PITCHERS NOT BREAKING RECORDS OR FENCES; BUT FOUR HOME RUNS ARE MADE BY HURLERS THIS YEAR

Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

ISN'T it funny how the pitchers are clouting the ball this year?" remarks a curious customer. "They are poling out long hits every day and many are stepping into the spotlight as home-run hitters. Guess they are spending more time in batting practice.

We agreed with the C. C., for at Shibe Park last week two pitchers socked the ball out of the lot on successive That made us fear that a new record was being made by the hurlers and the grandoldope was dragged out of retirement.

There is nothing to worry about. The pitchers still are pitcher's, whether it be on the mound or standing at plate. No records are being smashed, and the same s for fences. Last week two Philadelphia pitchers made home runs in Shibe Park. That was just twice as many as were made by all of the other pitchers in the American League since the season opened. The other vas perpetrated by Jack Quinn, of the Yankees, showing that the home-run pitchers exist within a radius of ninety miles from Philadelphia. This is the circuit clouting zone

A pitcher is a guy who steps up to the rubber and is Ifkely to knock the ball a mile or strike out. If a hurler ever gets hold of one it goes far, FAR away, but the odds are about 100 to 1 against it. In the National League, only one pegger, Sherdell, of the Cardinals, has hit for However, Alexander is up in front with an average of .370, Rixey for some reason or other is socking at a .333 clip, Nehf .286 and Jimmy Ring .240. They are the best in the senior circuit.

Erickson, of the Senators, tops the American League flingers with .316, Johnson is next with .280 and Carl Mays is hitting .250. There's all the dope on the pitchers. As soon as one becomes a consistent hitter he is promoted to the outfield or some place like that, like Babe Ruth.

The Babe, by the way, is hitting them high and far these days. He is getting a lot of homers, his total now being eleven. Still, Ruth is a lucky guy. He is bound o break his record of last year, because home-run hitting popular, the fans like to gaze upon a slugger and the gate will increase.

WHILE not questioning Ruth's ability to hit, for he is the greatest slugger the game ever has known, we fear he will be presented with a lot of "free homers" this year. For instance, if his team is several runs in arrears near the end of the game it would be good policy to groove one for the big boy and let him kill it. That wouldn't affect the game, but it would please the fans who visited the park to see Ruth hit.

Cubs Put on Speed

TPHE feature of last week in big league baseball was the work of the Chicago Cubs, who now are leading the National. Fred Mitchell started off on a flat tire, got stuck in the cellar and extricated himself only after considerable difficulty. All of the breaks were against him-the injury to Hollocher, Fred Merkle's dead arm, Hersog's ailment which put him on the sidelines and the failure of Lefty Tyler to come back as was expected.

However, a couple of quick shifts were made and a incky deal, which brought Zeb Terry to the Windy City. virtually made the ball club. Terry replaced Herzog at cond and is playing such a whale of a game that it is doubtful if Charley will be back for some time.

Bill Veeck, president of the Cubs, is strong for Terry, Terry's playing at second base has been a revelation. he said "The way be has fielded and driven out hits has caused the fans to forget Herzog is with us. I believe the combination we have at the keystone sack now will prove the greatest in the league and will make more double plays than any other pair." Another reason for the success of the Chicago club is Grover Cleveland Alexander. Big Alex has won ten straight and looks better than ever. With Vaughn and Hendryx, and perhaps Tyler, Mitchell can spot himself about seventy ball games and hope that the other pitchers will come through with the others. The Giants still are in the doldrums, battling the Phils for last place. Boston has slumped, as was predicted. and should stick in the second division from now on. Branch Rickey has a great hitting club in St. Louis, but the pitching has not been anything to rave about.

LOOKS like a close race in both leagues this year.

Altrock Saves the Day

WITHOUT Nick Altrock at Shibe Park Saturday, the day would have been a dismal failure for the fans. Nicholas managed to entertain the folks while Washington was grabbing a pair of perfectly good championship contests from the Macks. His comedy went big, and the huge audience was kept in such good humor that it didn't care who won the game.

Altrock has been pulling the giggles out of the mob for several years, but he never gets tiresome. He has a personality which takes and his comedy is clever. Nick plays first base in his own original way, and, allow us to state, it takes a mighty good ball player to get away with it. His back-handed catches can be made only by an expert, and that's that.

This is not a slam at the Washington club, but Alt rock is as big an attraction as the players and probably more so. He is the one original comedian of the diamond. never gets rough and is the club's greatest asset. May he live long and keep us amused.

A's Lack Hurlers

66TF I only could get the pitching," moaned Connie A Mack after the double defeat Saturday. "When the pitching is good we play great bail, but when it isn't-well, look what happened today. Still, I have hopes that some of the youngsters will improve this summer. They have the makings of first-class moundsmen and will benefit by the experience they get.

"Outside of Naylor and Perry, I never know who will finish the game. Funny thing about young pitchers. The man you start will blow up nine times out of ten, and the man who succeeds him will look like a champion. That's the way it works. After the game has been lost we get high-class pitching. I hope we discover some stars in our long trip on the road."

Connie knows what he is talking about, for he has tried out more youthful hbriers than any other two managers in the business.

McAvoy Asset to Drexel

BILL McAVOY, former star football player at Lafayette and afterward athletic director at Delaware College. has taken charge of athletics at Drexel Institute. McAvo is an able man and should have a lot of success. It was he who put Delaware on the map in college athletics, and he probably will do the same at Drexel. He knows football, baseball and basketball as well as any one, and also can teach it. Drexel should be congratulated.
