You have been the only paper I have read giving the real and true facts regarding the present railroad men's strike.

Compulsory Training and the G.O.P.
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
The Republican Senate has given the impression that it has entirely dismissed the question of compulsory military training, while at the same time it has passed a provision which makes it necessary to declare that an emergency exists to put the draft into effect.

Calls Ireland's English Best
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—Anent Kellamy's talk in last night's issue on the speaking of English in America and in England, I agree with him when he says that better and worse English is spoken in America than in England.

STRIKE FORCES 1500 OUT
Shipyard Workers Laid Off in Camden and Gloucester

Fifteen hundred men were laid off today in Camden and Gloucester shipyards as the result of the strike of carpenters and joiners holding up operations.

The shipyard companies are remaining firm in their refusal to grant the demands of the carpenters for $1.25 an hour, and have intimated that they will shut down the yards before they will capitulate.

"PERFORMANCE COUNTS"

ANNOUNCEMENT
Retail Lumbermen's Association of Philadelphia

On account of the strike of lumber drivers and lumber chauffeurs, the delivery of lumber in Philadelphia and vicinity has practically ceased.

We have already made all increases in wages justified by the present cost of living, but we cannot concede the principle of the "Closed Shop," which we consider to be un-American and not in accord with the current idea.

Production and efficiency must be increased to relieve the present housing shortage. This can be done only through the principle of the "Open Shop."

We sincerely regret any annoyance to users of lumber on account of the present delay in deliveries.

"Where Am I to Go?"

She Was Young and Appealingly Beautiful

She had listened to the lure of the city—to the siren voice of pleasant employment and easier hours than in her home town up-state.

But when they told her at the Y. W. C. A. that there was no room there—that the limited facilities of the Branch were already overcrowded and that there was a waiting list of hundreds of girls just like her—she broke down and cried.

"Where Am I to Go?" She Pleaded

To this there was no adequate answer. Philadelphia, under-housed and over-jammed, could offer no safe refuge within her means.

Then night came and, forced to find shelter, she applied at the first house where she saw a "Vacancies" card.

In the morning she left, without reserving the room for another night, her funds were low.

She tramped the streets in search of work, but at every place she called it was the same story, if you have no address we have no work for you.

An Extreme Case?

Possibly—but not so extreme as might be supposed. More than 10,000 girls—many of them strangers to the city—were turned away from the Young Women's Christian Association last year because there was no possible way of caring for them.

Out into the streets they went—homeless, helpless, heart-sick.

Now the Y. W. C. A. plans to erect a self-supporting Business Women's Hotel with accommodations for 250 women and a Central Branch which will look out for the needs of the 50,000 women employed in the business section of Philadelphia.

$1,000,000 is needed for this great work.

It is for Philadelphia girls—for women whom but for the accident of birth might be your sisters or daughters.
