A BUSINESS MAN FOR CONGRESSMAN

Charles Delany for Representative to Succeed Hon. J. Hampton Moore from the Third Pennsylvania District

To the Republican Voters of the Third Congressional District the following correspondence is self-explanatory:

Mr. Charles Delany, Frankford & Girard Avenues, Philadelphia. Dear Mr. Delany: For fourteen years the Third Congressional District of Pennsylvania, comprising the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 11th, 12th, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th Wards of Philadelphia, has been represented in Congress by Hon. J. Hampton Moore, who resigned the office to take up the duties of Mayor. The time has come to anticipate the selection of Mr. Moore's successor. There is no congressional district in the United States with more varied business interests, with more important requirements than this district, which was so long and so well represented by Congressman Moore. With a population approximating 300,000 teeming with great business concerns, filled with almost numberless plants of production and distribution, the seat of many transportation systems by land and water, the working place and home of thousands of laborers, this district, always a most important one, is more than ever one that should be represented in Congress by a man of not only exceptional ability and experience, but one who is directly identified with its commercial and financial institutions, thoroughly informed of its needs and in full sympathy with the necessity of forceful and faithful action. We are experiencing the results of years of Democratic mismanagement, inefficiency and waste. We are operating under the lowest tariff of our history, and the great influx of foreign goods, checked by the war, is now increasing in alarming measure. Merchandise from abroad for January amounted to nearly $500,000,000 on foreign valuation, which is much less than the value of such domestic production as was displaced. When Europe begins again to send us her fabrications in normal measure we shall be swamped with competing goods, and no congressional district in the country will be more affected than the Third District of Pennsylvania. We need, therefore, a man at Washington to represent this district who is an earnest protectionist and who will have not only the desire, but the ability to demand at the earliest possible moment a return to equitable import duties. In short, we want a practical, able, experienced business man, who will give his time and undivided attention to the requirements of this district in particular, and the State and country in general. Such a man we believe you to be, and we most earnestly beg that you will consent to be a candidate for Representative in order that, if nominated and elected, as we are confident you would be, we could have the benefit of your exceptional qualifications in the prosecution of the work so necessary for the welfare of the workers and residents of this portion of our city. The undersigned represent the industrial activities of the district, and are sure that we are asking the best man that can be found to represent us at Washington.

J. H. Mull, Milton D. Gehris, Charles J. Webb, Charles P. Vaughan, William G. Berlinger and Others. Gentlemen: I am complimented and honored by your communication asking me to be a candidate for nomination as Representative in Congress from the Third Pennsylvania District. I can agree with you that a business man acquainted and connected with the commercial, financial and transportation activities of the district should be chosen to represent the workers in this very important portion of our city. I have been engaged in business in this district 45 years, and if you think my experience would be of value at Washington, I accept your request with the pledge that if nominated and elected I would give to the duties of the office my undivided and faithful attention. I thank you for the trust you impose, and remain, Most sincerely yours, (Signed) CHARLES DELANY.

Charles Delany is a typical Philadelphia business man. In 1874, when only 17 years of age, he started with the firm of Delany & Company, of which his father was the head, and 19 years afterwards became himself head of the firm, relinquishing active connection last July after 45 years of hard work and successful attainment. During the 4 years from 1909 to 1913 Mr. Delany was President of the National Glue and Gelatine Manufacturers' Association of the United States. Since 1914 Mr. Delany has been President of the Kensington National Bank, and to state that the business of the institution has doubled since Mr. Delany became its President is the highest tribute that could be paid to his business sagacity and energy. Mr. Delany was most active during the war in connection with the various bond and welfare activities of his business and bank. He is justly proud of the fact that his son, Howard, volunteered at the outset of the war, was commissioned a captain in May, 1917, went across to France in October, was promoted to major and then to lieutenant-colonel. As assistant chief of operations of the motor transport corps he participated in active fighting service in the Chateau Thierry Drive and in the various Argonne campaigns; received citation from the United States Government and medal of honor from French Government. He is now at the head of the firm of Delany & Company. Mr. Delany has a wife and two other children, is a trustee of the Oxford Presbyterian Church, a member of the Chamber of Commerce, Union League and Manufacturers' Club, having formerly been a director of the latter. He has been a lifelong Republican and a staunch protectionist. In his own business he has directly felt the injury of too low import duties and he has a full appreciation of what is in store for the business of Philadelphia and the country if the present tariff is not changed. He would carry to Washington just the business ability and experience that will be needed by the next Congress, and if nominated and elected would be found constantly in faithful attendance both at committee work and on the floor of the House. Mr. Delany should make an ideal candidate, for he has the unqualified esteem of not only the business men of the Third District, where he has been engaged in business for nearly half a century, but also the workmen of the district, who know of his fair and liberal policies.

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED, Republican Business Men's Association of the Third Congressional District CHARLES W. ASBURY, SECRETARY

Oil breaks down in motors—but how fast? That is the one certain test of quality that any novice can make—right from the driver's seat, for the question is answered by how long the oil lasts. Heat destroys the volatile units in oil, leaving useless carbon. Quality oils suffer a greater resistance to heat—they break down slower, in consequence, and last longer. The next time you fill up with oil note how many miles you get for your money—then make exactly the same test with Crew Levick Motor Oil.
