PHILS SKID OVER SALIVA SLANTS SERVED BY MITCHELL'S SOUTH PAW AND DROP BALL GAME TO ROBINS

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

BALL club representing Philadelphia had to lose t A championship contest yesterday, and as the A's did not play, the buck was passed to the Phils. The Crarathians accepted the honor gracefully, mingled with the Brooklyn Dodgers and played a full pine inning game. Now when a battle lasts as long as that on the home lot. ine times out of ten the locals are walloped and otherwise knocked for a gool. Such was the case yesterday. The Phils lost and our city batted .000 in major league

But we should worry over yesterday's defeat. The ne talent made a heroic effort to grab off a victory. out the aliens were too strong. Aided by Clarence Mitchell, a left handed saliva slinger, the Phils were urned back inning after inning, only one person being lowed to spike the plate. Mitchell is a sort of a unique tcher. True, he pitches with his left paw, but it's ore than that. He uses the spitter with reckless abandon, and is the only port sider in major league who uses that style of delivery. Against a curiosity like that, Gavvy's gents could not help but lose.

At the same time, the boys did not look sad in defeat. They always were dangerous, and even in the ninth there emed to be a chance to pull the game out of the fire. Jack Miller and Paulette soaked a pair of singles and were waiting auxiously to be sent home, but Rulph Miller hit into a double play and they were sent to the clubhouse

Cecil Algernon Causey, whose hair and neck are a vivid d, debutted before the gang as a moundsman. Cecil Algernon did some good work and showed he was a good pitcher. In the second, third and eighth innings he allowed what should have been perfect strikes to bounce off the bats of the Brooklynites for safe singles, but outside of that he was all right. He was taken out after the eighth inning, not because he was on the blick, but to allow Cravath to hit for him. Rixey finished the contest.

GAVVY inserted himself at the wrong time. He wasn't sore or anything like that, so he refused to knock a home run. Instead, he rolled a grounder to Olsen and Ivy nailed him at first.

Cy Williams Startles the Fans

THERE always is something strange and unusual at a ball game. Something always happens which causes wild excitement among the fans and furnishes material for a lot of lengthy arguments. It is one of the happy features of the game and makes it worth while.

The peculiar stuff was inserted in the sixth inning. when, for the first time in many years, Cy Williams stepped up, took a mighty swing and socked a hit into left field. This is not bunk. We saw it with our own If you watch carefully you will notice a shifting of the

He uses a different position at the plate, uses a different bat and perhaps that accounts for the unexpected hit. There must be some explanation, and this is as good as any. Yesterday he got two safeties. The other one was right in the right field groove, but he sent it on a line with the speed of a bullet. The ball went through Neis's hands and crowned him. The young right fielder was beaned, but recovered the pellet in time to hold

Witherow Acts Like Real Catcher

DRANK WITHEROW, a young eatcher, also was in troduced to the fana yesterday. Frank joined the club in Birmingham and did some excellent spring training. He was boosted highly by several scouts, and Johnny Castle said he was the best cutcher they had in Rockford. Ill., last year. Johnny managed that team and should know. Looking over the records, it was learned that Witherow was the first, second and third string catcher for Rockford. That club played 122 games and Witherow eaught 122 games. Therefore he unanimously is elected. was the best catcher Castle had last year.

However and be that as it may, the boy made a good impression yesterday. He caught a brilliant game, showed e could think, showed a throwing arm which kept the Brooklyn players close to the bases and prevented base thefts and knocked a long double which bounded off the spot on the center field wall where the ivy clings during the open season for clinging ivy. He also is fast, makes many throws to first and, judging from yesterday's performance, will make a valuable man for the club.

Young Ralph Miller did some good work at third base and is looking better every day. In the first inning he threw out the entire side, fielding three grounders perfeetly. Cravath believes Ralph will develop into a star third-sacker, and at the present writing it looks as if tiavvy was right.

GEORGE COLUMBIA SMITH is the pitcher for today's game, G. Columbia trimmed the Dodgers one day last week, and wants to see if lightning ever strikes in the same place twice.

The Umpire Wins Another Argument

THERE was an argument in the seventh inning and a cluster of Phils surrounded Pete Harrison to give yeut to silent wrath. Paulette was on first and started for second after Ralph Miller hit a grounder to Olson. When Kilduff caught the ball Paulette slid into him and the relay reached first base too late to complete a double play. From the stand it looked as if the Phils were arguing to save Miller from being called out for interference. But it was not that.

Although Paulette ran into Kilduff, it developed that the Philly players insisted he did not have his foot on the bag and Gene was safe. Harrison, however, thought otherwise, and Harrison won.

Three Factors
THERE are times when a thing is so of at twenty-eighth. It is the lowly single and the humble double upon which Tybuilds the bulk of his yearly averages the vital factor in getting distance was obvious you overlook it. A few days ago we eximmented upon the fact that the vital factor in getting distance was the speed of the club head, bat or racket. The weight of the implement is, of course, another factor. A heavy but or a heavy club head traveling at the same rate of speed will rive a ball further than a lighter weapon. But the average performer, of course, is able to get more speed from a lighter weight.

"There are three factors in obtaining distance," writes W. R. B. "One is the speed of the club head; the second is weight of the club head, and the third is the length of the club. It is the working of the three which creates a force that in turn imparts energy to the force that in turn imparts energy to the grip. ball. The definition of force is mass times acceleration.
