BROOKLYN HOTEL WASHED INTO BAY

New York Digging Itself Out of Snowstorm That Paralyzed Traffic—Volunteers Assist

By the Associated Press. New York, Feb. 5.—New York today started to dig itself out of the most severe snowstorm of the winter.

Snow, hail and sleet, carried on the wings of a fifty-mile gale, fell steadily during the night and early morning hours, clogging the streets and sidewalks of the metropolis with great quantities of snow.

The Hudson, a summer hotel on the beach at the foot of Eighty-fifth street, Brooklyn, was washed into New York bay by the surf. The police removed it to a landing.

The high tide flooded the Erie Terminal in Jersey City and ferry service to New York was discontinued. Some New Jersey trains were held up for two hours late arriving at Jersey City owing to snowdrifts.

WOMAN BATTLES WOULD BE ROBBER

Soldier Knocks Thug Unconscious After Intended Victim Falls His Plan

HELD UP SEVERAL IN STORM PROSECUTION APOLOGIZES

A highwayman, working under cover of the snowstorm, held up several persons at Third and Morris streets at midnight.

Resistance by a resolute woman put an end to the activities of the alleged robber, Frank Runco, twenty-four years old, Portage, Pa.

Just before 12 o'clock last night an excited woman called on the Twenty-fifth district police station at Fourth street and Snyder avenue.

"A robber has held up several persons here," said the woman, breathlessly.

Patrolman Patterson was ordered to hurry to Third and Morris streets. He jumped into an automobile and was there within a few minutes. When he arrived he found Runco unconscious in the snow.

Near him stood Mrs. Annie Donnelly, thirty-five years old, of 2418 Lombard street, a sister of Detective Moriarty, and a man clad in a soldier's uniform.

Mrs. Donnelly told Patterson that she was hurrying through the storm when Runco sprang forward with a revolver in his hand and ordered her to halt.

Instead of obeying, she said, she sprang at the man and the two struggled for several minutes. She apparently not daring to use her weapon.

Then the soldier appeared and, seeing Mrs. Donnelly in the grasp of Runco, it is charged, struck the man a swinging blow on the jaw. Runco dropped unconscious.

While Runco was being taken to the Fourth street and Snyder avenue station, the soldier's revolver was seized. His name was not obtained by the police.

Detectives are trying to find today the other persons who were held up.

Runco, when taken before Magistrate Carney today, was held without bail to await the action of the grand jury.
