STAR PITCHERS, NINE OF THEM, LOSE DECISIONS IN FIRST START OF YEAR; ALEX AND JOHNSON ARE HIT HARD

1518N'T it peculiar," remarked the baseball fan yes-terday while the rain was dampening the landscape and making possible a double-header in the near future, how the star pitchers are getting socked and slaughtered in the early games this year? They don't seem able to get by with their stuff. Wonder if they are getting old?"

The fap, who is a very observing guy anyway, had the proper dope. The stellar slingers have had a hard time of it thus far and emerged from the initial scrimmages with lop-sided slams. They took the slap when least expected, which again proves you never can tell, in

On opening day Grover Cleveland Alexander, known broughout the land as the twirling trump of the Chicago Cubs, started against the Reds, of Cincinnati, all steamed up to turn the champions on their ears. But the act went flooie. Moran's men fell upon the famous flinger's fast ones and scored three runs in the first inning. Sev eral more trickled over the platter before the finale, the Reds winning easily by the score of 7 to 3.

The next day came Hippo Vaughn, regarded by all of our leading experts as the very best port-sider toiling in the fast set. Hippo was expected to even up the series, but was walloped hard in the first two episodes and lost his game by a close score. Thus the two big hurling aces were eliminated on successive days.

But that's not the half of it. Big Eppa Rixey was treated shamefully in Brooklyn. Jess Barnes started a losing streak in New York, Sothoron was smeared by Cleveland and Bob Shawkey took the count in Shibe Park.

SCOTT PERRY gained the decision because the big boy was in form and had a lot of stuff.

Johnson Lasts Only Two Rounds

WALTER JOHNSON'S grand opening was delayed by rain or something like that, so he waited until Thursday before appearing against the Red Sox. Now every e will admit the Smoke King is a great pitcher and has all of the other American Leaguers stopped, but he got the brown derby just the same. In two innings Boston hummered his offerings all over Fenway Park, and after five runs had been scored Griffith told him to take an early

It is such a rare occurrence when Johnson is removed from the mound that the baseball fan couldn't help mentioning it. Walter usually breezes along without any annoyance and has the other club stepping into the water bucket. However, he got off on the wrong foot, had a bad day and received treatment which usually is handed out to a busher. And still Johnson has not gone back. He is just as good as ever. Just a bad day—that's all—a bad day.

While Walter was being knocked woozy, Lefty Cooper of the Pirates, was getting slammed by the St. Looie Cards. Lefty. too, is a classy performer, but couldn't gain the verdict over Ferdie Schupp. Ferdie, by the way. seems to have recovered from his injured wing and is pegging fast and furious these days. He still is a trifle wild, but that's only a minor fault. But let's continue.

Fred Toney, referred to as the Tennessee Tractor by Charley Heeb, who is an expert, was vanquished by Joe Oeschger, of the Braves. True, Tractor Toney was handed the short end of a 1 to 0 score, but close ones don't count in the percentage column. He was trimmed and is recorded as such.

THUS we have nine star pitchers on the losing list when most of them were expected to win easily. Imagine a ball club with Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander, Hippo Vaughn, Lefty Cooper, Allan Sothoron, Bob Shawkey, Jim Barnes, Fred Toney and Eppa Rixey for mound duty! You'd bet the old homeatead they wouldn't lose a game all season. Yet every one was defeated in a period of two days. Funny thing, this baseball.

Gleich Benched Because of Poor Fielding BEFORE the clouds sprung a leak yesterday Miller Huggins decided to assign a couple of square feet on the bench to Frank Gleich, the kid outfielder who was lured from his home in Saginaw, Mich., this spring. The

Yank manager restored Sam Vick to good standing, and

Sam will be seen in right field until further notice. Gleich's case is a funny one. It has a sout of a reverse English twist, for the boy was not canned because of his failure to hit. In fact, he won Thursday's game with a timely single in the seventh, driving in the first two rups. But his fielding was atrocious, and that's the strange part of it. Nine times out of ten, when a rookie outfielder reports at the training camp he can cover more ground than a racehorse, catch fly balls all over the place, but flivvers at the Time and again swell fielders have been cast adrift because of their failure to hit, but mighty few have been chased because of a poor defense. Gleich is a likely looking youngster, however, and will improve with age. With another year's experience under his belt he will be a

Vick is a good all-around man and will strengthen the ball club. In addition to his prowess on the diamond. he is the second best eater on the club. He held the championship last year, but lost it to Rip Collins last month in Jacksonville. Rip is a new pitcher and hails from Texas. He once was a Texas Ranger and appeared in the camp carrying a brace of trusty 44s. The boys prevailed upon him to leave-the hardware in the safe while roaming through the streets, and the pitcher consented after a violent argument.

But he introduced himself to the boys in an alarming manner. One night there was a poker game in one of the ooms and Collins decided to sit in. The contest was in full blast when he arrived, but his chair was waiting He sat down, looked around at his future opponents and slowly drew his two loaded revolvers from their Placing them in front of him, in easy reach,

Merkle's Absence Weakens Cubs

TRED MERKLE'S sore arm must be more serious than was first supposed, as he still is on the sidelines and Turner Barber is playing first base. This puts Dode Paskert back in center field and the Cubs are not presenting a very strong line-up. Some of the National League managers already are discounting the Chicago club, and say Mitchell will be lucky if he finishes in the first division. Still, it must be remembered that Alexander and Vaughn should win close to fifty games between them, and that's a pretty good start.
