Nancy Wynne Talks of the Trips to Europe This Year—Indoor Show Opens Today—Play at Bellevue Last Night. May-Day Revels at Bryn Mawr

THERE'S no doubt about it, Europe is the place to go this summer; every one is going over. So long as they confine themselves to England and France I do not believe they will have very difficult times, but it will not be as it was before the war. There is a scarcity of food there. Transportation is difficult. How-Paris is always Paris and London is always London. It is interesting to see the people who are going over this summer. I heard yesterday that Mr. and Mrs. George Brooke intend to go to the Mauritania on May 22. And all on the Mauritania is a daughter, Lucille Carter, Mrs. Brooke's daughter. They are going to Europe and to England and will stay there until the 1st of September. Probably the next week for a week or two and Mrs. Arthur... Miss Virginia Roberts and Mr. Percival Glendonning, whose engagement was recently announced, will be guests of honor at a dinner and theatre party to be given by Mrs. Theodore W. Reach this evening.

With the wonderful opening of the Indoor Horse Show at the fashion display on Monday there can be no doubt of the interest which will be taken in the show itself which starts this afternoon. All the boxes most fashionable taken and it will be a most successful night's party at the Bellevue. It was a sort of Egyptian evening and the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art. Every one was there and the boxes were brilliant to behold. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grove gave a party in honor of Virginia Roberts and Mrs. Harrison... Mrs. John W. Taylor and her daughter, Miss Polly Taylor, of St. Martins, Chestnut Hill, who have been visiting in Philadelphia for several days, are expected home today.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Nelson Carpenter and Miss Elizabeth E. Carpenter, who spent a few days ago at the home of Mrs. Warren Carter, were in the city on business. Mrs. Nelson returned from a six weeks' visit to California, having opened their home, Crofted street, St. Martins, Chestnut Hill, for the summer. THE WALNUT STREET SHOPPER

TO SHOP WITH PAULETTE IS TO FIND THE BEST AND MOST ATTRACTIVE VALUES UPON THIS FASCINATING STREET OF VERY SUPERIOR MERCHANDISE AND SERVICE. PAULETTE'S NAME IS FAST BECOMING A MAGIC WORD BETWEEN SHOPPER AND SHOP-PATRONS WHO USE IT ARE GIVEN A CORDIAL ATTENTION WHICH MAKES SHOPPING A PLEASURE.

I am wondering if you have ever paid a pleasant visit to Denney & Denney, Inc., at 1513 Walnut street. Truly, it lives up to its reputation of being a particular shop for fastidious people. It is delightfully spacious and exquisitely clean, and as you are going through the various processes to make you beautiful, which are indispensable to good grooming, you gaze out upon a garden waving which is there done at its best and safest by an improved method. Do you know anything about the new wave? At this establishment it requires from two to four hours and costs from $18 to $40, according to the number of curls. The wave lasts six months, or much longer, depending upon the hair. It is such a natural wave that moisture does not improve it. Permanently waved hair takes a wonderful wave wave. The permanent wave will be a joy to you during the summer months. But do make your appointments early. During May you will get old prices, so I advise you to make your appointments early.

That very satisfying shop of Benguer, at 1214 Walnut street, has announced a very fascinating fact—that every one of their beautiful hats will be sold, upon Monday and Tuesday, and possibly a day longer, at 20% off the original prices. You select the hat you like—and there is danger of your liking them all—and whatever the price tag upon it, large or small, the saleswoman will make it an honest 20% less upon the bill. There are hats for all occasions, fashioned along the latest lines and of the finest materials. There are chapeaux gay and sombre, soda, rakish or just sweetly smart. You will be sure to find not one, but several which will be becoming to your particular type. I know, because I wandered about the salon for quite a long time. Pretty hats are so hard to leave—one wants to take them all home.

One of the loveliest frocks I ever saw—and that is saying a great deal—is to be found at that exquisite salon of M. Gidding's, located in the Ritz-Carlton, at Broad and Walnut streets. Plainly, it is a pleasant inspiration, and yet a peasant frock for no less than a princess in disguise, so subtly luxurious is it. It is a stunning example of that new vogue of taffeta and organdie combined. The frock proper is of navy taffeta, but the front of the quaint bodice and the generous, curved apron are of white organdie so fine and so covered with a fine tracery of blue silk that it looks like Georgette. Upon the lower center of the apron is a striking seven-inch wheel of fine tarnished silver and silk embroidery, really a work of art. The edge of the apron is blue taffeta embroidered in silver lines. Most unexpected is a bit of old-fashioned rick-rack edging which almost imperceptibly edges the semi-low neck and the short, puffed sleeves. The model is suitable for afternoon or street wear.

There is an immense amount of style and a surprising amount of warmth in those nifty little fur pieces so good for present wearing. I am referring to those single or double skins of stone marten and Hudson Bay sable. When buying furs it is well to get them at a reliable house—that is why I wandered into that well-known, high-class shop of Seifert's, at 1426 Walnut street. I have long been aware of their fair dealing, their reasonable pricing—ever since I found that this high-class house charged not a penny more for remaking in a superlative way a set of my own furs than did an unknown little furrier in a side street who afterward was accused of replacing some fine furs left in his charge with cheaper grades. But what I want to tell you about particularly is that there is that striking array of fine little stone martens and Russian sables at inviting prices—$65 for a single skin of stone marten, $175 for a double skin; $85 for a single Hudson Bay sable neck-piece and $300 for two joined perfect beauties, which measure fully five inches across near the tails. Then, too, Seifert's are selling in advance other furs, even those for next winter, at lower prices than you will pay this coming season.

You who wear mourning, or effect black generally, will rejoice in the news that a group of $75 and $85 mourning frocks, chiefly in black crepe de chine and dull meteor, is reduced to the very low price of $38. There are styles both mature and youthful, severe and softly fashioned, according to your type and taste. It is so difficult to get correct mourning frocks. It would seem that most of them are either absolutely without style or else too smart. A correct mourning frock is an achievement, especially when one buys them ready made, one must go to a shop where the requirements are thoroughly understood. This same shop, Sterling's, of 1210 Walnut street, is noted for its mourning service. On very short notice it will send frocks, suits and coats for selection and a fitter for alterations direct to the house of mourning and return the garments in short order. If necessary, these accommodating merchants will tailor a mourning suit to order in two days.

If you want a truly exclusive hat you must visit that ultra-smart shop of B. Chertak Wenger's, located, you know, at 1229 Walnut street. There one invariably finds something different, a fashion about which to think, a mode that to exclaim. Among the striking array of models I noticed particularly a very large, but exceedingly graceful liere model in black and faced in Georgette of the same hue, the underbrim edged, however, by a broad band of the straw, and the brim edge completely bound with a piping of yellow velvet to match a crown of gorgeous yellow velvet callow lilies about the forehead. It was a "picture" hat in the best sense of the word, but characterized by that artistic restraint which makes for good taste. If you appreciate smartness modified by grace, beauty and unquestioned correctness, you will want to drop in and see this ensemble of Chertak millinery.
