Rumor of Dark Horse

The Republican state committee has received a bit of "news" it is not anxious to reveal to the outside world. It is nothing less than a "straight tip" that the Republican big chiefs have al-

Primary Day Opening la Question

Puzzling to Gloucester Saloons Saloun keepers of Gloucester, N. J., are in a quandury as to whether they have the right to keep open today during the progress of the primary which is being held throughout the state from 12:30 to 9 o'clock tonight. The law specifies that places selling intoxicating liquors must remain closed while the election is in progress. Many saloon proprietors contend, however, that they are not selling intoxicating drinks and that their establishments are virtually the same as drug stores or other places selling soft drinks.
