Impromptu Spreads Can Be Easily and Quickly Prepared With This Convenient Utensil

Tasty Menus May Include Oysters a la Newburg, Crab Meat a la King and Other Delicacies

By MRS. M. A. WILSON Copurisht, 1920, by Mrs. M. A. Wilson, All Rights Reserved.

THE chafing dish is the special personal assistant to the housewife who desires to be a successful hostess. Hospltality assuredly is the essence of renement and good breeding, as well as the earliest mark of the civilized man. To break bread with one's friends or family without fus or flurry is the true spirit of bon camaraderie and hospitality.

modern chafing dish is electrically equipped and one need but to insert the plug into the nearest lump socket to ob-tain the necessary current

The pleasure and anticipation of the amily and friends when gathered around the table to watch or perhaps help in the actual preparing of a delicacy will repay the hostess many times.

The chafing dish has for a long time been the medium for many a little im-promptu spread which can be easily and inexpensively prepared. Just a hot dish cooking in the chafing dish and a cup of tea or coffee or cocoa and some good home-made bread with butter will satisfy the most critical enjoure. satisfy the most critical epicure.

Another Reason Why

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I'm writing to you, although I read your column every night, and I'm surely your column every night, and I'm surely interested in all the letters, especially B. P.'s. I sure must give him credit for asking such an interesting question for the readers to solve. In reading Betty Bonnet's letter to Alpina, asking B. P. to help them in solving "Why girls close their eyes when being kissed," why, my opinion is this, that they are so greedy in getting kissed that they simply can't look at it coming. B. P. THIRD.

Slightly Sarcastic Dear Cynthia—Did you give your-self away on purpose in Thursday's column for the benefit of your steady readers? "Imogene," why not send your business address to Cynthia, so she can forward all the letters of those who want advice to you? You seem to think you could manage the column better than our dear Cynthia herself. BROADWAY.

Knocks Imogene

Dear Cynthia-I certainly enjoy the various letters that appear in your col-umn each evening. "Buck Private" certainly should be elected president of the "K. U. H. C." I think his letters very interesting and he surely does help to keep your wonderful column on the move. If "Imogene" hadn't told us she was a married woman I would have thought her an old maid.

Now, if we would all keep ourselves as well groomed as "Imogene" tells us o. I am afraid the men would make love all the more.

If a person finds enjoyment in certain things, as long as that person stays within the law, far be it from me to say a word against him or her. I wish you luck with your five younger sisters, and really, "Imogene," you had better not as a matter of course more than half tain things, as long as that person stays really. "Imogene," you had better not allow your dear girls to read Cynthia's column, especially when our friend "Buck Private's" letters appear, or your fair maidens may try kissing just to see if they close their eyes, and I am It is all near of the read to see if they close their eyes, and I am It is all near of the read to see if they close their eyes, and I am It is all near of the read to see if they close their eyes, and I am It is all near of the read than half of their waking bours are now trying to arrange to wear fewer gloves, to wear them on fewer occasions, and to manage the more than half of their waking bours are now trying to arrange to wear fewer gloves, to wear them on fewer occasions, and to manage the more than half of their waking bours are now trying to arrange to wear fewer gloves, to wear them on fewer occasions, and to manage the more than half of their waking bours are now trying to white and black is in especially good white and black is in especially good them on fewer occasions, and to manage the more than half of their waking bours are now trying to arrange to wear fewer gloves, to wear them on fewer occasions, and to manage the more than half of their waking bours are now trying to arrange to wear fewer gloves, to wear them on fewer occasions, and to manage the more than half of their waking bours are now trying to work the more than half of their waking bours are now trying to work the seventually arrives at her decision.

To the Editor of Woman's Page: Dear Madam-Will you publish in some games that we all can enjoy?

C. R. W. I am vending you some suggestion or a leap-year party. In giving the proposal, instead of making it romautic, why don't you make it silly? It will be silly, anyhow. Pick out the faults of the boy you are proposing to and declare that you adore the way his hair stands up in the back or the way it hangs over his collar in the back, that your heart thrills at the size of his feet and that it would fill you with joy if he would be yours, provided he could make enough to buy the kind of clothes you must always have. Make it as ridiculous as possible and keep fectly solemn during the whole formance. If you get too romantic, know, the poor boy might be frighte and think you really meant it!

Why don't you have just informal refreshments? That is, have a table filled with cheese, crackers, salted nuts, jam, sandwiches (if you want them), candy and cakes. Let the guests help
