"That Lawyer on the Other Side Is Only Splitting Hairs"

said a bystander to a brother lawyer in the courtroom where a case was pending.

The judge on the bench seemed to think it was a vexatious and frivolous use of time for the learned and honorable gentleman to dwell upon presumptions instead of facts.

The subtle and minute views of a logician are often tiresome if not unintelligible to a majority of most audiences.

This page serves its purpose best by a simple, truthful statement, avoiding inconsistencies and improbabilities.

Pomposity, spoken or printed, and unintelligibleness in advertising is confusing, if not misleading.

A FEW fine evening gowns in the Women's Fashion Salons show how charming is the present fancy for black tulle and black net.

Here is a gown with the net over silver cloth; another is altogether of net with a sapphire velvet girdle; another black net has iridescent beads upon it. Black Chantilly over black charmeuse and white filet over black charmeuse are both pretty variations of this idea.

Prices of such gowns are $125 to $275. (First Floor, Central)

Exquisite Beaded Handbags From France

Spring Exposition and Sale of Silks

VERYONE knows of the unexampled scarcity of siller in the scarcity of silks in the market and the unprecedented prices to which raw silk and all silk manufacturing costs have risen.

Yet, in the face of this scarcity and in spite of the extraordinary costs, we are able to put before you these beautiful new Spring-fashion silks of quality and durability unquestioned at prices that for equal quality can hardly be matched.

It is an occasion that we call to our customers' particular notice because of its importance as an investment opportunity.

If you are going to need fine silks at any time during the next several yearsand everybody is-our very best judgment is that you should buy them in this sale,

We call particular attention, likewise, to the unusual beauties of the new Spring dress silks, meeting every fashion demand of the moment. They are in great variety and their prices are in nearly every instance far below the market.

REMINDER to all lovers of the camera—the Fourteenth Annual Exhibition of Photographs takes place March 1 to 13th, 1920, and entries for it close Saturday, February 7, 1920.

February's First Business Day Will Start the Good Work of Sending Home the Goods From the February Furniture Sale

TO HAVE the goods that people want; to have them in the largest supply that can be found anywhere and at the lowest prices safe for people to pay—we will back that formula against all others for the making of a sale.

We have tried it.

We have been following it for years, and even if we ourselves had any doubt about it or any prejudice against it, how could such doubt or prejudice stand in the face of what we know to be the direct and inevitable result of holding strictly to it? And the greatest and most convincing result in our experience is the Wanamaker half-yearly sale of furniture.

We have made this February, 1920, sale from the same old formula, and we shall never try to make a sale after any other until we have discovered a better one.

First of all, to have the goods! If you have been here on any one of the three days of advance showing you should know whether or not we have the goods. If you have yet to see them, we are willing to be judged by what we have to show you.

The Furniture Is the Thing

It is a condition of life that when a person needs a particular article, whether it be a stick-pin or a pair of tongs, no words, excuses or explanations will serve as a substitute. Excuses and explanations may be interesting, but they don't fill the bill, they don't meet the actual need. The only thing that will meet it is the particular thing that people want, and in a furniture sale the furniture is the thing.

This February Furniture Sale is pre-eminently a sale of great quantities, fundamentally a sale of dependable qualities and inevitably a sale of all-round safety for everybody.

It is a sale of double safety—safe goods and—what is very important to remember this year—safe prices.

Now is a time to beware of startling prices. People who succumb to them will eventually be startled in another way when they discover the inferior quality that made so alluring a price. Without egotism or selfishness it can be said that no store in America can sell furniture for less than Wanamaker's—at least, not furniture of the Wanamaker

In this sale the saving on a great proportion of our furniture is 10 per cent, but it is a saving from an originally below-the-market price, and it is a saving backed by actual merit in the goods.

After thirty or more years of furniture selling a store would naturally do one of two things-know what the public demands or pass out of existence. We have done the first-mentioned thing, and we KNOW that what the public wants is furniture of character and reliability; the kind that a self-respecting store is willing to sell and a self-respecting home-maker willing to buy.

That is the kind, and the only kind, we have in this sale, and there is full and plenty of it at the lowest prices, quality considered.

Monday we begin to send home the goods, and the great sale, having struck its stride, goes ahead full speed.

Half Yearly Sale of Bedding

This is an event that comes only twice every year, in connection with the Great Furniture Sales. This year it embraces all our stocks of mattresses, pillows, bolsters and bedsprings at reduced prices.

All of these are goods of our own regular standard kind warranted for quality, service and cleanliness. No other kind of bedding is worth buying, notwithstanding that it may seem cheaper. The only kind worth saving on is the kind that has nothing left out of it to meet the reduction.

Wanamaker bedding is as good as it has always been, and that is good enough.
