SPARTACAN RISINGS MYTHS

Junkers Show Bolshevist Bugaboo to Impress Allies

Following his disclosures in the dispatch printed Saturday, indicating the means by which Prussian Junkers design to restore Kaiserism in Germany, Mr. Kospoth today shows how these plotters set up the Bolshevist bugaboo to impress allied governments and further imperial ends.

By B. F. KOSPTH Correspondent of the Evening Public Ledger

Copyright, 1920, by the Evening Public Ledger Co., Philadelphia, Pa. It will be remembered that Karl Radek, the Bolshevist emissary who had been delegated by the Moscow Soviet to assist the Spartacists in bolshewizing Germany, was arrested by the Berlin authorities after the death of Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg.

Soon after his release a series of sensational articles were published in Spartacus, the leading organ of the Spartacist party. They were signed "Arnold Struthahn," and their general purport was that the Spartacists should adopt a more conciliatory policy toward the Scheidemann Socialists.

Radek Stirring Up Bogy

This Spartacus campaign caused a good deal of dissension among the Spartacists and almost led to a party split. Now "Arnold Struthahn" is nobody else but Karl Radek himself, who was never deported, but let out of prison and allowed to remain in Berlin on condition that he would exert himself to paralyze the activities of the Spartacists.

Whenever Germany wants to obtain concessions from the Allies and to elude the terms of the Versailles treaty, reports of imminent Spartacist risings and the discovery of communist plots in various German cities are diligently spread by the Wolff Agency.

False Report a Prussian Coup

The bureau's "information" frequently finds its way, through Wolff and the German newspapers, into the neutral and allied press. This is a short time ago, alarming accounts of a great Spartacist outbreak in Brunswick were widely circulated, telling how thousands of revolutionary soldiers from Kiel had arrived in the town and proclaimed the dictatorship of the proletariat.

There is abundant evidence proving that the popular demonstration before the Reichstag building in Berlin, which terminated so tranquilly, was deliberately converted into a Spartacist "coup" by the Prussian militarists in order to impress the Allies on the eve of their signing the surrender of the German war criminals.

"Disarmed Germany" Wants Revenge

It is fairly certain that there will be some more or less serious communist outbreaks, caused chiefly by economic distress in the German cities and industrial districts in the near future, but they will be pitilessly suppressed and the bodies of the victims will pave the way for the triumphant return of Kaiserism.

The volleys fired in front of the Reichstag have demonstrated that "disarmed" Germany has the most ruthlessly reliable army at its disposal that is extant in Europe at the present time. A country with an army of this sort will never become the prey of bolshevism, however desperate its economic and financial situation may be.

The German people is not looking for salvation to bolshevism, like so many other European nations, but to Kaiserism, National Bolshevism, and National Socialism.

Ever since the conclusion of the armistice the allied statesmen have been warned by the best political consciousness of Germany that the only way to avert bolshevism constituted the greatest menace to the new republic across the Rhine.

loved implicitly in Berlin's Bolshevist bogy. Hindenburg as Stop Gap Peace having been signed and many minor advantages obtained, the "German Republic," which was proclaimed only to avert the final catastrophe of Prussian militarism, has about served its turn.

The general belief in Germany is that the next step of the Prussian monarchists will be to get Hindenburg elected president of the republic. Every where else in Europe there would be some reason to fear that a vastly popular military president of this sort might be tempted to make himself emperor, regardless of the claims of the legitimate dynasty.

Crown Prince's Son for Throne The plans of the Prussian monarchists, according to my information, at present center around the ex-crown prince's eldest son, Prince Wilhelm, a boy of fourteen, who is now living with his mother in Potsdam.

I am told that the ex-kaiser, in the course of secret conferences which recently took place in Holland between him and prominent monarchist leaders, has sanctioned this project, while the ex-crown prince has angrily refused to renounce his rights in favor of his son.

Constitutional Monarchy as Disguise I am further informed that the scheme for the restoration of Kaiserism includes the establishment of a "constitutional, popular monarch"—a "Volkskaiser"—as it is termed by its inventor, Count Westarp, the most astute of the general belief to the contrary.

negotiations with the imperial deserters in Holland. The idea will be because they expect from it a recrudescence of prosperity and power through intrigues and military force. Germany is broken today, but her plight is by no means so desperate as she is trying, not without success, to make the Allies believe.

There are unmistakable signs that the allied diplomats are growing alarmed about the situation in Germany and are planning to admit her without delay into the League of Nations.

It is stated that the fight has resulted in a new revolution led by General Tiburcio Garcia against the Guiterrez government. Opposition to the government had become so powerful that the Guiterrez government was threatened and during a session of the congress three weeks ago Dr. Venecio Calleja delivered a strong speech against Guiterrez.

the League of Nations. If they imagine that they can thus prevent her return to Kaiserism and forestall her schemes of revenge, they strangely deceive themselves. Germany is not going to enter the league without "reservations" of her own—mental reservations practically annulling the treaty and the covenant.

HONDURAN SOLONS IN FIGHT

Are there "Big Profits" in the Telephone Business? Illustration of a telephone and stacks of money.

FOR twenty years the operations of The Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania have never afforded the owners of the property more than a reasonable return on a good, sound, conservative investment. This is not a Company that has been marked by frenzied finance. On the contrary, there is not a drop of so-called water in our capitalization. It has created no great fortunes. Because the Company is big, many people think it has made "all sorts of money" and is still making it. The fact is—as the published records show—that fancy dividends have always given way to good plant maintenance, adequate reserves against depreciation and common-sense stability of the business. That's what good service depends on! At the present time those essential elements are facing serious danger. There are not revenues enough to meet our necessities. And unless adequate rates are forthcoming, and quickly, the outcome is obvious—a service dangerously impaired and a property which, because of the uncertainty of continued returns, will not attract new capital for improvements and extensions.
