An Opening Exposition of Lovely Spring Hats

What freshness and sunshine and Springtime! Freshness in the glistening straws, sunshine in their colors and Springtime in their every line and tilt -so who cares if skies are overcast and there is still a nip in the wind?

The gayety of the colorings is most refreshing. Here is a toque of glistening panels of jay blue cellophane alternating with petals of blue velvet. There is a smart little street hat with a crown of toile circe and a narrow, stiff brim of raffia in orange, russet and tan; orange ribbon circles the crown and is tied in a little bow in the back.

There is much shining lacquered plumage used and some of the broadbrimmed hats of leghorn and soft straw are heavy with wreaths of flowers. Quite new are the fragile little gelatine flowers through which the light shines.

Color and freshness are, after all, the real points to a Spring opening, and a turn in the Down Stairs Millinery Salons is like a little pilgrimage to the dwelling place of Spring. Market
