

MRS. WILSON SUGGESTS MENU FOR THREE MEALS ON SUNDAY

Selection of Fish Should Be Guided by Knowledge of Certain Necessary Points of Condition and Looks

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

THE selection of fish in the menu of the year round provides splendid variety. A wide choice of varieties from the inexpensive haddock to the luxurious and expensive salmon is a wide step and many varieties, and prices intervene.

Please Tell Me What to Do

What of Platonic Friendship? Dear Cynthia—As a frequent reader of your interesting column I should like to suggest for discussion a topic which to me seems both interesting and worth while.

Platonic friendships are possible, of course, but they are very improbable. It depends entirely on the kind of man and woman involved in the friendship.

She is Worried Dear Cynthia—As everybody comes to you with their troubles, I think you are a reliable and soothing person, and I also will try to be consoled by your good advice.

Boys Do Like Them Dear Cynthia—We are two girls who like to go out to dances and have a good time in the right way, but it seems that the decent girls nowadays do not have much show.

I Wish a Word With the Women It is the woman in the home that most appreciates the value of hard-wood floors. SHE knows how much easier they are to keep clean, understands their sanitary value, realizes how they add richness and quality atmosphere to any room, how they save money by making it possible to use rugs that can easily be replaced one at a time, instead of requiring a whole new carpet when it becomes only partially worn.

I Now Offer, for a Limited Time, a Real Money-Saving Opportunity The abnormal weather conditions have stopped or deferred building operations, and during this slack season I am prepared to make special low prices to keep all my loyal, expert staff busy every minute.

I Can Make Your Old Floors Like New at comparatively small expense by my special methods of renovating.

Rare White Mice

Dear Madam—Having read so many helpful things in your column I wonder if you will be so kind as to help me with a little problem.

Wants to Be an Extra Dear Madam—Kindly let me know through your column where there are moving picture studios in or near Philadelphia, as I would like to apply for an extra.

Dear Cynthia—We are two girls who like to go out to dances and have a good time in the right way, but it seems that the decent girls nowadays do not have much show.

Dear Cynthia—As everybody comes to you with their troubles, I think you are a reliable and soothing person, and I also will try to be consoled by your good advice.

I am a young girl, but quite old enough to have good sense; am deeply in love with a young man who is in another city. Do you think I am true when I go to dances and go out with other fellows, and it seems when I am with them I have a very nice time?

Are you engaged to this young man? If you are it would be more fair to him to tell him of the good times you are having. Otherwise you are not required to do so.

Dear Cynthia—We are two girls who like to go out to dances and have a good time in the right way, but it seems that the decent girls nowadays do not have much show.

Just be jolly, sensible girls and you'll have plenty of good times. Welcome to the K. U. H. Club.

THE GLAD SURRENDER

The Illness of the Baby

Laurel Stone's marriage to Granville Burton surprised every one, including Granville himself. He had not felt the need of remarrying until he realized that his two little girls should have a mother.

IT WAS NOT until then that Laurel realized what a passion of love she had given to Junior. It was as though she had been forced to give some of the love that she had felt for Granville to something that was his.

The boy had pneumonia, and Laurel refused to have any one near him. She did everything herself. When she slept it was on a couch in the nursery.

"She must get out," he said to Granville. "She must take exercise and eat and rest, or she will break down. She is trying to bottle up her emotions, and it is a terrible thing for a woman like Laurel. See what you can do for her, Gran."

The boy had pneumonia, and Laurel refused to have any one near him. She did everything herself. When she slept it was on a couch in the nursery.

These are evidently Japanese mice, they are very rare. Pet shops sell them for about fifty cents apiece.

THE WOMEN WHO DON'T ASK FOR THE RIGHT DEPARTMENT

When They Telephone a Complaint and Get Angry Because They Have to Repeat Their Message—It's All Their Own Fault, Anyhow

THE clerk in the complaint department answered the telephone. "Yes," the person at the other end of the wire remarked.

"This is the complaint department," the clerk explained. "What did you want to ask about?"

"Oh, how many times do I have to go over that whole thing before I get the answer I want?" exasperated tones exclaimed, "I want Johnson's store."

"This is Johnson's store, the complaint department," the clerk said smoothly, patiently. "If you'll tell me what you want I'll try to help you."

"Oh, do I have to go over all that again? I've said it about eighteen times. Why don't you listen to what I say and get it the first time?"

"I'm sorry, madam, but this is the first time you have been connected with me, and I really cannot help you unless you tell me what it is you want."

"Oh, well—I bought some material there yesterday and had it sent out and it hasn't come yet. Now, my dressmaker is here today and I was planning to have her make that dress first thing this morning, and now she can't do it because the material hasn't come."

"After some trouble on the part of the clerk the matter was straightened out in just about the same amount of time it had taken for all the conversation. The customer could have been through with her complaint, satisfied and back to her dressmaker in half the time if she had kept her chip on her shoulder instead of letting unavoidable mistakes knock it off.

the proper department in the first place. It takes much less time to sing your little song: "I want to ask about some material that I bought which didn't come"; "I bought some material there yesterday and it didn't come"; "The material that I bought yesterday hasn't come yet—why?" until you find somebody who can tell you the why. Or perhaps it would be still better to know what department you want, ask for it right away and not be required to give any excuses at all.
