Favors Daylight Saving

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:—I have read a great many front-page notices and a good many editorials from newspapers all over the eastern section of the country, but the one your man wrote for the EVENING PUBLIC LEADER, evening of March 25, is by far and away ahead of anything I have had the pleasure of reading. You are on the right track, and if the papers all over the eastern section take the same stand as you have and keep hammering it will not be long until we knock some good, common sense into the heads of Congress. Had the city members been in their seats when the members from the country sprung the repeal in Congress it never would have passed.

You probably know that Mayor Moore is for daylight saving and that only one member of Councils, Mr. Buckholz, is against it. Practically all the rest would be willing to do anything, from President Washington, in order to get daylight saving, but they are helpless owing to the action of our law in the state of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Emil P. Albrecht, of the Bourne, president, and Ernest T. Trigg, president of the chamber of commerce, and the powerful factors, with their organizations back of them, in getting daylight saving through Congress. If we fail to get Congress to act, and if New Jersey later acts on the matter in conjunction with New York, Mayor Moore and Councilman Lewis held his committee meeting the other day the workingman did not want to get up winter and summer in the dark. His statement made him look both ridiculous and foolish.

When Councilman Lewis held his committee meeting the other day the workingman did not want to get up winter and summer in the dark. His statement made him look both ridiculous and foolish.

ing that saving would be effected by the extra hour of daylight. The strongest arguments, however, were presented by Messrs. Bennis, Thomas and Bator and others, who stated that in their twilight baseball games played three times a week as high as 5000 people attended such games, enjoying not only the game but getting the benefit of the fresh air at the same time.

The Dentists' Association also presented arguments that in the heat of the summer months they could work so much better until 9:00 p. m. without turning on the gas or electric, and it was much more comfortable for the patient.

The working man and woman who is penned up in the office or factory all day are the main people who are calling out for the extra hour of daylight. No matter where you go or how big the crowds are you find nine out of every ten for daylight saving.

Keep your ear to the ground and you will note that a prominent railroad is more than likely to push clocks ahead one hour for all trains running in the state of New Jersey. This will practically force the Senate of New Jersey to take action with the House and Governor over these or have the people in New Jersey up in arms against them. The people have not paid much attention to persons who were here before elected to the House and Senate of the different states, but they are here to stay and will have their attention in the future. The same thing will apply to the members elected to Congress in Washington.

Overwhelming majority in the House of both states shows which way the wind is blowing. The action of all big cities in following the stock exchange in New York city shows which way it is finally going to drift. You will strike the popular chord of what the people want at the psychological moment.

Go to it, and keep it up. The last twenty-four hours you have received plenty of backing and encouragement, and if you will keep your ear to the ground, although I am not in a position to tell you, you will find lots of encouragement from a certain thing that is going on in Philadelphia. I know had been done.

been loyal to the college, many remaining when offered better paying positions in other colleges. One former member of the faculty was called three different times before he consented to exchange Bryn Mawr for Harvard. Such facts as these prove that the members of the faculty desire to remain at Bryn Mawr, but that the salary paid is so inadequate that they find it impossible to do so.

There are several colleges to which Philadelphia women naturally turn for a college education. The University of Pennsylvania and Bryn Mawr College probably supply the greatest number of Philadelphia high school teachers. Therefore the quality of the Philadelphia faculty concerns the citizens of Philadelphia more directly than they perhaps realize.

At the present time there are thirty-seven Bryn Mawr alumnae teaching in the Philadelphia high schools. Two alumnae are heads of departments, a former graduate student is also head of a department. Nine per cent of all women teachers in the Philadelphia high schools are Bryn Mawr alumnae. Not only are the alumnae teaching in every Philadelphia high school for girls, but also in many of the private schools of the city.

Therefore it is evident that the training of the Philadelphia schoolgirl is in large measure dependent upon the teaching influence of the Bryn Mawr faculty. It would seem the part of wisdom for the parent of the Philadelphia schoolgirl to aid in raising the salary standard and thereby assure to Bryn Mawr college a faculty of as sterling a quality in the future as she has always maintained in the past.

ACCUSED BY 20 WOMEN

Complainants Say Man Defrauded Them by Various Schemes

Charges that a man had defrauded them by various false pretenses were made by twenty women who appeared as prosecutors before Magistrate Wrigley, at the Front and Westmoreland streets station yesterday.

The man, George Swan, of Kensington avenue and Ontario street, was held in $1500 bail for court. He is said to have confessed that he had used several schemes to defraud women.

One woman said he had come to her home and declared he had been a companion of her son who had been killed in France. He said he was badly in need of money, the woman testified, and she had given him varying sums.
