"Never!" Shouts Pretty N. Y. Girl When Judge Asks Her to Leave Theft Suspect

WAITS IN HONEYMOON NEST

When Julia Greenman, pretty New York telephone operators, said five days ago that she would take Frederick Van-Coleman, paroled convict, "for better for worse," she meant it. This morning, when Magistrate Oswald, of the Nineteenth and Oxford Oswald, of the Nineteenth and Oxford streets station, offered to intervene in the young bride's behalf provided she earlid leave her husband and return to your York, Mrs. Van Coleman drew herself to her full height, gazed into her husband's eyes, and isaid, "Never!" The dramatic test of the young woman's love came as the climax of a hearing before the magistrate. Van Coleman is charged with the theft of a $250 far piece from the store of J. Perlman, at 1615 Columbia avenue. It was a seeding gift for his bride.

As an after thought, the magistrate said:

"Young woman, you are about to face a fury on a very serious charge. I believe the Welfare Society might be interested in your case. No doubt they could procure your freedom, and you could go back to your family in New York." The woman did not hesitate in replying.

"No. Judge," she said, "I don't want to go back to New York. I'll stick to my husband."

Van Coleman was paroled from the Eastern Penitentiary a month ago. He returned to New York, where his parents live, and met the girl.

They came here May 3 and were married by Magistrate Beaton, Mrs. Van Coleman says they were very happy during their two-day honeymoon in Atlantic City, and the first two days of "housekeeping" in a cozy apartment at Nineteenth street and Columbia ave-
