TWO of the most distinctive Roamer models of the present series are the Suburban Sedan and the Landaulet. The Suburban Sedan is converted from an owner-driven to a chauffeur-driven car in an instant-one merely raises the plate-glass partition from its slot behind the forward seat.

The Landaulet is smartly continental—just recently in vogue here. A five-passenger open car on fair days; a snugly enclosed model in inclement weather. The trimly folded top can be quickly adjusted to meet one's need.

Although every Roamer model possesses an unmistakable individuality, there is this essential sameness. The powerful motor behind the radiator of flashing silver is of uniform dependability, as fleet and unfailing in performance as the Roamer carriages are faultless in design.
