be the girl who would cut in on other girls and dance with the men.

For decorations use strips of red paper with red hearts suspended from them, radiating from the chandelier to the wall. At intervals upon the wall hang large "gold" wedding rings, made of barrel hoops painted yellow. For the decorated table have a little doll dressed in a wedding gown, a long, full veil, carrying a banner on which is inscribed, "My Year."

One game that would be fun to play between girls is called "tag." In this game a row of chairs is placed down the center of the room, about a yard apart. Each girl chooses a boy as her opponent and they take places on opposite sides of a chair. When a signal is given each girl tries to catch her opponent by dancing him around the chair.

Refreshments are served the men sit down and the girls wait on them. Have ice cream, small cakes and coffee, or salad or chicken à la King, rolls and coffee.

A good start for leap year is the hat-trimming one. A table full of hat shapes and trimmings is provided, and the men are required to trim the hats. A prize is awarded to the man who makes the best looking hat.

Thanks, "Kensington"

Dear Cynthia—Kensington, whoever you may be, I thank you for answering my letter. I do not know whether you are male or female. But I would like to know. I may be mistaken; I may also be very young in years. But I have a question for you. I wish you would let us know to which species you belong. I need some one to help me. I am continually getting disappointed. I believe when I die I will have written across the top of my somestone "Disappointed." Would like to hear from you again. BOBBIE.

A Knock for "Star Dancer"

Dear Cynthia—In answer to "Star Dancer": In reference to your professed belief that slapping is the only convincing argument a girl can use. If you are so thick-headed and so ignorant of the first rules of common etiquette that only a slap will penetrate your conscience, then my only hope for you is that you get one of these lady truck drivers for a wife, and that she has no scruples for the weak which will prevent her knocking you down when you offend her.

If you are trying to find a girl whom you can respect, do you think that a cafe and dance halls are the best places to frequent by the really nice girls? They come about as frequently as diamonds in the coal mines.

And yet another thing, respect does not have to be acquired. The very moment you meet a girl worthy of it, it comes instantaneously. If you have never felt that current toward your present companions, my advice is to lose them and meet some real girls. If our civilization has so declined that girls must train to be pugilists, then Heaven help the rising generations! But the prizefighters to hold the esteem of their friends, and the sooner you find it out the better for you. INDIGNANT.

Marriage Laws

Dear Cynthia—Being one of your steady readers, I would be pleased to know whether it is possible for second cousins to marry, and in what states? DOUBTFUL.

The laws of some states forbid the marriage of first cousins—second cousins may marry in any state in the Union.

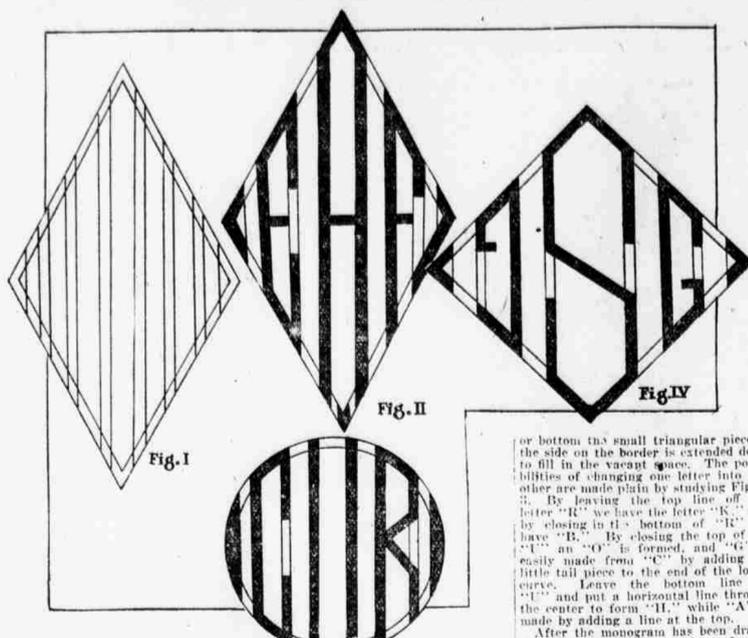

Why Does She Attract Them?

Dear Cynthia—I feel positive that you are a man, so probably you will be good at answering this question. Why is it that a girl of ordinary looks, of no accomplishments, and utterly devoid of style, can attract and charm men? The girl I have in mind has been on friendly terms with me for years, and every word I have written is the truth. She could not conceive of my being interested in her, and yet she has been engaged eight times that I know of. I am drifting from my subject. However, I am drifting from my subject.

Orchid is the color used in this charming georgette frock, and the embroidery is done in crystal beads. The distinctive ash which cascades down over the hip drapery is of American Beauty ribbon.

WHY NOT DESIGN YOUR OWN?

A monogram gives a personal and distinctive touch to any piece of linen, and the entire monogram means so much more than a single letter. If you will study carefully the diagram above, the designing may be accomplished at home and with very little labor, too. Figure 1 shows the outline or pattern upon which all the monograms are based. It makes no difference what shape is chosen, square, round or diamond, the same series of parallel lines forms the foundation on which any letter of the alphabet may be built. When you have decided on the shape and drawn the foundation of parallel lines, it is a simple matter to draw in the block letters desired. With a little study it will be possible to draw your own monogram on two parallel lines. Figure 2 shows the treatment of an open letter, "C" in this case. When the letter is not enclosed at the top or bottom the small triangular piece at the side on the border is extended down into the vacant space. The possibilities of changing one letter into another are made plain by studying Figure 3. By leaving the top line off the letter "C" we have the letter "K," and by closing in the bottom of "C" we have "B." By closing the top of the "C" an "O" is formed, and "G" is easily made from "C" by adding the little tail piece at the end of the lower curve. Leave the bottom line off "C" and put a horizontal line through the center to form "H," while "A" is made by closing in line at the top. After the monogram has been drawn on paper the pattern must be perforated by going all around it with the needle and stitching with a fine needle and stitch with no thread on the machine. The monogram is now ready to transfer to a piece of linen, which may be done by using the heat stamping paste which comes for this purpose. If desired the design can be transferred by means of carbon paper. Figure 4 shows tablecloths and dinner napkins a monogram for four inches high is considered correct. For pillow slips, tow napkins and towels a two-inch monogram is good.

They Write of Many Things to Cynthia

Sticks to Smacking

Dear Cynthia—In regard to N. Y. S.'s opinion on the argument we are having on smacking, I will again stick to my idea of smacking. This is your mistake, dear friend, for I don't make a continual habit of smacking. Yes, I smacked a young man in the face. I don't think I should do it again, but I will continue smacking until a fellow knows how to respect a lady when he meets one. Of course, you all boys should get personal and they take the hint, but on the other hand, on New Year's Eve things happen unexpectedly. Remember, if he is a "Dancer," he is earning his living that way, same as an actor earns his salary on the stage. I hope, N. Y. S., you don't get personal and they take the hint, but I am a lady and don't think there is any harm in smacking. For it sometimes takes a brick house to fall on some people's head before they take the hint. It is a nasty habit to smack. I know; but a fellow who is not good will laugh at a good girl who she tells him to behave. If you are someone, too, smack up, girls. What's your decision on that subject? How about it, Lieutenant B. D. and you, for them to take the girls home under the circumstances. M. K.

What Do the Readers Think About This Letter?

Dear Cynthia—What do you think of gentlemen who take girls out on New Year's Eve to a midnight party? They allow them to go home alone at 2:30 o'clock in the morning? Now the girls didn't actually make an appointment with them, but they met them accidentally. Of course, had they known they would be escorted home, they would not have accepted the invitation to the show, but naturally they took it for granted that they would be taken home. Now what I want to know is whether it was proper for them to take the girls home under the circumstances. M. K.

There is no explanation of this thing. It simply exists. The fact remains that men often see qualities in women that other women do not see. Men are very different from women who are not gifted with brains who have sufficient knowledge of men to claim them for a time, and some of all their lives. It does not seem as if you cared very deeply for the young man, however, or your other friends for that matter; if you did you would not question it.

Be Yourself

Dear Cynthia—Please tell us what to do, as you are very much broken. We are two girls and have been going with a crowd of fellows we like very much. Last night we were sitting in a movie, and one of the girls said something to the fellows that she didn't mean to say, but they took it as an insult. As we like this crowd very much, please tell us what to do, as they are very nice boys.

HEARTBROKEN

My dears, if because one person in your "crowd," as you call it, happens to say something that some one else does not like, you don't all have to be serious and put out a notice that the crowd that crowd is broken up the better.

Scolds "Anna C."

Dear Cynthia—Please publish the following few lines to "Anna C." whose letter appeared last week: "Anna C." What you need is a good tongue-lashing, if not something better or worse. You are the one to wake up. Really you have never thought what you are now doing.

What He Thinks of Cynthia

Dear Cynthia—How are you since the last time I've written you, and how is your family and the children? All very well? That is good. I presume you've been rather busy of late in that large office of yours. I might ask you to luncheon with me, but I fear a refusal. That would be about the best way to confirm my conception of who, what and where you are.

Cheer Up, "Lonesome, That's All"

Dear Cynthia—I read a letter from a girl signed "Lonesome, that's all," and I wish you would print the following answer to the girl: "I am a sailor and have been over in France for six months and just got back to this country November 19, and now since I came back here I never can get a chance to go out with the girls. I would like to know, of course, what a lot of differences to me, as every time I come out on liberty from the yard I always want to get a girl to go out and have a good time with. I can't make friends at all, so now dear "Lonesome, that's all," cheer up and some day you will be happy. What a child Virginia was, and yet no one could tell her anything.
