One Mark of a Wanamaker Furniture Sale Is That It Is Good to the Last Day and Hour

Next Sunday Is the Anniversary of Washington's Birthday

Let us begin to think at once of the best way to celebrate it.

By the laws of every state in the Union, government offices everywhere are closed on the birthday of the Father of the Country.

It is customary, as when the Fourth of July comes on Sunday, to observe the duty of the occasion on the following day.

Were Philadelphia, the dear old Quaker City, to pause and think over the days of Valley Forge, Carpenters' Hall and the first meeting of the convention of the delegates from the Thirteen States, it would surely quicken our regard for the memory of their leader in Revolutionary days, George Washington.

If it is a fine day, why should not the members of the Union League ask the Manufacturers' Club and the Art Club, all composed of representative citizens, to turn out in full force and march down Chestnut Street and around Independence Square and return by Market Street, and let the citizens join them in taking a stand that Philadelphia will always honor is rather long and tight and basque-like as to bodice, and rather full as to skirt—at least so you'll think after you've seen some of the new Spring gowns for young women.

George Washington

The Spring Silhouette as Revealed in Young Women's Fashions

One fetching little frock is of black satin with delicate embroidery in gold thread, a straight and youthful bodice and a very new skirt which is quite full, finished with many scallops and trimmed with narrow ruffles.

You will see these narrow ruffles on many frocks, sometimes on the skirt, sometimes just below the bodice, sometimes used up-and-down to give long lines.

Taffeta frocks in blue and black and lighter shades are delightfully new and have a charming air of Spring about them—and go from $97.50 to $110.

Some new cloth frocks, just out of their tissue wrappings, are in two new styles (one with a ripple effect below the bodice) and are each $75.

All are in 14 to 20 year sizes.

A few of the inexpensive sorts—$22.50 to $65—have just arrived. They are mostly in navy and black, some very plain indeed, some with flat braid, some with heavy fancy braiding or wool embroidery. Good in-between-season dresses.

Every Wanamaker Furniture Sale has to live up to its name every day of its career. So far this sale has done so, and it can be depended upon to do so until the end.

To live up to its name, a Wanamaker Furniture Sale, from first to last must be a sale by itself, a sale with no counterpart in magnitude of choice, desirability of goods and certainty of advantage for the customer.

From first to last it must be a sale of real opportunities, and plenty of them. It must come up to all these requirements because it has now got to where it simply cannot afford to disappoint people.

Today it is impossible for any one wanting good furniture, anybody whose requirements or ideas are not wholly unreasonable and who wants to buy it at a moderate but real saving, not to find it in this sale.

We could repeat that statement every day until the end of the sale, because we have the goods to back it.

It is timely to emphasize these points just now when we are getting along toward the last week of the sale.

It is well to keep people reminded of the fact that this is a February Sale in the sense that it will provide a full and unrivaled choice of standard-of-America furniture at certified reductions every business day of this month. The furniture is here and here in plenty, no matter how much we have sold.

That is the whole story. The rest is a matter of taking advantage while you may of the opportunities in which the sale abounds.

One of the distinctive marks of every Wanamaker Furniture Sale is that it abounds in opportunity to the last day and hour.

(Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Floors)

Any piece of Office Furniture in our stock can now be bought at a reduction of 10 to 33 1/2 per cent.
