Making Coffee in Such a Way as to Keep Out the Objectionable Acids-Orange Souffle a Tempting Delicacy

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

(Copyright, 1920, by Mrs. M. A. Wilson, All rights reserved.)

Dear Mrs. Wilson—Recently it be-came becessary for us to have a trained nurse in the house to care for one of the family, and I am sorry to say that the nervous patient kept the nurse so busy attending to her that the nurse was unable to prepare the

It certainly would have spared us additional expense if we could have prepared this food ourselves. Will you kindly tell how to prepare food for the invalid, such as toast, coffee, steak, cereals, beef broths, oranges. and all those things? Thanking you in advance, I am M. E. S.

JUST now it seems out of date to furnish articles on diet cooking. So many classes were formed for this work during the late war that one had the impression that most people could, in an emergency, furnish suitable food for both the patient and the nurse.

Cut slices of bread one inch thick, and then trim free from the crust. Toast to a celicate brown. This means constant watching and care. Now cut the toast into inch-wide strips and if desired to serve as milk toast, cut into squares. Place in a hot dish and cover with scalding hot milk.

To prepare a cup of coffee for the invalid: Place a china pitcher in a saucepan and fill with cold water. Heat natil scalding hot. Both water in a kettle and then drain the water from the pitcher and wipe dry. Place a piece of cheesecloth over the top of the pitcher and push into the pitcher, thus making a well. Tie securely around the top of keep at the boiling point for three min-

This method does not extract the objectional acids from the coffee.

Preparing Steak for the Invalid

Use the tenderloin or the sirloin of sef. Remove the fat and then put the meat through the food chopper to mince very fine. Form into cutlet shape and place in a baking dish. Cooking cereal for the invalid re-puires careful attention. The double coller or fireless cooker is the logical olution of this problem. Starchy products need slow, moist cooking in order to dexterize the starchy content. Place in a double boiler or saucepar container of the fireless cooker

Two cups of boiling water, One-half cup of cereal.

Stir to prevent lumping and cook lowly until thick. Place on the back of the stove or in the fireless cooker three and one-half hours. Cereals are best served for invalids in the form of a broth. To prepare the coreal broth, rub one cup of well-me with emotion, for her misfortunes for one so young in life are many, and one could not have a greater misadventure befall her than to lose all that is dear and kind to her—her parents. Yes "Experienced," perhaps if you had a mother or father to advise and help you when you were younger you would not be as you are today. But keep up hope, don't lose courage; keep on the straight and narrow path, then you will see things anew. He will be worth living, and perhaps some day one will come into your life who will share your troubles with you, will help you to forget the past, and the future will bring new joys into your life, for out of the darkness there comes light.

"Experienced," if I had a feeling of affection toward one of the opposite sex, and I knew she had the same attachment to me, and if she spurned me or if another came between her and me, then too, I would feel exceptionally bad. I could not express in words how I would take it, whether with justice, or with mailee. Why, certainly, "Experienced," I like a young lady who allows you to caress her when you take her home after an entertainment. But if she were not inclined to do so I would not attempt it. I could not do it any-how, for I'm not one of that kind. Cynthia, "Experienceds" articles have been more pathetic to me than any other articles I have read in your criumna, and I hope your kind advice to her, and mine, if it is of any value, will be of aid to her in the future.

He's for the Bonus

Dear Cynthia—The answer of "New York Division" to "Buck Private" struck me as being much nearer the sentiment of 60 per cent of the exercice men than B. P. sown persenal view, and 1/d like to tell him through your invaluable column that I'm with him. If one were to judge the boys of the army, nay and marine corps by B. P.'s letter, one would be led to believe that the present generation is one whose sole aim in life is to get rid of every cent it can lay its hands on and to whom the gift of an appreciative government would mean the cessation of all work until that gift had been foolishly squandered. Not much of a boast for his buddles, do you think? The critics of the proposed bonus bill are, as far as I can see, men to whom a few hundred dollars would not mean anything and they are trying their best (or worst) to make the ex-service man feel like a burglar for even daring the money that is now keeping them from worrying about the H. C. of L. and, for which wonderful, patrictic and soul-inspiring sacrifice they are now receiving citations of honor from Congress, but after doing all and more than was expected of him, he is supposed to deep himself any expression of his immediate needs, which, it can hardly be denied, are due almost wholly to the time he lost while in service. Perhaps there are some ex-service men who do not need the money the nassage of the bonus bill would entilite them to, but if it is not then the extremely an advantage of the bonus bill would entilite them to, but if it is to make and never abuse it.

Carter was alive. She had failed oute perceptibly and Anne often noticed that she breathed heavily after she had climbed a flight of stairs or did anything strenuous. It wasn't that she complained. Aunt Martha would never admit that she was not well. It was simply that things did not matter so much to her as they had. She could not watch Anne with the strictness and not watch Anne with the strictness and severity that she once had, because it was an effort. She had for a long time taken a nap every day after lunch. Of late she had remained prone on the big walnut bed for a longer time than she ever had before. It was this fact that had given Anne more freedom.

Dear Madam—In a few weeks I am planning to be married and am desirous of having a very quiet home wedding with no other attendants than my nephew as a ring-bearer. Will you please tell me his duties, where be should walk and how the ring should be carried by him?

The ringbearer at a wedding may walk either before or behind the bride. In this case it should be better to have him precede you into the room where the ceremony is to take place, and stand at one side until the time for him to present the ring. The ring should be carried on a small white satin pillow. He should be dressed all in white, of course but he need not wear the conventional page's costume unless you wish it. His own little Buster Brown or Oliver Twist or whatever he wears will be attractive enough. His only duties are to walk in the bridal procession, and then to present the first at the proper moment, bowing low and holding out the cushion with both hands. After the ceremoy, of course, it will be his duty to keep quiet and not cat too much! But it will probably be up to somebody else to make him do those things if he is a natural, healthy boy.
