

PEACE COMPROMISE AWAITING FINAL TEST

Tomorrow's Bipartisan Conference Will Reveal if Composing Differences is Impossible

Washington, Jan. 28.—Before Senate leaders are ready to throw up the sponge and admit that further compromise negotiations on the peace treaty in the bi-partisan conference are futile, they will make another effort tomorrow to bring the two sides closer together than they have been in the bi-partisan conference and the Monroe doctrine.

With the whole parley threatened with collapse by the widened gap between the Democratic and Republican conferees on the two issues involved, they agreed to grant a breathing spell over today so that they may make an inventory of their compromise stock.

If the conferees fail to draft an acceptable compromise, the floor of the Senate probably will be the scene of another bitter fight on treaty ratification. In answer to the Democrats' expressed intention of carrying the treaty back to the Senate chamber in lieu of a compromise program, the Republicans declared that nothing could come of such a move, as the Senate would resume its old lineup and sit tight.

But for Article X and the Monroe doctrine provisions, Senate leaders declared they would be able to reach a quick settlement of their differences, as virtually all other points of contention have been agreed upon tentatively. In reaching agreement on the other questions it was pointed out that both sides have ground, the Democrats accepting some of the Republican reservations without change, while the Republicans agreed to changes in others as requested by the Democrats.

Mr. Hitchcock undoubtedly scored yesterday. It was expected the Democrats would present a flat refusal to the Republican program of declining to alter in form or principle the reservations on Article X and the Monroe doctrine. There were protests in the Senate chamber when the bipartisan committee met, but they carefully avoided any threat of withdrawal from the committee and brought matters to a head after two hours of discussion, mainly on Article X, by asking if the Republicans would support a motion to bring the treaty on the floor of the Senate. The Republicans opposed that, and asked for an adjournment of the conferees until Thursday to see if some form of procedure could not be worked out.

The draft of the suggested compromise on the Article X reservation as made public by Senator Hitchcock resembles in many ways the suggestion put forward by William Howard Taft as the solution of the Article X deadlock. It omits as he would do the words "or to interfere in controversies between nations, whether members of the league or not under the provisions of Article X" and makes special exception of the use of the economic boycott as provided for in Article XVI, another point to which Mr. Taft called attention.

Kane Quits Office, Walnut Resigns

Mr. Kane's successor is named, but will do nothing to embarrass him. For that reason, it is impossible to say when we will retire. It will be at his convenience, and that may mean that we will remain in the United States district attorney's office for some time.

Wants to Practice Again
"As far as I am concerned, I am merely seizing this opportunity to get back to my law practice."
A statement will be issued by Mr. Kane later today. He hopes his assistants who are resigning are not doing so out of any courtesy toward him personally, and that their action is dictated entirely by their desire to enter the practice of law again.
As for himself, he said he does not feel he is superannuated yet, and will resume his law practice as soon as he receives word from Washington that his resignation has been accepted.

Mr. Kane has five assistants. One of these, Edward S. Kremp, will not resign. He was appointed by Mr. Kane on the recommendation of Mr. Palmer. "I will stand by Mr. Palmer," said Mr. Kremp yesterday. "I am in support of every move he has made so far. If the administration adopts a policy and I am in its employ it is my duty to go along with it."
"It does not seem to me that the men arrested in the recent raids have been done any great injustice. And as for their families suffering, that is something every prosecuting attorney has to face. I do not see why any of us should have to resign because of professional courtesy. All of the assistants are appointees of the attorney general, and the rest that there is a change in

SOCIALISTS DENY ENDORSING SOVIET

Counsel for New York Assemblymen Declares "Outcast" Wrote Letter

CANDIDATES QUIT PARTY
By the Associated Press
Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Denial that Socialists had pledged support to L. C. A. R. Martens, Russian soviet "ambassador" or had indorsed plans for establishment in America of the soviet system of government, was made today by counsel for the defense at the trial before the Assembly Judiciary committee of the five suspended Socialist assemblymen charged with disloyalty.

They were struck out by a letter introduced yesterday, addressed to Martens, signed "Rebecca Dupay" and purporting to be the sentiments of the Socialist organization in the Eighth Assembly district of New York, represented by Assemblymen Louis Waldman, one of the defendants.
"Continuance of the present situation is a menace to the city both from the business and the social points of view. Instead of expanding, utilizing the opportunities that the next few years will present to Philadelphia, the city will shrink.

"Some of our best workers are now looking for positions in other places where they can house their families properly. Others are putting up with living conditions they would not have tolerated four years ago. It was something to accept these conditions temporarily as a sort of war service."
It is quite another to accept them as the permanent order.

Housing Suggestions
"The Housing Association has two suggestions:
"First, That the new city administration at once make a careful study of the undeveloped areas with a view to determining where extension of public services will result in the erection of the greatest number of small houses. That at the same time it complete the study, begun by Chief Albright as the instance of the Housing Association, showing the number and character of sewerage streets in built-up sections of the city.
"With this information as a basis, the city should then adopt a program of extension covering several years, at the end of which time the built-up streets should all be sewerage and extensions in new areas should be proceeding at a rate equal to the demand.

"Hastened extension of public utilities results in waste, which we cannot afford. Inadequate extension results in speculation and attempts to use political pull. Extension in undeveloped areas is easier than in built-up areas, but because selfish interests are all that war, but even more because many old streets are very narrow or of the dead-end variety, and so cannot be open to city plans. These difficulties can be overcome. The important thing is to begin.
"Second, That private investors take a broad view of the matter and do their share in city building. Without more houses, and good houses, the city cannot realize its opportunities. As a first step the Housing Association suggests the formation of large house-building companies to supplement the operative builders, which will undertake operations on a large enough scale to enable them to employ the best talent, secure the best accommodations from land owners, banks, dealers in building materials and practicing the economies possible in large-scale production.

"Such companies should have a provision in their charters limiting their net dividends to 8 per cent, so as to put out the speculative element. The primary purpose of such companies is to build Philadelphia, but at the same time they should provide a fair return on the investment. Manufacturers and other employers should be large stockholders in such companies."
Sign Blank Resignations
Testimony to support the allegation that the Socialist party required its candidates for public office to sign a blank resignation before election was given by Mayor George R. Luinn, of Schuylkill.

Socialists' Plea Denied
Mr. Stedman's mention of a split in the Eighth Assembly district followed a line he took yesterday when, denying that the Socialists had introduced the program of violence outlined in the manifesto adopted at the Communist International in Moscow, he declared that at that time the Socialists were meeting in Chicago there also was in progress a convention of Communists, "between whom there is a clearly marked distinction."
Chairman Louis M. Martin, of the committee, denied Mr. Stedman's motion.

Representative Kelly Says Failure to Enforce Prohibition is Treason

FAVORITE SON PLAN of G. O. P. Broken

It is well to avoid the appearance of being a merely local candidate.
Well to Wait for "Lightning"
It is well to wait for the lightning to strike. This is the view of Governor Allen's friends. It is probably the view that animated Governor Coolidge's most recent statement. Perhaps it is the motive of Governor Spruille.

With Governor Goodrich, of Indiana, the situation is different. Goodrich was merely a machine proposal. There was never the slightest prospect of his nomination. He is not popular in his own state.
He was invited to the race to keep Wood from getting the Indiana delegation. He withdrew from it because several of the Indiana congressmen would not sign a letter indorsing his candidacy. His weakness was revealed at the outset. He wasn't really even a favorite son.

His withdrawal helps Wood, but the prospects are still that the two Indiana senators, New and Watson, will control the state delegation against Wood without the aid of a favorite son. New is a warm personal friend of Senator Harding. Watson is a friend of Senator Penrose.
Roosevelt Forces Split
What helps them and many others similarly placed, including the two senators from New Jersey, is the unexpected strength of Senator Johnson. His entrance into Indiana splits the Roosevelt forces. The radicals, who might have voted for Wood because of his association with Roosevelt, will vote for Johnson.
His chances of carrying Indiana and New Jersey, too, appear about as good as Wood's. The chances of the organization electing un instructed delegates over both of them appear best of all.

Senator Johnson has done much to break up the favorite-son movement, first by cutting into the Wood support and making the favorite-son tactics unnecessary from the machine point of view and unwise from the point of view of men like Coolidge and Sprull; and, second, by refusing to respect the favorite-son tradition and determining to enter every state where he had a chance irrespective of whether it had a favorite son or not.
Johnson's policy seems to be to make a demonstration of his popular strength. If he can't be nominated, and it is pretty certain that he can't, he may, at least, be the Bryan of the Republican party, the radical who must be consulted before a Republican nomination is made. He and Borah appear to be planning to play the same role in the convention that they have been playing in the Senate during the treaty deliberations.

Harding Shows Way Out
It was Senator Harding who first perceived the necessity of abandoning the favorite-son attitude. He did not take himself out of the race, but he declined the immunities of a favorite son. He declared Ohio open to all contestants.
He evidently felt that he could not
