

ALLIANCE ISSUES CONGRESS 'SLATE'

Burke, Garland, Walters and McLaughlin Also Backed by Moore Administration

KENDRICK NOT SUPPORTED

Republican Alliance and Moore administration leaders are putting out sample ballots today showing their "slate" for Congress-at-large. The "slate" contains the names of William J. Burke and M. M. Garland, of Pittsburgh; Anderson H. Walters, of Johnstown; and Joseph McLaughlin, of this city. Colonel Thomas S. Crago, of Greene county, candidate for re-nomination, will not be supported by the alliance.

The alliance and administration "slate" is marked also for Judge Sadler, of Cumberland county, for the Supreme Court, and Judge Linn of this city, for the Superior Court. Of the five candidates for delegates-at-large, the alliance and administration will not support Receiver of Taxes Kendrick, Charles J. Biddle and Robert J. McGrath.

The alliance therefore is supporting the full so-called "slate" for delegates-at-large, and is not paying any attention to Governor Sprout's expressions on behalf of Receiver of Taxes Kendrick, the Vore leader.

The Vore slate for delegates-at-large will not contain the name of Mayor Moore. This is in retaliation for the rejection of the Kendrick candidacy by the Vore leaders. The Vore slate at this time bears the names of Kendrick, Governor Sprout, Attorney General Schaffer, Major Biddle, Robert J. McGrath and General Atterbury.

A feature of the primary election in Philadelphia will be the contest for the largest popular vote between Mayor Moore and Receiver of Taxes Kendrick.

PLAN NEW ZION CHURCH

Group Buildings to Surround Tower at Broad St. and Wyoming Ave.

The Zion Protestant Episcopal Church, it was announced yesterday, will have one of the handsomest groups of buildings on North Broad street. The Rev. C. H. Long is the rector. The plans call for an imposing church group, dominated by a tower, at Broad street and Wyoming avenue. The tower will occupy a position approximately in the middle of the group. The church will be on the south side of the lot, with entrances on Broad street. The present edifice will remain until the new church is completed. The parish house will have entrances on York road, and the rectory will adjoin the parish house on the Wyoming avenue side. The buildings will form three sides of a quadrangle. Green-tinted stone, with limestone trimmings, will be used in the construction. Work upon the structure will start at an early date.

GOING BACK TO BELGIUM

War Orphan Failed to Appreciate Home Here, It is Said

Marcel Barratt, the seventeen-year-old Belgian boy who lost both of his parents during the war and was brought to Philadelphia with Emil Paul Gerard, a French boy, last June, by returning soldiers, will go back to France May 27. His passage is to be paid by a member of the Belgian Society, who furnished the bond for his release last year. The boy is styled as incorrigible and did not appreciate a good home with a Philadelphia family, according to officials of the Bureau of Immigration, Gloucester.

He is now at the Gloucester detention house.

TWO ROBBERS POSE AS GARBAGE MEN

Enter Dwelling From Rear, but Are Frightened Away Without Loot

FAMILY WAS NEXT DOOR

Two robbers, posing as garbage collectors, entered the home of Charles Fackson, at 6127 Carpenter street, at 8:30 o'clock last night while Mr. and Mrs. Fackson were seated on the enclosed porch of their neighbors' home next door.

The robbers were scared away before they had time to collect any loot. The Facksons were seated in a glass-enclosed porch at the home of Mr. Rudy Heller, who lives next to Fackson at 6129 Carpenter street. Mr. Heller went to the kitchen of his house to obtain some ice water. He switched on the electric lights, which illuminated the rear of the Fackson home. Mr. Heller thought he heard a noise, but returned to the porch later with the ice water.

A short time later two men came out of the alley separating the two homes, and dumping some garbage on their wagon, drove away. When Mr. and Mrs. Fackson returned to their home they discovered that a kitchen window had been forced and that two men, who left footprints on the carpet, had commenced to ransack the china closet and drawers containing the silverware, when they were apparently frightened away.

WHERE IS MICHAEL BASS?

Camden Mayor is Requested to Locate a Missing Son

Mayor Charles Ellis, of Camden, has received a letter pleading for assistance in locating a lost son. The writer, B. Bass, of 172 Sherman street, New York, asks that an effort be made to find Michael, who disappeared from Chicago in 1911, where the Bass family was then living. The father believes Michael is now in Camden. The letter contains a pathetic appeal for the son to "come home before it is too late." Mayor Ellis is making every effort to find Michael, who is twenty-six years old, as his father is believed to be dying.

Y. W. C. A. DRIVE GOES ON

Continuation Committee Will Bring $425,000 Up to Million

The Young Women's Christian Association will continue its drive until the total of $1,000,000 it seeks has been obtained. Although the drive was scheduled to close last night, reports at a closing dinner of workers and directors showed that the total so far contributed was $425,000. Of this amount $77,883 was subscribed by the many who attended the dinner. It was decided to form a continuation committee to carry the drive until the financial goal was reached. Mrs. George McPadden, a member of the executive committee, declared "we will never say die and we will continue the committee until we get the money."

Mission Warehouse Burns

A blaze which started in a bundle of waste and paper last night swept through the warehouse of the Brotherhood Mission, 306 Belgrade street. It is believed to have been started by a discarded match or cigarette but thrown in a basement window. Virtually everything stored in the building was damaged.

SLAIN MISSIONARY'S WORK IS PRAISED

Scientist Says the Rev. A. R. Hoare Was Pioneer Among Natives in Alaska

WAS KILLED BY INDIANS

Dr. Harley Stamp, traveler and scientist, of 3618 Chestnut street, today told of the work accomplished in the bleak, isolated village of Point Hope, in northwestern Alaska, by the Rev. A. R. Hoare, killed a few days ago by Indians. Doctor Stamp, who visited the Rev. Hoare in May, 1917, said that the missionary of the Episcopal Church had gone to Point Hope from Philadelphia in 1910. When he arrived in the frozen village, the Rev. Hoare found only Eskimos; later formed an intense hatred for the whites.

As a result, there were numerous encounters between the Indians and white men. It was an Indian who finally killed the missionary. The Rev. Hoare returned to Philadelphia for a short time in 1917, when he was relieved by the Rev. Dr. R. Richard Thomas, of Princeton, N. J. After a short visit here, the Rev. Hoare returned to the frozen North. He had no family and it is believed died alone.

Will Wilson Run Again?

That "there will be 'hell-a-popping' at San Francisco" is the warmish comment of the chief Democratic paper in Nebraska on Mr. Bryan's victory in the State primaries, for he will now go to the Convention as a delegate "with full opportunity to devote his power and talents to either guerrilla or open warfare upon the leadership of President Wilson and the policies for which he stands." The President has indicated very plainly, in his letter to Delegate Jouett Shouse, read to the Kansas Democratic State convention, that he will insist that the party support his League program. The New York World believes it would be a fatal policy for the party to repudiate the President, for "it is only under his leadership that the party can be held together," and the Brooklyn Eagle says that if the party is to make the campaign on the League issue, "the only logical candidate is Woodrow Wilson." The Republican press naturally have a few remarks to make about all this. Thus the Milwaukee Sentinel: "Run for a third term nomination? Of course he'll run—health permitting. And, as a prominent Democrat remarks, such is Mr. Wilson's sublime self-confidence that when it comes to that question he will regard himself as the best judge of the permissive state of his health."

One of the most interesting articles in this week's LITERARY DIGEST—May 15th—deals with the possibility of Mr. Wilson again being a candidate for the Presidency, and presents the editorial view-point on this contingency from many angles.

"Flash" and "Fire" tests

do not prove motor oil quality

The Burning Test

Sticky tar from ordinary old type paraffin base motor oil

Place some ordinary motor oil (the old-type paraffin base) in a cup. Burn off about three-quarters. The residue is sticky tar. This is exactly what happens in an engine. This gummy tar sticks to cylinder walls, piston heads, valves, etc., collects dust and dirt and forms carbon deposit, the greatest obstacle to efficient lubrication.

Burning down SUNOCO does not change its lubricating qualities

Place an equal quantity of SUNOCO, the new-type motor oil, in a cup. Burn off about three-quarters. The oil that remains has the same lubricating qualities as the oil you started with. Engine heat doesn't affect SUNOCO, as it is not a compounded oil. When consumed in the engine it leaves no sticky residue to form hard, flinty carbon deposits.

Many motorists believe that an oil to be efficient must have "Flash" and "Fire" tests high enough to withstand the terrific heat in the cylinders.

"Flash" means the temperature at which vapor from an oil will burst into flame. "Fire" means the temperature at which the oil itself will burn.

The fallacy in these tests is apparent. "Flash" and "Fire" temperatures of 450 and 500 degrees, respectively, are high, but the temperature in a cylinder is approximately 2700 degrees at the time of explosion. No oil made can wholly withstand such a heat.

The all-important consideration is—what is the lubricating value of the oil remaining after part has been burned away?

The "Burning Test" alone is proof

The old type, paraffin base, compounded oils, when partly burned, leave a residue that not only fails to lubricate but causes carbon deposit.

SUNOCO—the new kind of motor oil—being a non-compounded, 100 per cent distilled oil, burns down evenly. The part not burned is as pure and as high in lubricating qualities as before. Read "The Burning Test."

SUNOCO is made in six types to insure the right oil for every car made. The "Sunoco Lubrication Guide" will tell you the right type for your car. Ask your dealer for a copy or write us.
