

MOVE TO PROTECT POLICYHOLDERS

Pittsburgh Life and Trust Case Comes Up in New York Tomorrow

Adjustment of the affairs of the wrecked Pittsburgh Life and Trust Co. will begin tomorrow in New York city before State Supreme Court Justice Cochran.

foundered Charles A. Ambler, then state insurance commissioner, deposited some of the salvaged assets in the North Penn Bank of this city.

When the bank crash came on July 18 of last year the funds of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust policyholders once more were jeopardized. Ambler is under indictment for his alleged transactions with the bank.

The action in New York tomorrow results from a recent suit before Justice Cochran, which was pressed for Thomas B. Donaldson, insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania.

The suit was against Clarence F. Birdseye, Orange, N. J.; his son, Kollogg Birdseye, and George E. Montgomery. The defendants had gained control of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Co. by a financial coup described as "wizardry" by Mr. Donaldson.

After the proceedings continued for three days the three men abandoned their defense. Steps began at once to return the Pittsburgh company and other companies involved to their original owners.

Mr. Donaldson, through the adjustment proceedings to begin tomorrow hopes to save at least 72 per cent of the amount paid in by policyholders.

Hold Youth Charged as Intruder

Stanley Barry, eighteen, Cantrell street below Ninth, was held without bail for court today by Magistrate Carney at the Fourth street and Snyder avenue station. Louis Balonoff, 2132 South Eighth street, testified he had heard a noise in his home early this morning, and had found Barry there. Balonoff held him until a neighbor summoned Patrolman Leonard Barry is a negro.

EAGLE ATTACKS MAN

Farm Caretaker Kills Bird, but is Hurt in Hard Fight

A spectacular struggle between a large golden eagle and Harry Newcomb, a farm caretaker, occurred yesterday on the estate of William Gatzmer, Tacoma. The man received painful lacerations about the face, neck and hands before he succeeded in killing the bird.

A lot of poultry had been missing from the farm during the past week and Newcomb said that he spent a great part of yesterday watching the coops where the fowl are kept. When he noticed the eagle swoop down he fired and succeeded in crippling the bird. As he approached the spot where the bird had fallen it leaped at him, although a broken wing prevented it from rising far from the ground. A second shot was necessary to kill the bird.

February Demonstration Sale

A Sale at Darlington's always attracts attention. Our patrons and the public generally know that such an event here is something worth while, as we do not have a daily list of "bargains" (so called). Our policy is to have the best and most desirable of merchandise every day and to sell that merchandise at the lowest prices consistent with sound store-keeping. When odd lots are accumulated or the end of the season makes necessary the clearing away of certain lines such goods are grouped together and offered in our DEMONSTRATION SALES, which have attained an enviable reputation for real value-giving. Some of these lots are announced in this advertisement for Monday and Tuesday; others will be mentioned later in the week. Come early tomorrow for first choice.

Van Sciver

The Last Week of This Great Sale Abounds in Extraordinary Values

Not only because our increased facilities of manufacture, our early quantity purchases of fine Furniture from other leading makers, and our immense storage capacity, have equipped us with an almost inexhaustible reserve of Furniture stocks, insuring boundless opportunity in volume, variety and values, down to the last day and hour of this great Sale, but also because the heaviest selling we ever experienced has left many odd Suites, discontinued designs, and innumerable odd pieces, as well as quaint and artistic fancies in woodcraft, much of which is included in the final reductions in the last week of this wonderful Sale.

The rich simplicity of this charming Queen Anne Suite is obtained from a study of what may be considered the most "Beautiful Period" in English Furniture. This type of Furniture must be built of the most sterling materials, and only by the most skilled artisans, as no joints or grooves can be hidden by superfluous ornaments or mouldings. In order to secure the rich and dignified appearance of this elegant Suite, without the unnecessary use of ornamentations, the designer has taken advantage of its characteristically graceful outlines, which he skillfully and artistically enriches by a combination of various highly figured Walnut woods, depending on the mellow brown tones to supplement his genius.
