Evidently there was no great nervousness that such tactics would be successful, since it is recognized that the demand for legislation against the return of the roads on March 15 has become so widespread that its political significance transcends the threats of the labor elements directed to those who vote for the passage of the act.

As for the industrial shares the tendeny was to heaviness but trading was very restricted and devold of importance one way or the other. Rejuvenation of Rails This was railroad week in Wall treet. The fortunes of the transportation lines which are so soon to be per-mitted to show what they can do with their own legs after wearing the brace of federal control for two or more years supplied the principal thems for discussion.

The securities market responded The securities market responded promptly to the new influence, with the railroad shares leading in a forward movement which was as brisk as the limited supply of stock of that description rendered possible. The demonstration gave rise to no end of conjecture as to its scope and as to whether it reflected a definite revival of speculative and investment interest. lative and investment interest.

A summary of the provisions of the bill agreed upon and reported by the House and Senate conferees elicited approval and disapproval in varying degree. The points touched upon in the summary and the detailed provisions of the measure itself will be elucidated by the debate which opens in the

That was the main consideration. That was the main consideration. The status quo with respect to cates and wages will be maintained for a period of six months from March 1. On this point the labor element based its opposition to the passage of the bill, also because most of them are of a more highly speculative character and in consequence less restricted as to floating supply. The National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, with head-quarters in Baltimore, was authority for the assertion that railroad investors regard the pending bill as "the most satisfactory program of business legislation ever devised by a law-making body," and in a brochure, prepared by that oranization, has this to say on the necessity for the regulation of excess necessity for the regulation of excess Shareholders Apparently Satisfied "Certain individual roads are earnretrain individual roads are earning and will always earn excessive returns on any rate structure which is essential to the life of the majority of the railroads. A very large number of railroads cannot possibly survive under present conditions. Many are not realing expenses. As a whole paying operating expenses. As a whole they are earning about half their stand-them on the theory that the fortunes of the carriers in the hands of their own-ers could not well be more precarious than in the hands of the government, and might be much better.

Wide Diversity of Views

Price movements this week seemed to confirm this viewpoint more or less. The confirm this viewpoint more or less. The minor rails enjoyed the broadest advances, since they were the ones which were to be expected to gain more than they would lose by the transition from government control under the terms of the bill, also because most of them are

Some regarded it merely as in the nature of discounting the change of control, professional forestall ing of the event. Those who approve ing of the event. Those who approved parcservedly the pending legislation were not so sure that such was the case and they, for the most part, were content to await developments in the next week

There is no particular short interest There is no particular short interest in the rails. The relatively small volume of transactions suggested that buying was divided, perhaps, because a limited amount of short covering and for a return of 5½ per cent on the aggregate property value of the roads in

The specific guarantee of such return extends only over the six months to September 1 next. The percentage of return prescribed will remain in effect for a period of two years from March 1, but this is a guarantee only in the sense that the interstate commerce commission is empowered to establish a rate level which will yield a return as nearly as may be of 5% per cent on the aggregate fair value of the grouped lines. There is no government obligation to make good a deficit should the rates established not prove adequate.

Excess of earnings over 6 per cent will be divided half and half between twill be divided half and half between twill be divided half and half between twill be divided half and half between the coad earning it and the government, to be expended in the interest of the shipper. the western district, where the roads as a whole are carning only 60 per cent of their standard rental, would give one road 180 per cent of its standard rental, whereas others would not receive the half of it; 20 per cent increase would give it 215 per cent. Hence rates cannot be adjusted to these circumstances without the regulation of excess earnings."

If this view is held by railroad in vestors, that is to say by the real owners of the roads, and if the speculative public is concerned mainly that some sort of legislation shall go through by March 1, it was no wonder that the professional element on the floor of the there. They were confronted at the the rails.

But it was none too easy going for the them. They were confronted at the eginning with the fact that but a limited supply of stock was available. It was not a propitious time, in short, to indicate the withdrawal of stocks from strong boxes where they have reposed for so long a time. Those who felt imports to the return of the roads to their owners.

In other words it was held that those who had kept their stock through the foliation of values, would still retain them on the theory that the fortunes of the carriers in the hands of their owners.

STATE OF TRADE For the first time in some weeks the trade reviewers report a more or unsettled state of affairs in many unsettled state of affairs in many lines of commercial and industrial endeavor. There appears to be some slowing down and a general contraction in business activities which has begun to make an impression on the credit aituation. Speaking of this tendency toward curtailed operations, Dun's Review says:

"While the severe storms of the winter, with their accompanying restraint on production and distribution, have had a decided bearing on the recent slackening of business activities in the East and in some other parts of the country, the fundamental causes of the slowing down process have manifested themselves in the movement toward credit contraction through closer concredit contraction through closer concredit contraction through closer con-trol of banking accommodation, in the impediments to export trade resulting from the extraordinary depreciation of foreign exchange and in the more gen-eral recognition of the fact that prices still remain on an unnatural basis and that readjustment is inevitable."

Henderrest's comments, in part, as Bradstreet's comments, in part, as

"There are many cross currents in the trade and financial situation, prethe trade and mandral studies, pre-venting some of the generalizations that were possible one, two or three weeks ago when the commercial machine was slowing down from the swift pace of mid-January, and some favorable de-velopments are to be noted this week-coincidentally with some rather decoincidentally with some rather de-pressing factors. The favorable fea-tures are mainly financial, but, deal-

Children in Heaven

Countless numbers of parents have lost little ones. Where are they now? How are they taught? Do they remain children, or

Do they grow up?

Swedenborg, the great Seer, has given us the facts. You will want to hear the Rev. Adolph Roeder in the Church of the New Jerusalem, Twenty-second and Chestnut streets, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Entrance on Twenty-second street. No collection.
