This City, With Rest of Country,
Then Dry Under Prohibition
Acts

DRYS HOLD RALLY TONIGHT

Philadelphia, in common with the rest of these United States, goes "dry" at midnight under constitutional prohibition and the rigorous Volstead enforcement act.

The shock for "wet" votaries is lessened somewhat because wartime prohibition has been in force since last July. Bona fide guests at private homes may be given alcoholic liquors to drink on the premises.

A home, under the enforcement law, may be in a hotel, apartment house, boarding house, or club where a permanent residence is maintained.

Liquor may be kept in any storage room or locker of any home, including a club, if the storage room or locker is for the exclusive use of occupants of the home or for the bona fide guests.

Liquor may be moved if a person transfers his residence, provided a permit is obtained.

What You May Not Do
Liquor may not be taken in packages to hotels or restaurants to be consumed in public dining rooms.

Persons who live in clubs or hotels, maintaining permanent residences there, may keep liquor in their rooms.

The federal machinery for enforcement of prohibition has been virtually completed. Commissioners have been appointed for nearly all the states, and the country has been divided into nine districts, each headed by a supervisor.

Persons who live in clubs or hotels, maintaining permanent residences there, may keep liquor in their rooms.

WOMEN TO CONFER ON THRIFT IN HOME

Vice Chairmen of Savings Division Gather at Harrisburg to Lay Plans

LLOYD CALLS CONFERENCE

Harrisburg, Jan. 16.—Forty women, county vice chairmen of the savings division of the United States Treasury Department in the Third Federal district and representatives of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Women's Clubs, met today in the Penn Harris Hotel to lay plans for relieving the chaotic condition of household extravagance.

The idea of thrift is being taught in the public schools, women's clubs throughout the country have laid plans for economy at home and it is proposed to discuss the various thrift movements at today's conference with the idea in view of organizing into one continuous program a saving plan for all women in the district.

Miss Florence Dibert, of Johnstown, represents the State Federation of Women's Clubs, of which she is president. Among those to be present are Mrs. Walter J. Freeman, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Robert J. Rolston, of Fort Washington; Mrs. H. Hiestand, of Meadia; Mrs. Irwin M. James, of Doylestown; Mrs. Mabel Cronin Jones, of Harrisburg; Miss Katherine Guilford and Miss M. M. Charles, Lancaster; Miss Martha G. Thomas and Miss E. A. Johnston, West Chester; Miss M. R. Koons, York; Mrs. Estelle T. Steele, Mechanicsburg; Mrs. Edgar A. Weimer, Lebanon; Mrs. Paul Lachenmeyer, Lansdowne; Miss Edith Hughes, Wilmington, and Miss Rubin Corry, Riverton.

Agitation for abolition of the practice of licensing the sale of liquors did not come until 1847, resulting four years later in the enactment of prohibition laws in Maine, the first state to put prohibition into effect. Kansas was second in 1860, and North Dakota third, in 1889. Meanwhile, the movement had grown to such proportions that a national prohibition party was formed at a convention in Chicago, September 1, 1893.

Women, always in the forefront of the activity to stop the sale of alcoholic drinks, organized for a concerted fight after the famous women's crusade, 1873-4. Their association was later to become known throughout the world by the name of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, with a little white ribbon as its symbol.

Wave Began With Georgia
A powerful influence in the fight for prohibition came into existence in 1833 with the formation of the Anti-Saloon League. It is noteworthy that both these organizations had their inception in Ohio.

The modern wave of prohibition legislation began with Georgia in 1907. Since that time, the movement gained strength more rapidly than any other reform in the history of the world, so that thirty-three states already have prohibition by state action. Twenty-one adopted it by popular vote, and in the others by legislative measures. At the time the constitutional amendment was submitted, twenty-four of the forty-eight states, and considerably more than half of the territorial United States, had prohibition. In states where prohibition was not state-wide, it had been adopted under local option laws by many communities.
