He made known his attitude after ing meeting of the sinking fund comnission in the city treasurer's office tolay. The meeting lasted from 9:30 yclock until noon, almost two hours enger than the general run of such gatheriugs.

In announcing his approval of investing the sinking fund surplus to the best advantage, Mr. Moore spoke of approximately $2,000,000 in cash, which is swallable now and which probably will be invested in the next city loan.

This plan of having the sinoking fund money earn bigger dividends than the small earnings now realized from the banks where it is on deposit has been advocated by the bureau of municipal research.

Stotesbury at Meeting

"There is no reason why the city return for its money as does a firm or private individual," said Robert J. Patprivate individual, said Robert J.
