

CLEMENCEAU WON'T DISCUSS HIS FUTURE

Aged Statesman Returns to Paris From Egyptian Trip in Taciturn Mood

Paris, April 21.—(By A. P.)—Former Premier Clemenceau, who had been visiting Egypt for the last two months, arrived here this morning. He was alert and smiling, but avoided interviewers and would not be photographed.

He was met at the station by his brother Albert, his daughter Madame Jacquemaitte and his grandchildren. Many prominent men were present, among them being Captain Andre Tardieu, Louis Loucheur and Georges Lecomte, members of M. Clemenceau's cabinet. With them the grand old man gayly discussed his trip and his illness in Egypt, expressing satisfaction in returning home.

When he landed at Marseilles yesterday efforts were made to get the aged statesman to talk, but all were futile.

"The war is over, isn't it?" he exclaimed to one correspondent. "Yes? Well, all I want is to be left alone."

"What am I going to do? Why, just live until I die."

The "Tiger" growled out brief impressions of his visit to Egypt while the elephant tusk and mummy he brought back from the land of the Pharaohs were being placed on the dock.

"Those hot countries are no joke," he complained. "I got a fine case of bronchitis and found myself stuck in the middle of Egypt with both lungs out of commission. That's what comes from believing in mirages. Evidently I shall not die from it, for I am still more solid than my dear friends think, but it prevented me from visiting Palestine, as I had planned."

day efforts were made to get the aged statesman to talk, but all were futile.

The Cadillac Spirit

There is known in the world of industry, what has come to be called "The Cadillac Spirit."

It pervades the administrative offices; it permeates the shops. It diffuses among the production heads; it extends to the workmen at the bench.

It is not a studied, artificial atmosphere. It is rather an influence which comes from the intermingling of kindred spirits, engendered by a sincerity and unity of purpose.

It causes the Cadillac organization to stand out—as one apart.

It implants the principle that the nearly good is not good enough.

It provokes intolerance of the unworthy and the unfit.

It induces the craftsman to appreciate his personal responsibility.

It brings home to him that, like the chain which is no stronger than its weakest link, a product is no better than its weakest element. He knows that one imperfect part impairs the whole.

He is inspired by an eagerness to excel. He glows with pride as he tells of the part he plays.

For seventeen years the Cadillac Spirit has been manifesting itself in the goodness of the Cadillac Car.

And the goodness of the car, in turn, nourishes that spirit in the organization which produces it.

The Cadillac Spirit could come only with the zealous co-operation of those inspired by the same ideal—the production of the highest type of motor car—the car worthy to be known as Standard of the World.
