Evening Public Tedger PUBLIC LEDGER COMPANY

CTRUS H. K. CURTIS. PASSINENT is H. Ludington, Vice President; John C. Secretary and Tressurer; Philip S. Collins Williams, John J. Spurgeon, Directors EDITORIAL BOARD

DAY'D E. SMILEY ..... Chairman JOHN C. MARTIN ... General Business Manager Published daily at Penne Lenera Radding.
Independence Square, Philadelphia
Under Toke 200 Metropolitah Tower
ART YORK 200 Metropolitah Tower
ARTAGO 100 Fullerten Publisher
ARTAGO 1202 Tribone Building CHICAGO NEW BUREAUS:

WASHINGTON BUREAU

N. L. COr. Pennsylvania Ave. and Life St.
N. L. Cor. Pennsylvania Ave. London Times

The Eurnisa Penire Langue is served to sub-release in Philadelphia and surrounding towns at the rate of twelve (12) cents per week, payable to the carrier. to the carrier.
By mail to points outside of Philadelphia, in the United States, Canada, or United States possessions, postage free, lifty 50 cents for month.
Bir (80) dollars per year, brashle in advance, Te all foreign countries one (81) dollar per month. Notice Subscribers wishing address changed ast give old as well as new address.

BELL, 2000 WALNUT REISTONE, MAIN 2000 Address all communications to Evening Public

Member of the Associated Press MUST FINANCE THEMSELVES

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all noise dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper, and also the local news withished therein. All rights of republication of special disvatches herein are also reserved

Be Available to Relieve Old

GUFF FROM GAFFNEY FROM the eloquent epicedium delivered by Councilman Joseph P. Guffney, leader of the Left, over the new Council's salary roll we cull the following choice expressions as worthy of preservation:

Philadelphia, Saturday, January 31, 1920

Steam rollering Valet secretary for presi-Nent Soft job for a solder of Pat lobs Political

Poppygook languagenced political

Not that we would intimate that these terms were original with Mr. Gaffneyfor be it, for they have a strangely familiar sound. But they are interesting chiefly as showing a state of mind on his part that we venture to assert would never have been suspected of the genial, suave and usually dignified gentleman who used to function as the chairman of the omnipotent finance committee in the old Councils.

From mere reformers-jaundiced-eyed. meticulous, inquisitive, suspicious reformers who were a pest to hard-working regulars accustomed to obeying orderssuch testy utterances were to be expected in the past. They were the stock in trade of the members scornfully known to all the handy boys as chronic kickers, but we never expected to sec Mr. Gaffney cast urbanity to the winds and indulge in

Well, well, times change, and men change with them. Plainly it must be very much less comfortable to be Left than Right. Yet it used to be a motio of sturdier times in the City Hall game never to let your winning opponent see how painfully defeat galled you.

We mourn for Mr. Gaffney's lost savoir faire.

A VARE MAN

MOTERS may vote and reformers may aspire, and the critics may rage and the public may hope, but it will be a long time before politics in this city can be made altogether free of a scourge that is as deep rooted as typhoid and as hard to fight as boll weevils

Chief Hepburn, of the Bureau of Street Cleaning, had startling proof of all this when, while the city wondered why dirt and disease-laden debris remained on big and little thoroughfares, he found enlightenment in the frank confession of an inspector who said bluntly: I'm a Vace man | 12 be here when and Mayor Moore are gone. If Senator Vare tells me to do anything I'll do it if have to go much on the ash cart in-

This man was discharged after he had been accused of a refusal to report fiagrant violations of the street-cleaning contracts. His name ought to be published. And his statement of motives and principles should be largely engraved somewhere in a conspicuous place where voters might read it when they are disposed to wonder what has been the matter with Philadelphia.

ENDING A FERRY ANNOYANCE

A WELCOME removal of a penalty on preparedness is contained in the trains in the Camden station must wait not only for the connecting ferryboats. time tables, but also for any preceding boats that may be delayed.

Under the old system passengers onclowed with a special zeal for promptitude were most unfairly handicapped. If their boats, boarded ahead of time, happened to be late their trains pedantically and inconsiderately steamed out of the station according to schedule.

mendable, it serves also to accentuate the difficulties of best and rail connections. There will to no accessity for the trains | gst possible time. to leave the Camden terminal behind time when the trolleys whisk over the Delaware madge. Responsibility will then rall dure by on the individual passenger, be his tendencies dilatory or

DEMOCRATIC REPARTEE

"UNDERTAKER!" shouted Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, at Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, after a doleful reference to the Commoner's work within his "Murder!" snarled Mr. Bryan over half the country, in answer to Governor Edwards, when he wished to define in one drendful word the result of labor done for this same party by Mr. Edwards and other "wets."

Both gentlemen seem to agree by inference that their party is done in. Now and then you will find a Democrat who has an uncanny talent for clear discerament, PEACE-LOVING MILLINERS

UCH as the call from New York to Philadelphia for a homely girl to ow off pretty hats for the Retail Milinvitation had at least the virtue of ignoring old rivalries. "Uglification" is not sure for new improve-realm of Carroll's Alice. We are quite content to be bracketed with New York when it comes to a shortage of unattractive damse The enforced conclusion is either that the milliners did not want any models at all or that they feared a request for fair asses might reopen the world war. For there are precisely as many hamlets. towns, cities, states, nations and continents with the prettiest girls on earth as there are hamlets, towns, cities, states, nations and continents. The council of the League of Nations, whatever its themselves to the situation. scope, wouldn't dare touch any competitive aspects of this topic. True, there are certain grudgingly accepted conventions regarding the comeiness of the ladies of Cadiz, Seville, Arles, Burmah, Tahiti, Caucasian Georgia and the Marquesas. But these egends are not convincing to Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, Louisville and New Orleans. We doubt even if they are convincing to Boston.

On the whole, it seems better for the milliners to have been merely rude than the instruments of a fierce belligerency.

EUROPEAN GOVERNMENTS

And the United States Must Practice Economy So That Private Funds May

World Industry

SECRETALY GLASS'S inference that the American people are not willing to tax themselves to pay the interest on the debt of European nations is based on a proper understanding of the state of mind on this side of the ocean.

The European nations already owe the United States Government $9,450,000,000 on which they are unable to pay the interest. This money either has been borrowed by the government from the American people or raised by taxation. But it is a debt owed by the American Government and it must be carried until such time as the European nations discharge it. The suggestion has been made that we cancel it in the interest of world solveney

Along with this suggestion comes the preposition of the Chamber of Commerce f the United States that a group of American representatives of commerce and finance confer with a similar group of Europeans for the purpose of discovering how much more goney Europe needs from this country to save it from bankruptey.

But there is no disposition here to put up more public money for the use of the European governments. As Secretary Glass points out, those governments cannot be controlled from Washington and we can have no control over the expenditure of money lent to them. While the gravity of the financial situation of Europe is admitted, the secretary holds that the governments over there must adjust their financing to their resources and that the funds for the industrial rehabilitation of the fighting nations must be raised by the ordinary processes of private financing.

Arrangements for such financial aid have already been made by the Edge law. which authorizes the formation of foreign trade corporations to advance money to European business men who wish to purchase American products and to float here in the form of debenture bonds the loans thus made. This plan relieves the government of financial responsibility and it provides a way for facilitating international trade.

Glass's objections to the use of public money to relieve Europe a definite and positive policy of economy in the use of public funds for domestic purposes. But Congress does not seem to be devoting that attention to the conservation of the financial resources of the nation that conditions demand.

The interest on the national debt now amounts to about a billion dollars a year. Advecates of compulsory military training for the youth are attempting to secure the passage of a bill which will call for another billion dollars annually to carry out its provisions.

A group of western senators and representatives is working for a loan of $250,000,000, on which the interest at a high rate would have to be paid, for the reclamation of arid and waste lands. The congressmen accustomed to spending money by the billion during the war regard this as a trivial sum, and are astonished at their moderation in asking for so little. They have lost their sense of values and their sense of proportion order of Regional Director Baldwin that just as many of the business men who were drafted into government work during the war have found themselves whose departure is particularized in the | temperarily disqualified to do private

The situation was described by an engineer who had been supervising con- for there is a disposition to think of the struction work when he said that he no longer knew the value of a dollar. He with the plague that a year ago swept the had been ordered to push his work to completion regardless of the cost, so he had been concentrating his mind on resuits and not on anything else. It was While, however, the new ruling is com- not necessary for the government to earn money dividends on the capital invested. All it wanted was a product in the short-

> But private business cannot be conducted in this way. Neither can public business be long managed without disaster unless serious attention is given to the relation of the value of a product to the money spent for it.

The western congressmen have forced the paring down of the rivers and harbors bill, while they insistently demand that a much larger sum be used for the socialistic projects of land reclamation in sparsely populated states. Such a provincial view ought not to prevail. Yet the states of Idaho, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and Montana, with a total population no larger than that of the city of Philadelphia, have ten men in the Senate committed to the reclamation projects, while there are only six senators interested in the development of the Delaware

It should be obvious that when Congress has to cut down its appropriations it should not diminish the amounts spent to penefit large populations while it increased the amounts asked for by small groups of people. If appropriations are to be scaled down-and every one seems to admit that they must be-they should be scaled down with some regard to the populations affected.

ent time. The war loans have not been digested. They are clogging the banks and absorbing money that should be freed for the use of ordinary business. Men bought the bonds under pressure. Many of them who might have paid for them gradually out of their current incomes have spent their incomes for other purposes and are still allowing the banks to carry the bonds for them. Some of the banks have begun to demand the payment or reduction of the loans, and business men are finding it difficult to adjust

There will be trouble and uncertainty until these government securities have been paid for out of the earnings of the people and have ceased to become a burden on the banks. And until this time comes it will be virtually impossible to float a government loan for any purpose whatsoever. If we cannot borrow money for national improvements we cannot borrow it to lend to Europe for business purposes.

RELIEF BY FOOD DRAFTS

FEAR of the red tape which sometimes cribs and confines humanitarian enterprises need not be entertained regarding the system of food drafts for Europe, which are now purchasable in Philadelphia and other American financial cen-

Mr. Hoover recently announced that as soon as shipping conditions permitted the relief administration would enable individuals to purchase these drafts at banks, and that the European friend or relative in whose favor it was drawn could cash the slip in for food as soon as it reached him by mail. Provisions are now stored in great warehouses in Warsaw, Hamburg, Vienna, Budapest and Prague, American cargo vessels will keep them supplied.

The whole process is refreshingly simple and explicit. Americans who, in view of the magnitude of the distress in Europe, may have felt personally impotent can now easily indulge their generous impulses. Three banks in this city already have the drafts for sale. Similar institutions are to follow suit.

A $10 draft will supply the beneficiary with twenty-four and a half pounds of flour, ten pounds of beans, eight pounds of bacon and eight cans of milk. The costly trimmings of relief drives are economically eliminate: Laudable in spirit as these were, the change is stimulating. and it ought to be inspiring to Americans who know of specific cases of suffering.

REVEAL FLETCHER'S FINDINGS

CRITICISM of the administration's unintelligible Mexican policy frequently meets with the retort that the general public is not in possession of sufficient facts to argue the question. This is perhaps true, but the fact in itself constitutes an exceedingly weak defense.

Correct information about Mexico is sorely needed in this country. The State Department, however, pursues a policy of mystery and concealment, and in the past has even requested the exemption of the whole topic from journalistic discussion.

If this attitude was defensible during the critical war period it is so no longer. For this reason, among others, the withholding from the public of Ambassador Fletcher's resignation letter seems un-

Mr. Fletcher may have summed up some significant facts concerning the Carranza government and the effects upon t of our own government's vacillation.

Disclosure of his findings would enable Americans, quite apart from partisan derations, to obtain some intelligent and specific view of Mexican affairs. The public has no desire either to criticize in ignorance or to be merely ignorant and Miss Pauline Gold Hymen Discouraged mark, manager of the women's service sec tion of the railroad administration, in her annual report to Director General Hines. says $1,805 women are still in the railroad service and that women will undoubtedly progress further in all forms of work. Which suggests that in 1950 Mr. Paul Silvermark superintendent of the municipal creeke and employment bureau, may report to the Mayor that the number of men enrolled for general housework has increased to 'steen thousand. while the number of those who are taking the course for the care of small children has grown at so gratifying a rate as to encourage the hope that they may in the near future fit themselves for the station in life in which the stronger and more competent sex has

There is a great deal May Work With the in a name, Shakes-Rose; Not With Flu peace to the contrary notwithstanding. New York has more cases of "flu" this winter disease was labeled "flu" and public excite than last. But in October, 1918, a dread ment was in a measure allayed. This year the penalty is being paid for the cupher or "grippe" prevailing as identical Condemnation of "Al-Time Will Tell bion's perfidy in Persin should be tempered by the fact that strictures stress alleged world-dissatisfaction with the present treaty and work the light pedal on the indusrial and political conditions that made a bargain, admittedly bordering on a protectorate, perhaps a present necessity. It might be well to reserve judgment until all the cards are on the table

Lord Leveshulme in an interview in New York said he favored prohibition for England. He added that it would enable Great Britain to pay all her debts in five sears. Here is one man who was not carried into the House of Lords by beer. He was washed in with sonp.

of the near future is tempered by the knowledge that it is an English combination that as the enterprise in hand and not an Ameri The Maryland Legislature is considering the making of a law requiring four days to clapse between the issuance of a license and

Satisfaction in the fact that a London

New York airline is one of the possibilities

the performance of the marriage ceremony. This is a cruel blow to Elkton and Dan A Japanese acquitted of murder in Los Angeles is paying board to the sheriff for the privilege of remaining in jail. This is disquieting. It throws doubt on the declaraion that the way of the transgressor is hard.

There is a girl to a New York hospital whose specialty is teaching babies to smile The tragedy concealed in the fact is that there are babics who need to be taught,

WOODWARD LOOKS FORWARD

New Secretary of Internal Affairs Has Force of Field Agents Collecting Figures'Concerning the Industries of the State

By GEORGE NOX McCAIN SECRETARY OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS WOODWARD is a very forehanded official. The spirit of the new dispensation at Harrisburg looms large before him.

His latest innovation is one that is certain to arouse the interest and co-operation of every textile manufacturer in Philadelphia and southeastern Pennsylvania. He has es tablished an office for his bureau of statistics in this city. It isn't a large, commodious, well-furnished and elaborately equipped headquarters. Not by any means. It is a room with a desk and a few chairs that he has commandeered in the suite of the Work men's Compensation Bureau. There are no clerks, stenographers, secre taries or messengers. It is a business office, and will be open for business only about two days in the week. In this respect it differs from many other political offices, which usually are open daily to give jobholders omething to do and a place to go. Here is the verbal blueprint of the secretary's scheme.

THE Department of Internal Affairs main-I tains a statistical bureau, which in turn employs a staff of field agents. It is the duty of this staff to collate all available figures concerning the industries of the state amount of production, cost and everything of interest pertaining to work and wages.

M. Hoke Gottschall is chief of the bureau. He is the product of a wide search for brains and competency. He's a college man, with ideas of organization acquired through conwith practical politics. He was fo year's private secretary to Mayor E. V. Bab ock, of Pittsburgh.

Any young man who has been trained it the Pittsburgh school of politics has no need of a post-graduate course in Harrisburg or Philadelphia. I have known Mr. Gottschall since his sophomore days in college, and he is a man worth knowing. He was appointed present position the first of the year. and already, as the late General Thomas J Stewart would remark. "he's got things run

The statistical field agents have heretofore been reporting to headquarters in Harris-On occasions they had to go up to Harrisburg on business. It cost time and the state's money and trouble. Hereafter they will stick on the job.

Once or Twice a week one of Mr. Gott-schall's deputies will come to Philadelphia. meet the field agents, receive their reports. map out their work and issue instructions on the ground. The advantages of the new system are self-apparent. Instead of a bunch of field agents running up to Harrisburg. Harrisburg comes to them. All of which indicates that M. Hoke Gottschall is on to his job.

A NOTHER evidence of the perspicacity of Secretary Woodward is that when he requires an expert he goes where experts are to be found. When he needed an apostle of tongue and pen to keep the municipalities of the state posted on the vast and varied functions of the department, he selected a news-paper expert in the person of Robert T. Gor-Gorman can talk as well as write In his dual capacity he is another asset of

As I have aforetime said, every department at Harrisburg is handicapped by a lack of publication facilities. Reports are held up for years. They are out of date before they are in print. The publication system

But Messrs, Woodward, Gottschall and Gorman will bridge the difficulty-in a way. It is proposed every three or four months bulletins in pamphlet form of the work of the statistical department. They will be up to date and available to every one interested. Just now the big statistical drive is on with this great Philadelphia industry. The action of the Department of Internal Affairs is a long step forward in efficiency

 $M_{
m the~bureau~of~accidents~of~the~Public}^{
m Y~FRIEND~John~P.~Dononey,~chief~of}$ Service Commission, is convinced of two things, he tells me, viz., that we are entering upon the horseless age and that the number of reckless fools is increasing out of proportion to the increase of population in

And he cites figures in proof of his conictions.

It is the business of the bureau of which Mr. Dohoney is the head to investigate every allway and trolley accident that occurs any there in the state. He knows, therefore that he is talking about.

The big majority of grade-crossing accients were to automobiles. Grade-crossing accidents to teams were 50 per cent less han the preceding year; while 256 occupants f automobiles were injured, only forty-seven riders in horse drawn vehicles met with in-

Of all the persons injured at crossings, 91 er cent were struck at crossings protected gates. This would seem almost inexcable were it not, as Mr. Dohoney points of, that 91 per cent, 7 per cent less than he entire number, courted fate by crawling inder the gates.

The pathetic side of this exhibit of crimnal negligence and idiotic disregard of peronal safety is presented in the statement that four crossing watchmen were killed and thirteen injured in the attempt to keep the ools from rushing into the arms of death. While Mr. Dohoney's assumption is correct that the number of fools is increasing, it is also apparent that the fool-killer is on

WALTER T. MERRICK, former naval officer of this port, befted his 250 pounds of smiling personality into the city yester-It was the first breathing spell, he pformed me, that he had had in weeks,

The Honorable Walter is, as usual, in olities up to his eyes. He is a candidate for Congress up in the big Fifteenth district. which comprises Lycoming, Tioga, Potter and Clinton counties. He is from Tioga. It s a triangular fight, with two other candidates, Brus C. Keefer and Edgar R. Kiess, the present member, involved.

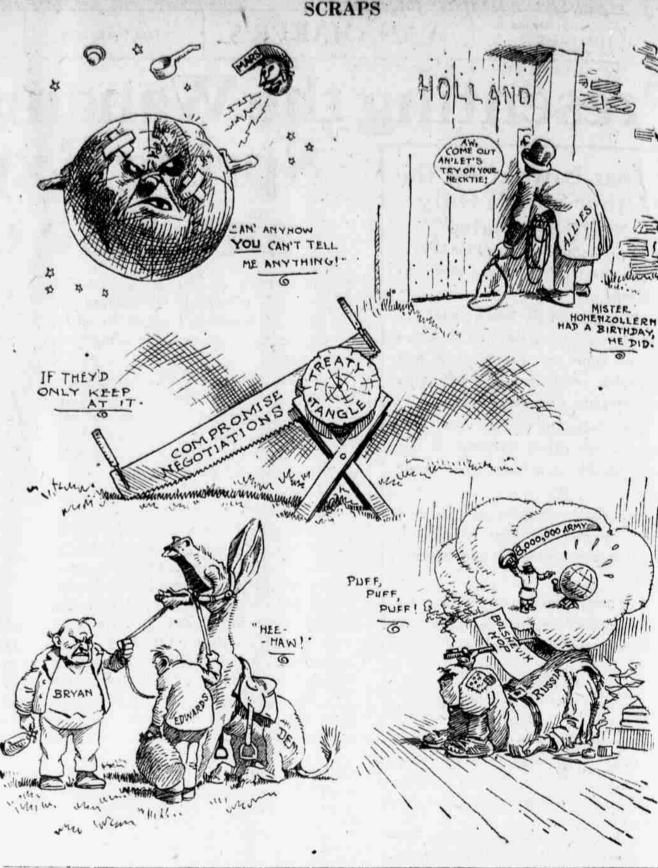

The fact that Lycoming county has held the congressional seat for twenty years, and that Tioga is always safely Republican, gives Mr. Merrick a mighty good and logical leverage in his fight. The demand for rotation office is always a dangerous slogan, and Mr. Merrick will adorn his banners and the outer walls of the Fifteenth district with it in large and luminous letters.

The further fact that Congressman Kiess nas opposition in his own county leaves the door of hope open to Merrick, who hopes to dip through while Keefer and Kiess go to he mat.

Some price-fixers get their idea of 'fair' from the weather bureau.

It is the opinion of soldiers more or less wise that Bergdoll lacks intelligence enough to feign lunacy successfully.

burg recommended that tuition fees be raised to meet rising costs and to permit of their receiving living salaries. Trust gouge or strike committee?

THE CHAFFING DISH

On Making Friends

NONSIDERING that most friendships are C made by mere hazard, how is it that men find themselves equipped and fortified with just the friends they need? We have heard of men who asserted that they would like to have more money, or more books, or more pairs of pyjamas; but we have never heard of a man saying that he did not have enough friends. For, while one can never have too many friends, yet those one has are always enough. They satisfy us completely. One has never met a man who would say. "I wish I had a friend who would combine the they are ashamed to show each other how good humor of A. the mystical enthusiasm of B, the love of doughnuts which is such an endearing quality in C. and who would also have the babit of giving Sunday evening suppers like D and the well-stocked cellar which is so deplorably lacking in E. the curious thing is that at any time and in any settled way of life a man is generally provided with friends far in excess of his desert, and also in excess of his capacity to absorb their wisdom and affectionate attentions.

THERE is some pleasant secret behind this, a secret that none is wise enough to fathom. The infinite fund of disinterested humane kindliness that is adrift in the world s part of the riddle, the insoluble riddle of life that is born in our blood and tissue. It is agreeable to think that no man, save by nis own gross fault, ever went through life unfriended, without companions to whom he could stammer his momentary impulses of sagacity, to whom he could turn in hours of loneliness. It is not even necessary to know a man to be his friend. One can sit at a unch counter, observing the moods and whims of the white-coated pie-passer, and by the time you have juggled a couple of fried eggs you will have caught some grasp of his philosophy of life, seen the quick edge and tang of his humor, memorized the shrewdness his worldly insight and been as truly stimulated as if you had spent an evening with your favorite parson.

TF THERE were no such thing as friendship existing today, it would perhaps be difficult to understand what it is like from those who have written about it tried, from time to time, to reac. Emerson's enigmatic and rather frigid assay. It seems that Emerson must have put his cronies to severe test before admitting them to the sigh-vaulted and rather draughty halls of his intellect. There are fine passages in his essay, but it is intellectualized, bloodless, heedless of the triffing oddities of human inercourse that make friendship so satisfying. He seems to insist upon a sterile ceremony of mutual self-improvement, a kind of religious ritual, a profound interchange doctrines between soul and soul. Hhis friends (one gathers) are to be antisepticated, all the poisons and pestilence of their faulty humors are to be drained away before they may approach the white and icy operating table of his heart. "Why insist." he says, on rash personal relations with your friend? Why go to his house, or know his wife and family?" And yet does not the botanist like to study the flower in the soil where it grows?

DOLONIUS, too, is another ancient supposed to be an authority on friendship. The Polonius family must have been a thoroughly dreary one to live with; we have often thought that poor Ophelia would have zone mad anyway, even if there had been no Hamlet. Laertes preaches to Ophelia ; Polonius preaches to Laertes. Laertes escaped by going abroad, but the girl had to stay at home. Hamlet saw that pithy old Polonius was a preposterous and orot; nd ass. Pole nius's doctrine of friendship-"The friends thou hast, and their adoption ried, grapple them to thy soul with hoops of steel"--Was we trow, a necessary one in his case. It would need a hoop of steel to keep them near such a dispai old sawmonger.

FRIENDSHIPS, we think, do not grow up in any such carefully tended and contemplated fushion as Messrs. Emerson and Polo-nius suggest. They begin haphasard. As we Everybody knows what happened to the cast.

ook back on the first time we saw our friends we find that generally our original impression was curiously astray. We have worked along beside them, have consorted with them drunk or sober, have grown to cherish their delicious absurdities, have outrageously imposed on each other's patience—and suddenly we awoke to realize what had happened. We had, without knowing it, gained a new friend. In some curious way the unseen border line had been passed. had reached the final culmination of Anglo-Saxon regard when two men rarely look each other straight in the eyes because fond they are. We had reached the fine When all is in the crucible lower and the ultimate test of comradeshipthat is, when you get a letter from one of your "best friends," you know you don't MERSON is right in saying that friend-E ship can't be hurried. It takes time to ripen. It needs a background of humorous, wearisome or even tragic events shared to-gether, a certain tract of memories shared in common, so that you know that your own life and your companion's have really moved for some time in the same channel. It needs interchange of books, meals together, discussion of one another's whims with mutual friends, to gain a proper perspective. It is set in a rich haze of half-remembered occa sions, sudden glimpses, ludicrous pranks, unsuspected observations, midnight confidences when heart spoke to candid heart.

THE soul preaches humility to itself when need to answer it until you get ready to.

I it realizes, startled, that it has won a new friend. Knowing what a posset of contradictions we all are, it feels a symptom of shame at the thought that our friend knows all our frailties and yet thinks us worth af fection. We all have cause to be shamefast indeed; for whereas we love ourselves in spite of our faults, our friends often love us even on account of our faults, the highest level to which attachment can go. 1...d what an infinite appeal there is in their faces! How we grow to cherish those curious little fleshy cages-so oddly sculptured-which inclose the spirit within. To see those faces, bent unconsciously over their tasks - each different, each unique, each so richly and queerly expressive of the lively and perverse nigms of man, is a full education in human tolerance. Privately, one studies his own ill modeled visnomy to see if by any chance it bespeaks the emotions he inwardly feels. We know-as Hamlet did-the vicious mole of nature in us, the o'ergrowth of some com plexion that mars the purity of our secret resolutions. Yet-our friends have passed it over, have shown their willingness to take us as we are. Can we do less than hope to de serve their generous tenderness, granted be fore it was earned? THE problem of education, said R. L. S.

is twofold - "first to know, then to utter." Every man knows what friendship means, but few can utter that complete frankness of communion, based upon full comprehension of mutual weakness, enlivened a happy understanding of honorable in tentions generously shared. When we first met our friends we met with bandaged eyes. We did not know what journeys they had been on, what winding roads their spirits had traveled, what ingenious shifts they had devised to circumvent the walls and barriers of the world. We know these now, for some of them they have told us; others we have guessed. We have watched them when they little dreamed it; just as they (we suppose) have done with us. Every resture and method of their daily movement have become part of our enjoyment of life. Not until a time comes for saying good-by will we ever know how much we would like to have said. At those times one bas to fall back on shrewder tongues. You remember Hilaire Belloe:

From quiet homes and first beginning Out to the undiscovered ends. There's nothing worth the wear of winning But laughter, and the love of friends.

SOCRATES.

THE SAVING GIFT

ERE youth takes wings, forsaking me, Give me the freedom of the hills. Man's ancient heritage;

I crave the friendship of the birds. The kinship of the trees That greet all understanding folk With kindly courtesies. Though some contented are to tread

A straight and narrow groove. Give me the freedom of the plains. Wherein to ! athe and move : For though 't' said of rolling stones They gather little moss.

What's gold and what is dross? Old instincts are but covered fires That flash to flame anew ; Give me the freedom of the seas That in time's twilight drew

My forefolk from their ancient shores With strange, enchanting spells, When singing to the rhythmic waves They launched their coracles. Since all I am and all I have Shall fade and fail like mist.

ive me the freedom of the winds That wander where they list, Now north, now south and now where dawn Red roses on her breast. Comes up the skies, and now where mout And sun go down to rest.

All things that sing, all shining shapes. All nature's gifts far-flung-Tall hills, wide seas, lit plains, loud wind-They make and keep us young: For if our spirits, like our flesh, Beneath grim time's decree. Grew old, and crouched by dying fires. Oh, woeful it would be! -Roderic Quinn in the Sydney Bulletin.

What Do You Know?

QUIZ 1. What is heckling?

What are witches' thimbles? 3. What republic named its capital after an American President?

4. What is argon? 5. What is amortization?

6. What are capers? 7. Who was Samuel D. Gross?

8. What is a mortise? 9. Who was the classical god of dream: 10. What character of plays did Aristoph

anes, the Greek dramatist, write Answers to Yesterday's Quiz

1. Odin was the chief god in Scandinavian mythology. He was regarded as the source of wisdom and the patron of culture and heroes.

2. Two Presidents of the United States Thomas Jefferson (for his first term) and John Quincy Adams, were elected by the House of Representatives.

3. Cicero, the Roman orator, was born 106 B. C. and died 43 B. C. 4. Jefferson City is the capital of Missouri.

5. The first daily paper in the United States, the Advertiser, was issued in Philadelphia in 1784. The treaty of Ghent, between Greet Britain and the United States, was signed before the final action in the war of 1812 was fought. The event took place in December, 1814, and the battle of New Orleans occurred in the following January, 1815. 7. The baobab is an African tree with an enormously thick stem. It is also called the monkey-bread tree.

8. To cke means to supplement, to contrive to make a livelihood or to contrive to support an existence. The word, as an adverb, means also.

9. In England "L. S. Deism," alluding to the initials for pounds, shillings and pence, means money-worship, 10. Seals belong to the Phocidae family.

"I'm the grar of Russia!" cries Berg-