

BOYS FORCE WAY TO REAL DINNER

Police Find Two Who Broke Into Restaurant Through Roof

CAN-OPENER DID TRICK

With a can opener and a little energy Harry Sachs and Herman Thomas, each sixteen years old, forced an entrance into a restaurant at Thirteenth and Sanson streets and enjoyed a big Sunday dinner. The boys entered the place by way of a skylight on the roof and were surprised in the midst of their feast by Patrolman Best. They gained the roof by climbing the fire escape, and, according to Thomas, "the roof was easy." Although each was held in $500 bail for court today by Magistrate Carney an effort will be made to turn them over to the Juvenile Court.

When the boys were searched the only thing found on them was the can-opener. "That may not be worth much to you," said Sachs when Best took the tool away from him, "but believe me that led us to a real meal yesterday." After getting inside the restaurant
