

Penrose Begins Fight for Senate

 Ransley also states his platform. The principal feature of the platform is that Mr. Ransley says "no, no" to Congressman Vane's declaration in favor of light wines and 5 per cent beer. The candidate in "no" on such subjects as the League of Nations, Article X and the Flume controversy.

HARRY C. RANSLEY

The Republican City Committee chairman announced his candidacy today on a Vane ticket for the seat in Congress from the Third district to succeed Mayor Moore. The Mayor, however, will oppose the Ransley candidacy.

the gossip in political circles is that he may not. The reason for this is that the Vane committee, under the rules of the party, would absolutely control the Republican nomination for the unexpired term.

Ibanez Is Found by College Women

 register through the transmitter of the phone, but this did:

"One can and will forgive, but never forget, never!"

To be left to arrive in a comparatively strange foreign city, alone, and to the mercy of porters and other shonky-lured gentlemen who can speak neither Spanish nor French, when one has expected a reception committee of a sort in keeping with the reputation of the visitor, is not altogether pleasant. This Senor Ibanez assured the ladies.

To Return Immediately
 However, arrangements were made immediately for the return of the author and his spirits of the horsemen to Philadelphia.

Glory for the discovery of the author is due Miss Dorado, Miss Theresa James, president of Bryn Mawr Spanish Club; Miss H. A. Bennett, secretary; Miss C. P. Robinson, Miss Frances Howard and Miss B. Zilker.

The reception committee's plans last night were dislocated by a double train wreck.

With the previous complications over Maurice Maeterlinck, who failed to speak at the Academy of Music because of some dispute as to whether he should use French or English, some literary lovers are inclined to believe that Blue birds and horses are unlucky for the promotion of hospitality.

But as to Senor Ibanez, so much happened in a few minutes that it would take a quick working "movie" camera to record it accurately.

First, the committee started for West Philadelphia Station at Thirty-second street to meet the author, scheduled to arrive from Washington at 7:50. No train was running from Bryn Mawr at that time for the reason that earlier in the evening a westbound passenger train struck a freight train near Overbrook and tied up traffic.

But a mere collision did not freeze the committee in the least. The teachers and pupils "hopped" a couple of "jitneys" which whisked them to a trolley car. It carried them to Sixty-ninth Street Station, where they grabbed an elevated train and sped to Thirty-second street.

Attempted Great Feat
 Senor Ibanez, coming from Washington, beat the committee speeding from Bryn Mawr, by three minutes. He arrived at the southern train shed which, with its icy trimmings and snow-covered lawns, resembled a spot near the North Pole.

The dark blue smoke which curled from the top of an impatient and panting locomotive was no bluer than the author. Absence of a single gland hand made him realize that the warm climate of sunny Spain was more inviting.

Then he attempted a great feat. He tried to make a station hand understand who he was and why he was there—and do it in a hurry.

The station hand had other things to do and the author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" was not the only one asking questions. He tried to console Senor Ibanez, but the latter, after a sweeping glance, decided that all was hopeless. The wheels of the train he had just started to revolve toward New York. The Pullman car looked warm and inviting.

He grabbed the rail of the car and swung aboard with a look of contempt toward the ice fields which encircled the station.

And as the train was disappearing in the distance the committee, all out of breath and much frustrated, arrived. The six fair members tried to tell the station hand just what they wanted, and as they all spoke at the same time it was difficult for him to grasp the situation. From their explanations he got the fact that they had first gone to the northern trainshed and later raced across to the southern trainshed after realizing their mistake.

A message was sent to Trenton requesting a train hand there to page Vicente Ibanez on the Pullman. Then came a reply by telephone that this would be a difficult feat of oral engineering. It was attempted, but it Senor Ibanez heard, he didn't understand, and kept right on to New York. Finally at 9 o'clock the six members of the committee took a train for New York in pursuit.

FLOR DE MANUEL

"The blend that makes Havana mild"

THE character of a cigar is in its fragrance. Nothing is more expressive of this than the inimitable aroma that comes from the skillful blending of rich Havana with lighter, milder tobacco, as in MANUEL.

In whatever shape and size you prefer—10c to 20c. At all stores.

As good a cigar as MANUEL brings a happy forgetfulness of day's work in evening's rest. Prove this to-night.

Born in Second Ward
 Mr. Ransley was born in the Second ward, which is in the Third district, and he said he had lived in the ward all his life. As to his residence at Ardmore, Mr. Ransley said it was nonsense to say he did not live in the Second ward, and added he had a perfect right to maintain a "suburban home, a sea-shore home and a mountain home" if he so desired.

Mr. Ransley is a member of the firm of Dunlap, Slack & Co., dealers in oils and naval stores, at 126 North Front street, in the Third district.

Announces Platform
 "I sincerely feel," said the candidate, "that my knowledge of the district, coupled with my experience in Council and the Legislature, give me an equipment which ought to make my services of value to the people of the Third Congressional district."

Mr. Ransley's platform is as follows: "If the people of this country are to be made happy and contented, there must be a reduction in the present high cost of living; and as a most direct means to that end I am in favor of a reduction in taxation. Not only should the individual be relieved of part of the burden of direct taxation, but, in my judgment, there should be a reduction in the levy made upon excess war profits, because, after all this particular burden is in the end shouldered by the shoulders of the consumer."

For a Budget System
 "I stand for the adoption by this country of a budget system so that there may be an exact check upon the receipts and expense, to the end that extravagance in the administration of various governmental activities shall cease."

The wards in the district are the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Nineteenth.

Mr. Ransley's supporters assert that the Republican city committee from eight wards, the Second, Fourth, Sixth, Twelfth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Nineteenth will surely support him. They are hopeful that William Nickles, committee man from the Eleventh ward, will also support him. John P. Connelly, leader of the Eleventh ward, however, who has declared for the Moore administration, is expected to bring Mr. Nickles in to see the Mayor shortly.

What Is Necessary to Speed Up Building Construction?

There's just one answer:—
 Award contracts to your builder with this clause:
Between May 1st and October 31st—
Nine hours' work and Nine hours' pay!!

The purpose of the leaders of labor organizations is to restrict the hours of labor, thus increasing the demand for skilled workmen!

This is unfair to the public—unfair to the man who spends his money on building—unfair even to the skilled laborer, who could be busy many more hours and earn many more dollars per week!

Those contemplating building have control of this situation. Let them insist that fair building rules shall prevail—or refuse to build!
