ROBBED, LOCKED IN ICEBOX

Storekeeper Says He Handed Over $50 When Held With Gun

An armed man held up Isaac Dublin, he told the police, in his delicatessen shop at 2016 Frankford avenue at 7:30 o'clock last night, and after locking Dublin in a small icebox, escaped with $50 in cash.

The man entered the store alone and asked for a pound of coffee. When the proprietor of the store started for the coffee he was halted at the cash register.

"Make no noise," said the robber, whipping out a revolver. "Hand over the banknotes in the cash register—don't bother with the change."

Dublin says he gave the man $50 in notes. The robber then backed him to the rear of the store and made him climb into a small icebox, less than three feet square. Locking the icebox, the robber quietly left the store.

Hearing muffled shouts, Miss Bertha Dublin, who was in the Dublin home at the rear of the store, investigated and released her brother.

Police of the Berks and Clearfield streets station were notified. The robber wore a blue overcoat and a brown felt hat.

TO FIX SHOE PRICES TODAY

Dealers Will Meet With Fair Charge Committee

Actual prices to be asked for shoes and other footwear will be determined today, when retail shoe men of the city meet with the Philadelphia fair-price committee in the Finance Building.

Involved and other records showing the actual wholesale cost of shoes will be produced by the shoe dealers. On the basis of this evidence, the shoe men and Joseph Hagedorn, chairman of the committee, will fix definite retail prices.

In every instance these prices must come within the limits agreed upon by the Pennsylvania Shoe Retailers' Association and Federal Fair-price Committee.

The increase over the wholesale price for men's and women's service shoes is to be from 40 to 60 per cent; for children's shoes, 33 1/2 to 50 per cent, with higher rates for fancy shoes.

PROBE ACCOUNTS OF SCHOOL HEAD

Haddonfield Board Starts Audit After Prof. Alan D. Hanson Disappears

DODGES RADNOR WARRANT

An audit of the accounts of the Haddonfield school board is being made today, following the disappearance of Prof. Alan D. Hanson, supervising principal of the public schools of the borough.

The principal slipped away late yesterday just in time to dodge service of a warrant sworn out by the Radnor township school board, charging him with the theft of $50 typewriters from the Rosemont School, where he was principal a year ago.

The audit that is going on has given rise to many rumors. One of these is that the missing principal has absconded with large amounts of school funds. J. Linton Engle, president of the Haddonfield Board of Education, when asked about the rumored shortage, answered "Our case is in the hands of Prosecutor Charles A. Wolvorton, of Camden."

Bank Notified "I have notified the bank where the school funds are on deposit to be on the lookout for forged checks. However, any school funds for which he would have to have dupliated on each check, the names of the president of the school board, the cashier and the board treasurer. I hardly think this could be done successfully."

Prosecutor Wolvorton said this morning he had not yet had time to make a complete investigation into the case, but would be able to tell later in the day just how matters stood.

Residents of Haddonfield recalled today a strange incident that occurred near the high school Thursday night of last week, when a person in woman's clothes, but apparently a man, was seen acting suspiciously around the school.

A woman resident of the town was passing the school about 8 o'clock. She saw a peculiar-looking "woman" glance at the school building as if reconnoitering and then sneak into the yard.

Intruder Vanishes The observer screamed and the intruder grabbed up the female attire and ran quickly around the building and disappeared. A group of armed men searched for the stranger later, but were unable to find him, or her.

The principal was scheduled to preside at a debate in the high school building last night between the students of his school and the debating team from the Collingswood High School.

According to Chief of Police Baxter, of Haddonfield, Mr. Hanson was principal of the Rosemont School at a salary of $1500 a year before going to Haddonfield.

Five typewriters used in the Rosemont school disappeared, later being found in the Haddonfield schools, and two Haddonfield school typewriters have now been found missing. The warrant brought to Haddonfield last night by Chief Martin Mulhall, of Wayne, Pa., was for Hanson on the charge of the theft of the Rosemont school machines.

It was this warrant that started the ball rolling. Hanson heard of it and drove in his roadster to the Camden ferry, where he abandoned the car and has since not been seen or heard of.

The professor was a power in the community. Only recently he was ordained as a lay preacher. Last Sunday night he filled the pulpit of the Haddonfield Methodist Church. His text was "Eternity and How to Get There." Hanson addressed the Civic Association on several occasions. Hanson also moved in the best of society and he was always a welcome guest in the homes of Haddonfield's best families.

Teacher Involved The matter of the typewriters was taken up by the school board, but Professor Hanson is said to have disclaimed all responsibility for their presence in the school. A teacher who was dismissed some time ago was accused of knowing something about the typewriters, it is said.

Professor Hanson came to Haddonfield in January of 1919. He had been highly recommended and was paid a salary of $3000 yearly. He had his own automobile. The professor told a story of his wife being killed and his daughter abducted by Mexican bandits while the family was residing near the Mexican border.

He taught for a short time at Wayne when he came to Haddonfield. Hanson has pleasant personality. He has gray hair. His condition of health had been poor for several weeks past.

Was Held in High Esteem Hanson was regarded as an exemplary man, according to a statement made yesterday by J. Linton Engle, president of the Haddonfield school board, who is associated with the Holmes Press, 1315 Cherry street, Philadelphia. He was at a loss to explain the motive for his alleged theft of the typewriters or what his action may have been after deserting the automobile.

Last year the missing teacher was principal of the public school in Wayne from which the typewriters were removed. He obtained his position with the Haddonfield school through a teachers' agency which recommended him highly.

Hanson is said to have a great love for children, and in the New Jersey town he is known to have spent a great deal of his leisure time with the young people of the community. He was writing a series of articles for a New Jersey newspaper on how to bring up children.

MOORE MEN PLAN FIGHT TO FINISH

Conference Held in Mayor's Office to Battle Vares in Congress Election

AGREE ON CANDIDATES

Battle plans for a "fight to the finish" against the Vares organization in the Third congressional district were drawn up today at a conference in Mayor Moore's office.

Besides the Mayor himself, the conferees were Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association; City Solicitor David J. Smyth, Thomas W. Cunningham, president of the Republican Alliance, and John Voorhees, alliance secretary.

After the conference had been under way a short time, Harry S. McDevitt, secretary to Governor Sprout, entered hurriedly. The Governor is to fix a date for a special election to name a successor to Mayor Moore from the Third district. It is believed May 18, the date of the spring primary, will be decided upon.

Charles Delaney, president of the Kensington National Bank, who has agreed to run for the congressional vacancy against the Vares candidate, Harry C. Ransley, Republican, was not at today's conference. The presence of Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Voorhees indicated that ward and division organizations were being prepared for the contest.

Mr. Delaney said this morning that he met Mayor Moore yesterday for the first time at a luncheon at the Union League. The administration candidate for Congress said that he and the Mayor talked things over and planned for future conferences.

"What are you going to do about the special election?" Mr. Delaney was asked. "I haven't given that matter thought as yet. I will, of course, discuss the situation with my friends, including no doubt, the Mayor."

Moore candidates for delegates to the Republican national convention and for the state Legislature were agreed upon in Moore meetings last night. In the Fifth Congressional district, William D. Diston and Joseph H. Bromley were selected for the national convention. No decision was reached as to whether or not the Moore men would support Congressman Costello for re-nomination.

In the First district, downtown, Joseph Argenti and O. Carter were named as candidates for national delegates against Congressman Vares and Councilman Hall, the Vares candidates.

Alternates Are Chosen Alternates chosen were Joseph S. Devine and Maurice Saeto. Candidates for the state House of Representatives from the First district named were Samuel Sloan and James Cosens; from the Second district, Alfred Fortunato was named. Two anti-Vares candidates for the state House in the Fifth Legislative district agreed upon were John Singery and Isaac S. L. Smith.

The Forty-seventh ward the Republican Alliance endorsed Joseph McIntosh for the state House from the Twentieth district. Frank Stackhouse, a lieutenant of Robert Grier, of the Eighteenth ward, will contest for the State House from the Eleventh district, with Richard Curry, a friend of Councilman Hetzell, one of the Vares ten in Council.

WANT SICK LEAVE WITH PAY

Fifteen Days Each Year Sought by Gloucester School Teachers

Gloucester City school teachers want fifteen days' sick leave each year with pay, and they are opposed to paying substitute teachers $3.50 per day when they are off a day.

They set forth these facts last night when a committee selected by the forty-two teachers appeared before the teachers' committee of the board of education. The teachers receive from $90 to $120 per month and the pay for substitutes previous to this month was $1.50 per day. The school board decided that proper substitutes could not be had at this rate and at the last meeting decided that a regular teacher when off should pay the substitute $3.50.

The committee informed the teachers that it would make a report to the school board at the next meeting.

A Vacuum Cleaner Can Do Only the Work it is Built For

The development of Sturtevant Vacuum Cleaners was not an accident. It was in keeping with Sturtevant's sixty years' manufacture of air apparatus. Sturtevant puts vacuum cleaning on the engineering basis of work to be done. One type of vacuum cleaner cannot do every kind of work; so Sturtevant machines range from three-wheeled portable vacuum cleaners for small homes to powerful stationary horizontal cleaners for public buildings, schools, and theatres. Every machine cleans entirely by air and is just as sturdy as the giant Sturtevant Fans and Blowers, the strongest in the world.

Stationary Vacuum Cleaners

A Sturtevant Stationary Vacuum System can be quickly installed in buildings already completed or in course of construction. A Sturtevant installation increases the value of your property.

The vertical cleaner, shown on the left, is a size "A," which is ideal for houses of ten to twenty rooms, using twenty-five feet of hose and one sweeper at a time. This model of cleaner is also made in sizes "B" and "B-2," which are intended for small hotels, clubhouses, churches, large private houses, etc.

Every Sturtevant installation more than fulfills the purposes it is intended for. A Sturtevant engineer plans and oversees every job. He never recommends anything but what is suitable. To find out more about this vacuum cleaner, telephone or write to the district office listed below or ask your own architect. A Sturtevant representative will gladly tell you all about this method of putting air to work.

Again and Again And Again

A newspaper or a magazine in its editorial columns must follow a course quite different from the methods profitable in its advertising columns.

Every day or every week or every month, as the case may be, the publication must come out with new news, new dress, new stories, new illustrations.

Today it is the flu, or Prince Edward's visit, or a new tate by Talbot Mundy. Yesterday it was something else, and so it will be tomorrow.

But every day, every week, every year the advertiser tells you of Goodyear Tires, of Columbia Grafonolas, of Fatimas or of two-score more.

You forget who piloted R-34—by the way, who did? But you cannot forget the Smith brothers.

The greatest achievement of courage or inventive genius, the most diabolical crimes, live in public print only for a few brilliant days.

The chief strength of advertising lies in saying it again and again and again.
