Rufus Jones and Wilbur Thomas, chairman and secretary of the committee, respectively, told of an interview with Herbert Hoover in New York yesterday, when Mr. Hoover urged strongly that the work be continued, stating that conditions will be even more critical in 1920-21 than the last winter.

The official report of conditions in Germany shows that the prospects are that only 55 ter cent of the minimum amount of food needed to feed the population will be available next winter.

This condition is said to be even more serious in Vienna, for there virtually all agricultural land was taken away, transportation has failed and the problem of securing food from neighboring nations is difficult.
