CAMDEN MURDERER SENTENCED TO DEATH

Michael Kostynski Found Guilty of Killing Woman in His Boarding House

Michael Kostynski was sentenced to death by electrocution by Justice Seayze in the Camden Criminal Court last night. He had previously been found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Katie Koszani, a boarding house proprietor, 1515 Norris street, Camden. Kostynski will be electrocuted in the week of April 18 in Trenton.

Kostynski caused a stir at the trial by first refusing to take an oath and then insisting that a priest swear him on the crucifix and with candles burning. He was warned he could not testify unless he took the oath.

Douty's Lecture-Recital

Nicholas Douty gave the third and last for the present season of the interesting and instructive lecture-recitals he has been giving under the auspices of the University Extension Society on the "Song Composers of America," poets of the West. He was suffering from a severe cold and was unable to illustrate his lecture vocally himself, selecting Miss Mildred Fans to sing the songs. Miss Fans was in good voice and sang admirably.

RUTHLESS WAR IS FAVORED BY POET

British Writer, Who Served in Army, Favors Methods of Germans

DETAILS NEEDED, HE SAYS

Captain Siegfried Sassoon, England's young soldier-poet, holds with the Germans that war should be made "as ruthless as possible."

He so expressed himself in an address last night at the Bellevue-Stratford, under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

"In games one has rules," he said. "My idea of war is to make it as ruthless and horrible as possible."

Captain Sassoon, who served with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers in France and Palestine, accused the newspapers of creating a misleading impression of the world war among those at home.

"Forget this business of playing the game," he said. "It is the details that are so much needed. If every man who came back from the war had spoken the true facts, and made all realize that it really was not what the newspapers made it, we would know war for the hideous thing that it is."

"We hear many speak of the jolly old days of the war; none yet say the good old days in the trenches, but in time they probably will. These days, however, are not propaganda, but are to put the facts before the people to let them judge for themselves."

Both in his poems and in his address, Captain Sassoon paid tribute to the private soldier, known in the American army as the "doughboy." Among the war poems he read were "Memorial Tablet" and "The General."

TO LAUNCH 92D SHIP

Steamship Connespeak to Go Down Ways Today

Another steel cargo carrying vessel will be added to the new merchant marine of the United States at the Hog Island shipyard this afternoon at 5 o'clock when the steamship Connespeak will take her initial dip in the waters of the Delaware.

Miss Florence L. Heiden, of 7028 Greenway avenue, secretary to Robert L. Hague, director of construction and repairs, United States shipping board, will christen the Connespeak with champagne in the presence of a large gathering of officials of the Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation and American International Shipbuilding Corporation.

The Connespeak is the ninety-second vessel built for the government by the American International Shipbuilding Corporation and will bring the total deadweight tonnage of steel ships launched at the Hog Island yard since August 5, 1918, to 725,775.

Miss Heiden was chosen sponsor for the vessel on account of her long service with the shipping board, having started work with them on June 3, 1918.

Junior Auxiliary of St. Agnes's Hospital Organizes Ten Teams

The Junior Auxiliary of St. Agnes's Hospital met yesterday at the Adelphia Hotel and organized a division of ten teams to work in the approaching campaign to raise $500,000. The auxiliary, which is composed of young girls interested in the welfare of the institution, will make collections at public affairs, conduct booths for soliciting contributions and similar duties in co-operation with a regular campaign organization. They also plan to hold a big dance early in April.

Following are the officers of the auxiliary: Agnes T. Land, president; Pauline McCandless, vice president; Lee Anna Wadleigh, treasurer, and Marguerite C. Land, secretary.

MAYOR TO CONFER ON PAY INCREASE

Representatives of Police and Firemen to Give Their Views. City Lacks Funds

MAY DROP BONUS SYSTEM

Mayor Moore will confer today with representatives of the city's police and firemen and will explain to them the city's financial situation to obtain their views on the amount of the proposed increase in their pay.

Tomorrow Council's committee on public safety will meet to take up the administration's plans for bringing about the pay increases, according to Alexis J. Limeburner, chairman of the safety committee.

It will be impossible at this time to grant the police an increase to $5 a day, Director Cortelyou and the Mayor's financial statisticians believe.

There is already a deficiency of approximately $1,300,000 in the appropriation for the police and firemen for this year and it has been found that an additional appropriation of about $1,200,000 would be necessary for the proposed increase to $5 a day. It is understood that Mayor Moore will tell representatives of the firemen and police today that the reason there is no money available for granting the increase is because the Vore-Smith administration, during its closing weeks of last year, appropriated money sufficient to carry on the police and fire bureaus for only nine months.

The present bonus system, which has aroused the opposition of both police and firemen, will probably be discontinued.

CORNING QUILTS, TEN INSPECTORS OUSTED

First Engineer in Street Cleaning Bureau Under Former Chief Hicks Resigns

TWO MEN OF 70 DISMISSED

Dudley T. Corning, who was first engineer in the Bureau of Street Cleaning under Robert C. Hicks, former chief, resigned yesterday to Director of Public Works Winston. The resignation is effective March 15.

Rumors have been current for some time that Corning would resign because of his closeness to Hicks, who was succeeded by Donald M. Hepburn. Mr. Hepburn's activities in the street cleaning bureau aroused city-wide interest. Director Winston denied that charges had been preferred against Corning or that his resignation had been forced.

Corning is now on a two-week leave of absence.

Coinciding with the announcement of Corning's resignation, Director Winston announced the dismissal of ten street-cleaning inspectors. Most of these were inspectors who had been suspended by Hepburn for alleged derelictions of duty.

"All of the men recommended by Hepburn for suspension and ultimate dismissal," explained Director Winston, "have been personally interviewed by the new chief, Lieutenant Colonel Morden."

Charges against a number of them were trivial and they were reinstated. The number dwindled down to ten who have been found to have turned in "unsatisfactory" reports and failed to do their duty.

Director Winston said that two of the ten men were seventy years old and should never have been appointed inspectors. He declined to name these two.

The ten men who were sent notices of dismissal were: E. P. Hall, 342 North Redfield street; C. M. Phoebus, 4716 Warrington street; William O'Connor, 2250 Ludlow street; Charles Weibel, 1316 Mifflin street; Louis Saxe, 618 South street; John Gibson, 3020 North Front street; Howard Porter, 1219 Brown street; John Trelio, 1306 South Clarion street; Morris Krauer, 507 North Marshall street; F. J. McCullen, 2400 Pine street.

HITS WARTIME INSURANCE

Asserts Payment Should Be in Lump Sum Instead of Annuity

Protest was voiced yesterday by members of the Philadelphia chapter of the National American War Mothers, meeting in the directors' room of the Chamber of Commerce, against the attitude of the government in considering the veterans of the world war and neglecting the mothers of the dead.

"It is always the boys who came back and not the boys who stayed in France that are spoken of when bills and bonuses and converting of insurance are mentioned in Washington," Mrs. Herman H. Burney declared.

She voiced her disapproval of the fact that survivors of the war can convert their wartime insurance into civilian insurance, whereby their families receive it in a lump sum, while mothers of the soldier-dead receive an annuity which amounts to only 3 per cent of the total. She recommended payment of the insurance in a lump sum, so that it could be invested at a greater return.

"A MAN may wear a red necktie, a green vest and tan shoes, and still be a gentleman"

We clipped the above from an extremely clever booklet published by a progressive hotel corporation.

There is no doubt as to its truth, but we rise to remark that the man could cultivate "harmony in his dress," and still be a gentleman—probably a more presentable one.

It is our delight to supply clothing, Haberdashery, Headwear in such variety that a gentleman may be outfitted here in entire and perfect harmony, and in conformity with approved standards of good dressing.

Advertising Managers of Real Calibre

EVERY concern that advertises should have an advertising manager.

He should be a man of real calibre, with a real salary, and with a real responsibility.

We recommend the appointment of an aggressive advertising manager every time, if one is not already appointed.

He will be as helpful to us and to the successful outcome of the advertising and merchandising plans as we will be to him. We co-operate to the fullest extent with the real advertising manager.

Advertising is not only a means of increasing distribution and consumer demand—it is a vital factor in creating new and better conditions in the internal organization as well.

It broadens the vision of every executive—it increases the respect of every salesman for his house—it promotes team spirit and co-operation all 'round the board.

Time and again managers and salesmen have told us that the advertising campaign we prepared for them made better men of them, increased their value to their concern and to themselves.

The value of this understanding of advertising is apparent; the proof of its success is in the fact that the average life of an account with us is seven years and six months.

The average life of accounts with agents in general is eleven months.

Our business in 1919 increased more than 150 per cent.

Large expenditures in advertising were made through us in 1919 and 96 per cent. of their volume was from concerns that had been through the first year, "prove-up" period and had been using Donovan-Armstrong service for a period of years. That 150 per cent. increase in our business was based on absolute confidence in our predictions as to results and on our ability to make good our predictions.

Already we are mapping out bigger campaigns than ever, for our clients. Clients already are still further increasing their advertising appropriations—and 1920 promises to be a much bigger year for us than 1919.

Yet with it all our organization keeps pace, our system gives each present and each new account the same enthusiastic interest that makes success inevitable.

We will tell you more in detail of our methods if you will drop us a line. You will be under no obligation and we have an interesting story of success to tell.
