Nancy Wynne Tells of Many Going to New York for the Tower-Whitney Wedding—She Talks of Tonight's Pageant at Memorial Hall

OF COURSE, a great many Philadelphians will go over to New York today for the Tower-Whitney wedding. You know it is to take place this afternoon in St. Bartholomew's Church on Fifth avenue. In fact, every one calls the ceremony the Vanderbilt St. Bartholomew because for so many years because of the family have attended service there. And you know Mrs. Whitney, the bride's mother, was Miss Whitney, a sister of the Countess Szechenyi.

Anyways, to return to the Philadelphia end of today's alliance, Roderick Tower is the son of the Charlemagne Towers and a brother of Charlemagne, Jr., and a brother of Mrs. Robertson, who was Helen Tower. The wedding will take place at 4 o'clock, and as I said before, there will be many Philadelphians there. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brinton Cox are going over, and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. B. Putnam, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lorimer, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Soutter, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Leitt, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Hutchings, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ridgway Kelly, Mr. Clement Huchler, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Sproul, Mr. and Mrs. Seton Schroeder, Jr. (she was Betty Putnam, you know, and a first cousin of Roderick Towers), and many others.

MEMBERS of the Colonial Dames of America Chapter 2 had a most interesting afternoon yesterday attending the services at the glorious church of St. Mark, when the beautiful procession which the chapter had presented to the church was dedicated.

There are only one or two other flags of this kind in existence, one which was designed by Dr. Henry M. McCarty, of the Church of the Advocate, is at that church and I hear there is another at St. Michael's Church in Germantown.

Besides the diocesan flag the Colonial Dames gave four correspondingly handsome silk flags of magnificent quality and color. These flags will eventually go to the Episcopal Cathedral, plans for which are under way.

I THOUGHT that Pauline Denckla, with her lovely lace frock and most picturesque brides I had seen for many a day on Saturday. She and her two sisters were perfectly lovely. And the bridesmaids' dresses were lovely. A lace silver gray and chiffon, a lace silver and black. Still, the silver and gold tones were very becoming, and the young matron and girls were very smart looking.

The ushers were all New York men, with the exception of Paul Denckla, Pauline's brother. It was together and I did like Le Grand Cannon's looks. They were going to Europe for a few weeks on their wedding trip, and I understand will live in New York, but that will spend the summer at Tuxedo Park, where they have taken a house.

DON'T you wonder what the school set will do now for a while? No more dancing class for this year! The Saturday Evening had its last meeting on Saturday, and Mrs. Wurts' class had its last party on Friday. However, it won't be many weeks before they will be through school, and then the early summer parties will start, and the camps will be ready by July.

Life for the growing boys and girls these days—when it isn't the camp it's the boarding school; and so they are home about a month throughout the year. However, as the boarding-school period is not apt to be a long one, it's generally a mighty good thing, for it teaches the youngsters a certain self-reliance; and, goodness knows, they need it these days.

TONIGHT we will have the wonderful pageant out at Memorial Hall. I am anxious to see it, for I do not think anything that the artists of Philadelphia set up is worth going to see. Do you remember that show they had at the Agency about five years ago? My! but wasn't there a rumper about that? You remember, Miss Janet Richards was here at the time, and she denounced the want of garments next day at one of her lectures, and every one was so excited between their desire to uphold their own artists' pageant against the criticisms of one from another city, and their wish to say that they were shocked at some of the costumes. Of course, there's to be nothing shocking in the costumes tonight; but it is to be a beautiful and most artistic affair.

AND tonight there will be the much-looked-forward-to Harvard (Glee Club) at the Bellevue-Stratford. Mr. Thomas J. Dolans will entertain in one of the boxes, and Miss Frances Wister will have a number of guests, too; while the Robert Benedicts will entertain for their daughter Alice.

SUSIE'S father had been a soldier in the American expeditionary force against those stationed in Germany. Somehow, it seems to me, that those who were in the occupied zone, and were apparently well treated by the Germans have less time for them as a nation ever than the men who fought them. Dad's ideas had their effect on Susie evidently, for she is a great little American, and you'll agree with me she does not like her little enemies. Miss D. asked me recently at Sunday school if any one else was surely in the lower regions if not the Germans? She promptly said, "Oh, yes! the Germans."

NANCY WYNNE. The wedding of Miss Mary Vogdes, daughter of Mrs. J. T. Vogdes, and Mr. Winthrop Biddle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Biddle, will take place quietly at noon on Wednesday, in Christ Episcopal Church, in the presence of the Rev. Dr. Louis C. Washburn will officiate. Miss Dorothy Vogdes will attend her Biddle, a brother, will act as best man.

Loeb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Loeb, of 1853 North Seventeenth street, and Mr. Leo Dessauer, of 2148 North Twelfth street, which was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Hotel Lorraine with the Rev. Joseph Krauskopf, D. D., of the Keneseth Israel Temple, officiating. The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with duchesse lace worn by her mother as a bride. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of duchesse lace and was caught with clusters of orange blossoms. Lilies-of-the-valley formed the marker in her ivory-bound Bible. Mr. Loeb gave his daughter in marriage and her attendants were Mrs. Walter S. Dessauer and Mrs. Benjamin H. Gordon. The former wore a robe of black spangled net over cloth of silver, and the latter a gown of peach-colored soft silk veiled with georgette crepe of the same shade. The bride's mother wore a black satin gown veiled with embroidered black net.

Mr. Walter S. Dessauer was his bride's best man, and Mr. Armand G. Loeb and Mr. Leonard Loeb, the bride's brothers, were ushers. A dinner for the families followed the service. Mr. and Mrs. Dessauer left on a trip and will be at home after May 1 at 2148 North Twelfth street. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Bloch, Mrs. A. Loeb, Mr. and Mrs. David Bressler, Miss Elsie Bloch, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewey, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Dalsimer, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Prestofel, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. A. Summers, Miss Ruth Summers, of Allentown, Pa., and Mr. Max Dessauer, of New Haven, Conn.

HURST-LEVY
An attractive home wedding that took place last evening was that of Miss Anna Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Levy, of 1850 North Eighth street, and Mr. Israel Hurst, of 931 North Franklin street. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents and was followed by a reception. A gown of soft white silk veiled with georgette crepe was worn by the bride, with a veil of tulle arranged with

SAXE-WEITZMAN
A wedding of interest in this city was that of Miss Lillian P. Weitzman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Weitzman, of 1201 Chestnut street, Camden, and Mr. Nathaniel Saxe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Saxe, of 1524 North Eighth street, which was solemnized at noon today at the Ritz-Carlton. The Rev.
