

PLAN TO BROADEN CITIZENS' VISION

Welfare Department's Assistant Director Outlines Program for Social Improvement

MUST FORGET SNOBBERY

Making Philadelphians proud of Philadelphia even when in New York, London, Paris or any of the other boastful cities of this planet is one of the plans being worked out today by the new Department of Public Welfare under Mayor Moore.

In telling of this George E. Roth, assistant to Ernest L. Tussin, the director, said:

"The Department of Public Welfare should reflect the social conscience of the city of Philadelphia. By 'social conscience' I mean the kind of civic morale which takes pride in what Philadelphia has done, is doing and will do to make the city a healthy and attractive place to live in."

Faults to Be Cured

"Mental slouching, religious or factional jealousies, incapacity to play fair in appropriations, inability to see the whole city instead of only a part, social snobbery, smugness and other temperaments must go, if Philadelphia is to realize the kind of city that Mayor Moore has in mind."

"The Department of Public Welfare is fighting on the front line through another Argonne Forest. It cannot hope to make everything go according to schedule without, first of all, the confidence of the people, and, second, in the willingness of individuals to forget many past differences in a new drive for healthy, open ground ahead."

Bureau of Charities, Bureau of Correction, Bureau of Recreation, Bureau of Social Service—certainly come immediately after health, safety and clean streets in the immediate appeal to the people of this city.

"This is just a foreword for the departmental program is the third section directed to the task of making Philadelphians proud of Philadelphia, even when they are in New York or San Francisco, or London or Paris, or Boston or St. Louis, because of what it is and what it is doing."

FALLS ON DOG; IS BITTEN

Man Asleep in Chair, Slips to Floor,
Goes to Hospital

John Lampart, 4638 Paul street, was painfully injured last night when his pet dog bit him on the head and him about the face and hands, after Lampart, dozing on a chair, had fallen on the animal.

Lampart was sitting beside the fire half asleep, the dog asleep at his feet. Lampart was unable to make the dog relinquish his grip until he choked him almost to unconsciousness. Lampart was treated at the Frankford Hospital.

3 SOLDIERS SOUGHT HERE FOR MURDER

Trenton and New York Also
Combed for Slayers of Camp

STEAL AUTO AND THEN FLEE

Man Asleep in Chair, Slips to Floor,
Goes to Hospital

Philadelphia, Trenton and New York are being combed for three soldiers said to have murdered and robbed a jitney driver near Camp Dix early yesterday morning.

The murder and robbery occurred while the three men were being hauled from Trenton to Camp Dix in the jitney. The soldiers beat and robbed the driver and then stole his machine.

A dead man was John Wormwood, fifty-four years old, 45 Stanton avenue, Trenton. He was picked up on the road unconscious by another jitney part, dozing on a chair, had fallen on the animal.

driver and taken to the Camp Dix military hospital, where he died shortly after giving a description of the assailants.

Lieutenant C. A. Cooper, of the hospital staff at Camp Dix, happened to be in the jitney that found Wormwood's body huddled on the road to camp. His ministrations kept life in the man until the hospital was reached.

Death was due to a fractured skull and other injuries. Wormwood, before he died, said that the three soldiers had waited until the jitney was near the lonely road to Trenton before attacking and then, after getting him to stop the machine, beat him over the head with the butts of their revolvers. He didn't remember anything after that, but said that when he was attacked, he had a sum of money. None was found in his pocket.

A definite clue to the identity of the three soldiers is expected today, when the Camp Dix military police check up on the men who got leave of absence over Sunday.

Police in New Jersey, New York and this city have been furnished a description of the automobile and are keeping a strict lookout for it. All the small town authorities have been asked to keep a sharp watch for an automobile driven by three soldiers.

Wormwood was one of the best known jitney drivers working in and out of Camp Dix. He began operating a jitney in that district when the camp was being constructed.

Boy Hurt in Auto Crash

Thirteen-year-old Louis Rosini, 217 Monroe street, was severely cut by broken glass yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a trolley car at Twelfth and Jefferson streets. The glass windshield of the auto was shattered.
