MRS. WILSON GIVES SOME SPLENDID FISH RECIPES

Plenty of Good, Wholesome Dishes for Last Week in Lent, When Many Do Without Meat

I time to give the family a treat. I sually at this season the markets are abundantly supplied with fish and as many church people, in respect to Pas-sion Week, eachew meats from Tuesday until after Easter Sunday. I have col-lected some splendid fish recipes that I time to give the family a treat. I wour home when Easter time comes I doubt not that you will want to fill one or maybe more baskets. Oh, those baskets of eggs-gaily colored with most marvelous dyes, tiny jelly eggs, rich, luscious eggs! And always, of course. each basket is ruled over by a straight-backed bunny, whose nest must be soft backed bunny, whose nest must be soft and comfortable. For the nest, then, comes shredded grass, in green or pur-ple, for five cents for a large-size bag. Nests that are lined with this grass will, indeed, be bright and festive.

Dorothea regarded her white ivory buffer ruefully. "I dropped a match on it." she said sorrowfully. "and it has made a nasty brown mark." But 'tia not for nothing that I am her friend. I straightway told her of the paste for cleaning ivory toilet article and great was her joy when she found that it removed the stain as completely as if it had never been there. This same paste, which can be had for fifty cents a tube, will remove all stains and spots and will keep your ivory set looking as fresh and clean as new.

Marion H.—You were right to ask for the return of the umbrella, but I am afraid the manner of asking was not tactful. It was rather pronounced to write about the umbrella after he had stopped calling. It would have been so easy to speak of it in a light way as a reminder some evening when he called. At the same time, he was not polite in returning the umbrella as he did. You had better let the matter rest
