Great Panther Runner Sobs After Being Shut Out in Heat of Title Trials

By EDWIN J. POLLOCK BROKEN-HEARTED athlete sat A in the corner of the dressing room at Franklin Field late yesterday afternoon. He was crumbled in a heap. His shoulders were bent far down, he held two flaming cheeks in the heels of his hands while perspiration trinkled down from his forehead over his twitch-

Into the palms of the trembling hands one could casi'y imagine tears stream-ing. The lifts of his shoulders, perhaps ing. The lifts of his shoulders, perhaps caused by short, jerky breaths, might have been sobs. Fellow athletes offered sympathy, but he would have none of it. He paid not the slightest heed to the words of comfort spoken to him, nor to the sympathetic pats which often fell on his broad back.

It was Frank Shea, the remarkable quarter-mile champion, of the University of Pittsburgh, a man who two guarter-mine champed, a man who two gity of Pittsburgh, a man who two years ago came within one-fifth of a geond of equaling Ted Meredith's world's record of 472-9 seconds.

NAVY WINNER OF CUP

By SPICK HALL

THE Childs cup race, which went into the custody of the United States Naval Academy crew for the first ime when they shot two lengths ahead of Princeton at the finish just above the clumbia avenue bridge over the Schuyl kill at an early period resolved itself

Although the University of Pennsylania eight got a fine start, it soon be ame apparent that the speedier strokes Princeton and the Navy would carry them through in one, two order, and that the Red and Blue was destined to fight it out with Jim Rice's Columbia octet. This proved to be the case. At the finish Princeton broke so badly, after putting up a good race against the navy, the interest centered in the Penn-Columbia tilt. It required the voice of the officials to inform the crowd which crew won, so close was the finish. Not only that, but as the finish is at an angle to make up for the starting angle. which is necessary because of the bend in the river, nearly all of the spectators were certain that Columbia had won. But the officials ruled that the Red and Blue had the better of the race by about two feet.

Distant Champion

According to mutual friends the Penn-Columbia struggle was very important to Joe Wright, coach of Pennsylvania, and Jim Rice, Columbia. Both are from Toronto and whenever one of their crews heart the other the winner. their crews beats the other, the winner | crew. gets a big boost in social prestige. So now it's Joe's turn and, in a manner of teenths. speaking, you might say that Penn won

"long distance." Boat House Row was alive with followers of the four crews early in the afternoon. Every one who had a machine assembled at 5 o'clock at the starting Navy—Bo line on both the East and West River drives. When the crews lined up for the gun, there was a slight wind blowing the Third division of the Allied League, where the Ascension soccer cleven are in a deadlock with the St. Carthage squad.

the gun, there was a slight wind blowing diagonally across the Schuvlkill from the southwest. This caused a slight delay, because the Navy had trouble in getting position. Finally when every thing was all set, the Navy occupied the soliton page the sast shore with the position near the east shore, with Pennsylvania next, I rinceto, third and Columbia well in intistream. Union B. C. Orders English Shells for Henley Regatta

Cambridge, Mass, May 29.—That the Union Boat Club would have a crew in the English Henley was indicated when Robert F, Herricks, bead couch of the crew, Cabled to England ordering two shells. The Sims boat in which Harvard broke the four-mile record on the Thames in 1916 will be taken across.

were followeing the race as engerly as the cars' occupants.

Princeton closed in on Pennsylvania about 100 yards above the Strawberry bridge, with the Navy oarsmen leading by half a length and Columbia still trailing. When the shells passed under the bridge the Navy crew was hitting it up at a 37-stroke pace and Princeton 32. Shortly after they passed under the bridge Princeton got a slight lead and Columbia speeded up its stroke and passed the Red and Blue.

All of the crews were apparently rowing strong, but the Navy was pulling just a little ahead. One hundred yards above the island the Navy was leading Princeton almost a length.

Princeton Breaks

It appeared then that the Navy might row clear away from Princeton, but the Tigers stuck doggedly on the job the Tigers stuck doggedly on the job until the last fifty yards, when they broke badly and finished about two lengths back of the Navy. More than five lengths behind the winner came Pennsylvania and Columbia, both giving all they had, and it was the Red and Blue that got the close verdict.
