TO MARK BOSTON MASSACRE Association Will Celebrate Anniversary of Famous Event

The Colored Protective Association of Philadelphia is planning an elaborate program to celebrate Friday, March 5, as the 100th anniversary of the Boston massacre, when Crispus Attucks, a negro, shed the first blood for American independence, according to an announcement made by the association today. The program for the anniversary, as tentatively planned, includes a meeting in Independence Square; a night meeting in the Academy of Music; the attendance of a delegation from Boston, and prizes in all the public schools for the best essays on "Crispus Attucks; or, the Boston Massacre."

CITY BUYS 4 WATER PUMPS Director Winston Signs $410,000 Queen Lane Station Contract

John C. Winston, director of public works, yesterday signed a contract with the Dravo-Doyle Co. for installation of four turbo-centrifugal pumps at the Queen Lane pumping station of the Bureau of Water. The contracts carried a total price of $410,000. The pumps will increase the capacity of the Queen Lane station 50,000,000 gallons daily, the additional supply to be furnished to the territory south of Calowhill street.

The Cop on the Corner

"TRY time I've sumpin' t' eat," says Maggie at the supper table last night. "I think o' Herbit Hoover," says Mike, who is a candidate for President 'n' what is his politics?" "He's worryin' 'n' pushin' a whole lot," says I. "Some says he's a liberal Democrat 'n' others claims he's a progressive Republican. 'Tis not known yet which 'n' has his lamps on the White House or no." "Well, I'm fr' him," says Maggie. "If Mather Hoover'll run on a platform promisin' cheaper eggs 'n' sugar there'll be a flood o' male 'n' female ballot-mark'd fr' him." "He listens like a good bot," agrees I. "B' sides feedin' Belgin 'n' mos' o' Yurrop, Hoover's celebrat'd fr' discoverin' th' ca-logy." "What is this ca-logy?" asks Maggie. "It's a sorta cousin t' a heat-unit whin' hines in fr' motor, sumpin' like a wate. 'Tis said cope 'n' all ether workin' min need 3150 o' thim calo-ries t' carry on th' day's work." "D'ye think Mike," asks Maggie anx'us like, "there's enuff o' thim calo-ries in th' chow I've been givin' ye?" "More than plenty," says I. "Hoover's himself says corn beef 'n' cabbage has in it enuff calo-ries t' run a steam engine. Lik' wise 'tis claim'd forty o' thim'll melt a pound o' ice." "Me fr' th' ca-logy," says Maggie. "Ye've givin' me a point'r on how t' make that stuck-up woman across th' street speak t' me whin I meet her in th' grocery store. 'Tis women 'round here calls her th' humin' ice berg." "What d'ye intend doin'?" asks I. "I'm goin' t' build a big mince pie," says Maggie, "n' pristin' her w' it. Take it fr' me, Mike, I'll cram it so full o' thim ca-ories there'll be enuff 'n' its pristin' t' give heat prostrastion 'n' Eskymo in Greenland."

WED ON PEACE SHIP, SHE SEEKS DIVORCE

Mrs. Barton Braley, Former Philadelphia Girl, Begins Action Against Poet Husband

ANNOUNCEMENT IS SURPRISE

A wedding on the Ford peace ship would appear to be the ideal of romance lovers, but in the case of Berton Braley, the poet, and Miss Marion A. Rubicam, a Philadelphia girl, it was just the opposite. For Mrs. Braley has brought suit for divorce. The action was filed in a New York court yesterday. No reasons are given. Friends of the couple believe it was due to conflict of artistic temperament, as Mrs. Braley is also a writer, but so far she is mum on the subject. Mr. Braley and Miss Rubicam were married on the Ford ship when it started on its eventful voyage on December 4, 1915. The couple were married by the Friends ceremony, with the captain of the ship performing the legal duties in connection with the event. Mrs. Braley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rittenhouse Rubicam, of Eleventh street and Chelten avenue, Oak Lane. She did newspaper work in this city for some time and later engaged in magazine writing in New York. Announcement of the divorce action came as a big surprise to friends of the couple in this city. It is while she was engaged in gathering material for her work that she met Mr. Braley, whose last collection of poems, "Songs of a Workday World," was dedicated to her. The young man, for whom many predicted a brilliant future, also came to New York to plug to and a larger opportunity for the development of his talents. He is the son of Judge and Mrs. Arthur B. Braley, of Madison. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin after attending the public schools of Madison. Later he engaged in newspaper work, but after "poetizing" for five years on a paper in the West, he gave up his job to come east. Among the best things he has done are "Songs of a Workday World," "All-wing Ballads" and "Songs of a Workday World."

BARTENDERS PLENTIFUL So Many Answered "Ad" That Professor is Looking for Jester

A. O. Michener, professor of history at the Northeast High School, is searching today for the jester who caused all of the idle bartenders in Philadelphia to call to see him and ask for jobs. The jester inserted an advertisement in which it was said that Mr. Michener, of Eighth and Lehigh avenue, wanted a number of bartenders to mix private stock drinks. Bartenders thought some one had found a way to dodge prohibition and a multitude sought the high school professor yesterday. It is expected that in the crowd were a few detectives.

Bishop Gallor to Speak Tonight

Bishop Thomas F. Gallor, president of the new executive council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will speak tonight in the Bellevue-Stratford Club. Colonel Sheldon Potter will be the toastmaster and Bishop Gallor, Bishop Rhinelander, Bishop Hall, of Vermont, and the Rev. Julian D. Handlin, of Newport, R. I., will be the other speakers. Ralph Kinder, organist of Holy Trinity Church, will have charge of the music.

PLAN NEW BUILDINGS

Divinity School Alumni Seek Fund of $2,000,000 for West Philadelphia Plans to raise a fund of $2,000,000 to be used for the erecting of a group of buildings for the Protestant Episcopal Divinity School in West Philadelphia, near Forty-second and Spruce streets, were discussed at the midyear meeting and the annual dinner of the divinity school in the Church House, Twelfth and Walnut streets, last night. A committee of fifty prominent laymen, of which Arthur E. Newbold is acting chairman, has undertaken the movement. Bishop Garland, chairman of the committee of boards, reported on plans for the new school. He delivered the principal address at the dinner, which was attended by 125 members and guests.

TO HONOR EPISCOPAL HEAD

The Rev. T. F. Gallor Will Be Guest of Church Club Tonight

The Rev. Thomas F. Gallor, president of the new executive council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, will be tendered a reception by the Church Club of Philadelphia this evening in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. This reception, which is the first extended to the new head of the council by any church club, will be attended by club members and by the laity and clergy of the diocese of Pennsylvania. Following the reception the annual dinner of the church club will be held. Colonel Sheldon Potter will be toastmaster and Bishop Gallor, Bishop Rhinelander, Bishop Hall, of Vermont, and the Rev. Julian D. Handlin, of Newport, R. I., will be the other speakers. Ralph Kinder, organist of Holy Trinity Church, will have charge of the music.

WOMEN OF SOCIETIES WILL INSTALL OFFICERS NEXT WEDNESDAY

The seven local reviews of the Women's Benevolent Association of the Maccabees, under chairman Miss A. E. Berli and Supreme Chaplain Miss Burdick, are working to make their annual installation of officers, display drill and entertainment at Lu Lu Temple next Wednesday evening a success. Miss Nellie E. Lounsbury, of Warren, Pa., will install the officers. Other supreme officers are expected and delegations of members from adjacent towns. The meeting will mark a new era upon which the membership in this city is entering, owing to the purchase of the association of the building at 1517 Girard avenue, in which all the local reviews will meet as alterations are complete.

HARRISON WALTON, TEACHER, IS DEAD

Was Public School Instructor for 54 Years—Principal at Rutledge

RESIGNED POST IN 1914

Harrison Walton, who was a public school teacher for fifty-four years and was formerly principal of the Rutledge School, died yesterday at the home of Dr. J. R. Hobensack, of 1706 Columbia avenue. Doctor Hobensack is his son-in-law. Born in Bucks County, Harrison Walton was born on a farm in Bucks county, August 11, 1845. His father was Salem Walton, a Quaker farmer of Warmistler, Bucks county, and his mother was a New England Norton. His forebears were the four Walton brothers who settled Byberry in 1695. Two of them were schoolmasters. Mr. Walton began teaching school in Warmistler when he was seventeen years old. He would not have had that post, he is quoted as saying, but for the fact that the boys who attended the school took a supreme dislike for the schoolmaster and threatened to ride him on a rail. That started Mr. Walton's career as a school teacher, and with the exception of one year, during which he conducted a store at Bainbridge and

Eleventh streets, he taught school continuously until February, 1914, when he resigned as principal of the Willow Grove School, at Seventh and Norris streets. More than forty-nine years of Mr. Walton's life were devoted to the students in Rutledge School. Tens of thousands of boys have gone through their youth under the guiding hand of this schoolmaster. A man without a university degree, he has been referred to as "D. A. C."—"Doctor of American citizens."

CONDUCTED NIGHT SCHOOL

Before taking the position of principal of the Rutledge School, the teacher took a position at the Willow Grove School where he served for two or three years. At various times during his young days he taught in the Rutledge public school and Millersville normal school, where he has received part of his education. Before taking up his position as principal of the Rutledge School, and while he was teaching in the Willow Grove school, he found time to help organize the Bainbridge Building Association in 1877, and was its treasurer for ten years. For twenty years he conducted night school as well as the day ones.

He was always a diligent student and in his leisure hours read history, biography and science. In summing up his life's work at one time, he said: "I never aimed to make 'my' boys specialists. I aimed to make them citizens."

School was over at the termination of his work at the Rutledge School, as far as his active work was concerned, but it is not yet over for the thousands of boys under whose destinies were shaped by the firm hand of the schoolmaster. He made men, real men out of boys—instilled into them the highest principles of citizenship and fortitude, decency and kindness to others. And so his "boys" remember him today. A branch of his family numbers George Walton, of Virginia, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and later chief justice of the state.

BULK OF ESTATE FOR FRIEND

Marian N. Elliott Willed $150,000 to Companion and Charities

After making bequests to charities amounting to $17,000, Marian N. Elliott, of 4818 Grissom street, in her will, filed today, leaves the bulk of her $150,000 estate to Eliza Jane Johnston, a companion, who will make a will providing for the distribution of the property to charities after her death. The bequests to charities are: Home for Incubables, $10,000; Methodist Hospital, $5000; Women's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, $1000; Frankford Hospital, $300; and the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, Frankford, $500.

Harry D. March, of 4101 Chester avenue, left $1000 to the First Church of Christ, Walnut street near Fortieth, and $1000 to the Second Church of Christ, 5445 Green street. The remainder of his $2000 estate goes to relatives.

The will of Florence W. Holbrook, of Queen and King streets, gives $1000 to the Episcopal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and $500 to the Episcopal Hospital. The remainder of the estate goes to relatives. The Rev. William Greenough, of 1712

Enough for 4 1/2 Million

If they live no better than the average, the million Delineator families spend $833,829 for food every day in the year. But as Delineator families are more prosperous than the average, instead of spending 304 million yearly, they probably spend more than twice that for food. Here, indeed, is a market for the manufacture of foodstuffs.

The February Furniture Sale. A house only becomes a home when furnished. And the home you love is one on which you have spent many happy hours of thoughtful planning. Each piece of Furniture must be carefully selected to fit in with your plans.

Philadelphians' deep interest in their homes has perhaps led to our city being so beautifully called "The City of Homes". Home-makers will appreciate our stock of well made, distinctive Furniture. There is nothing ordinary here. Each piece is gracefully substantial and reminiscent of the work of masters of other ages. Many, indeed, are exact copies of the craftsmanship of various periods.

The February Furniture Sale will soon be a reality. On Monday, January 26th, all of our Furniture will be ready for inspection and selection. The tag on each piece will show a substantial and genuine reduction. Be sure to visit Darlington's before you make your final selection of Furniture.
