

The Schuylkill River Overflows Its Banks in Manayunk, Roads Covered by Ice: Fancy Diving

SCORES OF MANAYUNK FAMILIES living along the Schuylkill river found themselves marooned when daylight came this morning, as the water had risen so high that River road, on the bank of the Schuylkill in Manayunk, was covered with about six feet of water and ice. Both photographs are of River road, and they show that a calamity was averted by the fact that the raging river quickly receded. The height that the water and ice reached can be seen in the photographs. It will take days to clear the ice from the portion of the road shown in the etching at the right
