

BREAK WITH FRANCE SURE, SAYS PRIEST

L'Abbe Ernest Dimnet Declares Ties Are Pulling Farther Apart Daily

PRESS RULES, HE STATES

That the friendship now existing between America and France cannot last was the statement made by L'Abbe Ernest Dimnet, professor of English of College Stanislas, Paris, in a lecture at Houston Hall, University of Pennsylvania, yesterday afternoon.

Daily the ties which now connect the relations of his country and the United States are being pulled further and further apart, he said. That the American press, in its constant writings upon this international relationship, is responsible for the opinion of the French priest.

"What is America?" asked the great French soldier. "Is it your President, your Congress, your universities, your people or your press?"

"We are told that your President is not the representative of the spirit of the American people as we believed that he was. Your Congress is not a unified spirit, and so you can cancel the suggestions, and the press and its powerful voice remains alone.

"America has given much to France. Her great wealth, her transaction in great figures, has interested them. The great size of your country has given them new ideas of hope and strength. Your quick power of organization, your great army bases in our country have taught lessons."

"Today the French desire a new constitution. They do not want longer that constitution drawn by monarchists providing for a weak president and a strong Chamber of Deputies. The war makes them cry for a leader. They saw how your President, with strength and will power, took hold of your organization

PASSENGERS GLAD, COACHES RETURNED

Up-to-Date Cars, Long Missing Under Federal Control, Are Back Again

P. R. R. LOST 1200 CARRIERS

Two Held as Thief Suspects

Harry Butler, of Burns street, twenty-one years old, and Anthony Neri, alias James Griffo, of Newark, N. J., twenty-one years old, were held in 8800 hall each by Magistrate Oswald for a further hearing. They were arrested by Special Policemen Hyle, Ginty and Lacey, after, it is alleged, they had robbed a chewing gum machine and attempted to steal an automobile near Broad and Thompson streets about 2 o'clock this morning. They fled at the approach of the policeman and several shots were fired before they were captured near Twelfth and Thompson.

War period, both in comfort and appearance, and as a result they were not greeted in friendly terms.

During the term of federal control the Pennsylvania Railroad lost nearly 1200 cars. About 800 of these have been returned after a wild experience in the West.

The Philadelphia and Reading line lost 350 cars as the result of the varying moods of the railroad administration. All but a few of these have been returned.

Many of the freight cars which are accustomed to travel over local tracks are still hanging in the sunshine on the coast of California.

Transit Day Set for April 7

Transit Day will be observed by the Frankford Board of Trade Wednesday, April 7. Five-minute speakers will be sent into industrial plants and resolutions will be passed calling upon the proper officials to remedy existing transit conditions. On the same evening a mass-meeting will be held in the Frankford Library, with George R. Schweitzer as the chairman and principal speaker.

There is joy among local travelers—especially those who frequently go seaward—at the return of the up-to-date passenger coaches to this city.

Hundreds of these cars have been wandering in all parts of the country during the war. When the railroads went under federal control many of the coaches in this vicinity were shifted to the South and Northwest. By way of reciprocity a large number of the coaches on southern lines were sent here.

Many were of the vintage of Civil
